BRITAIN SPURNS U. S. PLAN FOR TARIFF TRUCE

Premier Links Debt and World Parley.

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—America's first big move for giving the world economic conference a constructive send-off by means of a tariff truce failed today to gain the support of the British government.

With other countries awaiting Britain's lead, there appeared no hope tonight of making effective an armistice in the economic warfare among the nations.

No outright refusal of coöperation came from Downing street, where Prime Minister MacDonald held two long sessions with his cabinet, but it was understood that Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs, had informed Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's negotiator, of the inability of the British government to agree to any immediate truce, or even to a truce from the opening of the economic conference, unless Britain's tariff position is protected by safeguards.

MacDonald Reports to Nation.

In a speech tonight reporting to the British public on his conversations with President Roosevelt in Washington MacDonald said that the war debts question must be settled as quickly as possible, before the world economic conference is ended, if the parley is to achieve any final result.

The conference also, he asserted, "will have to reach an agreement upon the principles governing the height of tariff walls and upon the removal of destructive devices, such restrictions on currency movements, which mean that goods sent abroad cannot be paid for."

The task will not be easy, he said, "but with common sense and good will much can be done. The Washington conversations showed that the United States is with us in making this attempt."

Nowhere in his address did he mention the question of America's proposal for a tariff truce.

"Far Apart in Space."

"Our two countries are far apart in space, our interests are not always the same, and our publics do not always think alike," MacDonald said. "Yet, underlying all differences in circumstances and opinions, there is, if we get down to it, a fine foundation of friendship which it has been the desire of every government I have supported to cultivate."

"I tried four years ago to bring out that friendship when I went over to discuss disarmament with President Hoover. Further to strengthen that understanding was the main purpose of the cabinet when it asked me to go to Washington the other day. In that respect the purpose of my journey was well worth while.

"I was in Washington only four days, and agreements sealed and signed were completely out of the question. I did not try to make them and no one expected that I should.

Too Many Trade Barriers.

"Every one sees that within recent years far too many barriers to the easy flow of international trade have been set up. This has been forced upon countries like our own by the action of other countries. But no one can believe that national prosperity can be secured by diminishing the volume of international trade and exchange. It can come only by increasing that volume.

"If this country were to pursue a policy of making itself economically self-sufficient, we should have to reduce our population by some millions. If we were to maintain even our present standard of living that reduction would have to be made by large scale emigration which will not be possible for years and years to come, or by devastating destitution, which would bring us incalculable suffering and trouble.

"Mr. Roosevelt and myself discussed war debts and with candid frankness explained to each other the positions of our respective countries. This is a very hard nut to crack and I cannot say that we have yet cracked it. But the subject has been faced at close quarters, and that is necessary as a preliminary to further consideration. If the international conference is to achieve any final results that question must be settled one way or another as quickly as possible, certainly before the conference ends. Upon that we are in agreement.

"To sum up, the results of our four days of conference have been:

"1. The final decision, which has been so long delayed, to open the in

PERKINS PLAN FOR TRADE RULE TO BE SCRAPPED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration has backed away from the plan to make Secretary Perkins a czarina over industry, it was learned today, and instead is now pushing a modified plan under which business would be allowed to set itself in better order.

The Perkins bill, under which the secretary of labor would receive authority to tell industrialists how long their plants could stay open, how much they should pay their employés, and how many hours they might work, is to be scrapped in its essential features, it was revealed.

In its place will come the new proposal now being drafted by representatives of three government departments—but not Miss Perkins' department—which it is understood has already been given approval in principle by outstanding business leaders.

Agreements Approved.

The bill, to be put forward by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], would grant to industries the right to enter into agreements governing wages, working conditions, and production, the agreements being subject to the approval of a governmental board comparable in authority to the war industries board. If individual units in an industry refuse to go along with the agreement the members would be permitted to petition the government control board to force the individuals into line.

In this respect the government would receive authority to issue peremptory orders to particular businesses, but only upon the initiative of a majority of the members of the industry.

It was learned that Senator Wagner's proposed bill really was initiated by persons high in the administration's confidence and that they in turn acted at the request of business leaders who were fairly aghast at the Perkins proposal.

Roosevelt's Mind Open.

President Roosevelt was asked at today's press conference to state his views on the legislation pending and he declared he had no fixed ideas on any plan.

He did reiterate that some method must be found to control the minorities in industries which resort to cutthroat methods of competition. The President's view is that these minorities, cutting wages, working their employés long hours, can cut prices of their products and thus upset the fair plans of an entire industry.

But he indicated in his speech to members of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States last night that he would allow business leaders to take leadership, and instead of asserting the government would force control upon them he offered the government's coöperation.

Roper Outlines Plan.

This view of the President not reflected in the proposals of Secretary Perkins was more clearly defined today by another member of his cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Roper, in an address before the closing session of the national chamber of commerce.

Secretary Roper invited the broadest type of coöperation from business leaders and he proposed a tentative plan under which the leaders themselves would nominate for the department of commerce a "coördinating general committee," to be designated, as he put it, "the President's council on business."

This committee would number not more than 21 members, Mr. Roper explained, the representatives to be chosen with geographical and industrial considerations. It could serve, Mr. Roper continued, in advising the government and also, he said, "as an agency through which there could be turned back to business its proper responsibility for effecting through its own organizations those measures which had received the approval of the government."

Field Staff Suggested.

Then the commerce secretary suggested that he might appoint 12 field representatives, one for each federal reserve district in the country, whose duties it would be to maintain contacts with the coöperative offices set up by the industrial associations.

The so-called Wagner plan is now in charge of Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, who hopes to have it in the shape of a bill by tomorrow. It is understood the bill will provide for the appointment of a government official with powers similar to that of the rail coördinator proposed in the railway bill.

SKETCHES OF THE NEWS

Cuba to Clear Movie Stars in Sailor's Death

HAVANA, Cuba, May 5.—Although still subject to the result of police investigations and a formal decision, Judge Luis Maria Cowley of the Marianao court of instruction tonight announced that no developments have been brought to light which would place any blame on Ann Harding, Alexander Kirkland, film stars, and the former's secretary, Marie Lombard, for the death of Majin Alvarez, a sailor. The 45 year old boatman disappeared in shark infested waters off this city Wednesday while attempting to swim from their capsized sailboat to shore for aid.

May Return to Hollywood.

Miss Harding planned to return to Hollywood on Monday. Kirkland tonight said he does not know when he will leave Cuba. Contradictory statements marked the case.

Kirkland's version is that Alvarez drowned half an hour after leaving the boat to swim to shore. Francisco Mir, skipper of the rescue boat, claims Alvarez would not have attempted to swim ashore in the shark infested waters had he been in his right senses.

Miss Lombard, on the other hand, told police that the party including Miss Harding and herself plainly saw Alvarez disappear beneath the water after raising both hands as if he were summoning assistance.

Kirkland's Story Contradictory.

Kirkland's declarations contradict this statement. He said he was the only person to see Alvarez disappear and that he kept news of the tragedy from both women so as not to frighten them.

Miss Harding declared that she and Kirkland saw several sharks near their craft a few minutes before it capsized. Miss Lombard insists she did not see any sharks and that no one warned her of their presence. The police had reports of drinking aboard the sailboat.

Miss Harding, Kirkland and Miss Lombard will contribute $5,000 to a fund for the survivors of the sailor. The Jaimanitas club, which employed Alvarez, is collecting the fund. Miss Harding also plans to place the two youngest of the sailor's seven children in school here, paying all expenses.

100 Canadian Convicts Go on "Hunger Strike" Stunt

45 DISMISSED FROM FOREST ARMY AFTER THEY REFUSE TO WORK

Camp Dix, N. J., May 5.—[Special.]—Forty-five recruits of the citizens' conservation corps were dismissed from camp here today and returned to their homes in Newark by special train after they had refused to work and had called upon other members of their company to "go on strike."

Seventeen others who also had refused to work were allowed to remain at the camp after they had been questioned by army officers. Maj. William R. Schmidt, executive officer of the camp, said these men had asserted that "Reds" had "threatened to beat them up" if they did not join a "walkout" at the camp.

Thomas E. Maloy, czar of the motion picture operators' union, and Billy Skidmore, regarded as gangland's most adroit political fixer, were added yesterday to the list of those whom the government expects to indict for income tax dodging in the current drive to smash Chicago's politico-racketeering conspiracy.

Attorney General Homer E. Cummings has assigned one of his ablest Washington assistants, Leslie E. Salter, to assist United States Attorney Dwight H. Green in the prosecution of Maloy, Skidmore, and a dozen other characters of the same stamp it was learned. Mr. Salter has established headquarters in the federal building.

Big Business and Rackets.

The case against Maloy, in whose union rebellion has twice been followed by the murder of the insurgent leaders in the last three years, is expected to develop evidence of the intimate connections between big business and racketeering. Maloy took over the movie operators' union in 1925, succeeding Jack Miller, who was moved up to business agent of the Chicago Theater Exhibitors' association.

The government, it is said, expects to show that Maloy has been able to maintain his power only by means of the huge income he enjoys through employment of his men in the big movie houses, and through his political connections. His brother, Joseph Maloy, who recently died, was formerly in charge of the licensing of movie operators in the city hall.

The Rôle of Skidmore.

Trial of Skidmore, ex-saloon keeper and bondsman, who, it is said, now devotes his efforts to big time political fixing, is expected to show how his clients among the gangs get consideration from police captains and judges. Skidmore is said to be a fixer of such long experience and discretion that both gangsters and crooked politicians trust him implicitly.

First on the list of those to be indicted, as disclosed yesterday, is expected to be Murray Humphries, boss and chief disciplinarian of the Truck and Transport agency, otherwise known as the "T-N-T," which agency is said to levy $1,000,000 a year in tribute on the coal business alone.

The evidence against Humphries, it is said, will link him with the outlaw Chicago Teamsters' union, where his influence is felt through his alliance with William [Three Fingered Jack] White and William [Klondike] O'Donnell. It will also link him with the

RESCUED GIRL TELLS BRIEFLY OF CAPTIVITY

Woods Hole, Mass., May 6 [Saturday].—(AP)—Ten year old Margaret McMath's story of her kidnaping early today was given out by Gen. Daniel C. Needham, head of the Massachusetts state police.

The child told of being held in the cellar of a house by a man who told her she must "never look at his face." His hands, she said, were white.

She was tossed in the back seat of the automobile, she said, when she was carried off. Her hands were bound to her sides and she was blindfolded.

"I was taken to a shack near a cranberry bog," Margaret told Gen. Needham.

"They carried me under the shack in a space set aside for tools and gave me a mattress to lie on. A man ordered me to keep quiet and he visited me only at night. He always used a flashlight when he came and I could see that his hands were white."

CHILD GROWS HYSTERICAL.

Harwichport, Mass., May 6 [Saturday].—[Special.]—Peggy McMath was heard crying in the McMath home this morning and neighbors said she finally had broken under the strain of the ordeal of the kidnaping. Earlier she had maintained a surprising calm after her safe return. One of the family reported to be Trent McMath, drove to several places before he could find a sedative to quiet the child.

MENACE WOMEN AND ROB HOME OF SOX SECRETARY

Mrs. Joseph T. Barry, wife of the traveling secretary of the White Sox baseball team; two other women, and two men were held prisoners for two hours last night by five bandits in the Barry apartment at 319 South Central Park avenue. The thieves stole $1,500 in jewelry and cash and escaped after cutting the telephone wires.

A young man paved the way for the robbery. He appeared outside the Barry apartment in the afternoon and, identifying himself as "Mr. Brady," asked to see Mr. Barry. When informed that Barry was not at home, he said he would return at 9 p. m. He did so, and Mrs. Barry, recognizing him as "Mr. Brady," half opened the door. The man pushed in, drew a gun, and beckoned to four companions. They followed, also displaying guns.

Inside the apartment the quintet compelled Mrs. Barry and her guests, Mrs. Nellie Lavin, Mrs. William P. Haberkorn, Charles Barry Sr., and Charles Barry Jr.—the latter relatives of Mr. Barry—to stay in a bedroom.

The robbers searched the house and found more than $1,300 in jewelry and other articles, including a gun. They they demanded of Mrs. Barry the key to a small metal box. When she demurred the gunmen threatened to undress her and she gave them the key. In the box the thieves added $182 in cash to their loot.

BRAZIL ELECTION COUNT MAY TAKE THREE MONTHS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 5.—Forty-eight hours after Tuesday's election of a constitutional convention, the electoral tribunal had counted only three sections.

There are 231 sections of 400 voters each in Rio de Janeiro, and each ballot form contains an average list of eleven candidates, which the president of the tribunal reads one by one after inspecting the ballot for its validity. The operation consumes about six minutes for each vote.

The press complains that unless a quicker method of counting is adopted it will take three months to complete the task.

M'MATH CHILD IS RETURNED TO FATHER ON BOAT

Harwichport, Mass., May 5.—[Special.]—Peggy McMath, 10 years old, who was kidnaped Tuesday from a Harwich schoolhouse, was returned to her parents today. Her father, Neil C. McMath, is reported to have paid $80,000 to the kidnapers.

The source of the $80,000 fund turned over to McMath by a Boston bank was not revealed. The father had said he had little money, but he was willing to pay any reasonable sum to regain his child. The grandfather of the kidnaped girl, Francis C. McMath of Detroit, is a retired steel man and reputed to be wealthy.

The girl was found at 5:30 p. m. by Brig. Gen. Daniel C. Needham, Massachusetts commissioner of public safety, state police and coast guardsmen, on board the yacht Bob in Wychmere harbor, in front of the McMath home at Harwich.

Family Is Reticent.

With her were her father, Cyril Buck of Harwichport, proprietor of a garage, and Harold Sawyer of Harwichport. The yacht is the property of William D. Lee, Harwich boat builder and business associate of McMath.

The extreme reticence of the family, ascribed by them to their determination to keep their promise of immunity to the kidnapers if the girl were returned, left the most important aspects of the case still unexplained.

Trent McMath, assistant United States attorney at Detroit and a cousin of the father of the kidnaped girl, revealed contact was established with the kidnapers on Wednesday, when an unidentified messenger delivered at the McMath home a note in the handwriting of Peggy McMath describing how and where the transfer of money was to be made.

Girl Returned to Father.

The girl was given to her father at 3 a. m. today and remained with him, Buck and Sawyer aboard Lee's yacht because McMath had promised "under dire threats" not to reveal she had been returned for 48 hours, to enable the criminals to escape.

"There was a leak somewhere," the father said.

It was Lee who revealed the girl had been returned after he had been questioned twice by state police. Mrs. McMath knew the girl was on board the yacht, Trent McMath said.

Hide Details of Kidnaping.

How long the girl had been on the boat, where or under what circumstances her ransom was paid and other details of her return were not revealed. Gen. Needham, who has directed the investigation and was present when the girl was found, said "this case is very unusual," and intimated further research before it can be closed. Supposition that the girl had been held on a boat on the high seas made the case one for federal authorities.

The kidnaped girl was taken on board a coast guard picket boat from Wychmere harbor to the coast guard base at Woods Hole, where, at 7:30 p. m. before a cheering crowd she ran to the arms of her mother weeping.

She wore the clothes she had on when she disappeared—a brown dress, brown shoes and socks, a blue sailor coat and a sailor hat. Apparently her health had not been impaired despite her hysterical condition.

Turn Over $80,000 to Father.

The ransom money was taken to Harwichport on Wednesday afternoon, George B. Bacon, vice president of the Merchants National bank of Boston, telephoned to Capt. Thomas E. Bligh of the state police asking that a trooper be assigned to escort him to Harwichport. Sergt. Harold A. Delaney was assigned to the duty. He went to the bank at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday and drove to Harwich with Bacon and two other men.

The four men went directly to the McMath home and turned over $80,000 to the father of the missing girl. Some time that night the sum was turned over to the kidnapers and the girl was returned to her father.

Mr. Bacon, who was a witness to the transaction of handing the money over to the kidnapers, was called suddenly to Woods Hole tonight. It was believed he may have been wanted to identify a suspect in the kidnaping.

tective, brought the revelation that Peggy had been returned to her father.

Tells of Girl's Return.

"Peggy is on board my yacht, The Bob, in Wychmere harbor in front of the house," Lee was quoted as saying.

Gen. Needham organized his troopers to form a trap in the hope they might capture the kidnapers. One group was stationed on the shore of Wychmere harbor. Gen. Needham, William C. Crossley, district attorney; Capt. J. P. Mahoney of the state police with state detectives went to Woods Hole where Commander Roderick S. Patch of the coast guard base placed at their disposal two 75 foot picket boats, on which they returned to Wychmere harbor.

The 50 foot yacht Bob, on which Lee and his wife occasionally spend a night, appeared to be deserted as the two coast guard craft approached. Police on shore, however, saw the missing girl on the deck of the yacht with her father at her side. One of the coast guard boats then made fast alongside the Bob and transferred the girl, her father and his two friends.

Crowd Gathers on Docks.

More than 300 persons gathered on the docks at Woods Hole when the picket boat appeared in the harbor and cheered when they saw the girl, standing with her father on deck. Peggy was the first to leave the coast guard boat. She walked alone down the gangplank, boarded the training ship Wyanda, and on the deck met her mother, who had driven from Harwich, accompanied by Trent McMath.

Mother and daughter were crying and laughing when they embraced, both near collapse from hysteria and relief. They went at once to the cabin of the Wyanda, while Gen. Needham issued his statement.

Asked whether any one would be held or placed under arrest Gen. Needham said:

"O, no, no. We will question every one to get as much information as we can."

Family Poses for Pictures.

District Attorney Crossley stood beside him while he spoke.

McMath had told newspaper men at the beginning of the investigation that he had his wife would not pose for pictures until his daughter was returned. Reminded of his promise, he went to the cabin and returned with Mrs. McMath and Peggy, who stood with him for a series of pictures.

The crowd cheered while the girl was on deck. She laughed and cried, but submitted to four or five minutes of photographing before she suddenly turned to her mother and let her head drop on her shoulder.

"It's all right now, dear," said Mrs. McMath. Then she added, to photographers: "I think that will have to be all." She retired to the cabin of the training ship, where she was joined presently by her husband, Gen. Needham and the investigators.

Peggy Tells Her Story.

At 10:55 p. m. Mrs. McMath and Peggy, accompanied by state troopers, left Woods Hole in Mrs. McMath's car and started back to Harwich. Peggy had told her story and her mother was eager to put her to bed.

The others at Woods Hole were held for further questioning, and a large crowd remainded gathered around the coast guard base.

AUTO DEATH QUIZ REVEALS MARINO IS PUBLIC ENEMY

CRIMINAL COURT.

George A. Kranz, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Tony Marino, 40 years old, 1835 South Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, the driver of a car in which a young woman was killed last Sunday, was identified yesterday as Dominick Russo, public enemy and racketeer, in the court of Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky of Cicero.

Charges of reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident were called for hearing against the hoodlum, under the name of Russo, as the result of a collision in which his automobile was involved on Jan. 8 when Mrs. Anna S. Jirgl, 1443 West 18th street, secretary to Frank Petru, president of the Cicero elementary school system was injured.

Use Name Russo as Alias.

Police informed Magistrate Sandusky that Marino, who is recovering in the Garfield Park hospital from injuries suffered in the Sunday crash, sometimes uses the alias of Russo.

Miss Sally Sirus, 19 years old, 2739 West 43d street, was killed in the accident on Sunday when Marino drove his car headlong into a street car at 35th street and 54th avenue, Cicero.

Marino and two other occupants of the car, Nick Carson, 25 years old, 1803 South Grove avenue, Berwyn, and Miss Betty Steilen, 19 years old, 1132 North Darrow avenue, Evanston, were seriously injured.

Granted Ninth Continuance.

Marino has been at liberty in bond of $3,000 in the Jirgl accident case and posted $20,000 bond on the charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Sirus.

Marino, under the name of Russo, had obtained eight continuances in the Jirgl case, which was continued again yesterday until May 19. Marino is known to police as a member of the Capone gang, and his record is dotted with arrests for prohibition violations and other charges.

FIRST WITNESS HEARD IN TRIAL OF GUS WINKLER

A jury to hear charges of carrying concealed weapons against Gus Winkler, north side gang leader, was selected yesterday at the end of a session which lasted all day in Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten's court. Hearing of evidence was started and will be resumed today.

Winkler was arrested April 1 with Benny Goldblatt, paymaster of the gang which Winkler rules.

"I arrested the two men at Grace street and Broadway," testified Sergt. William Drury, the first witness for the state. "The gun on Winkler was cleverly concealed."

CUBA HUNTS U. S. FLYER IN PLOT TO BOMBARD CITY

HAVANA, May 5.—(AP)—An American aviator who saw service in the world war was to have been the keystone of last week's abortive revolutionary plot which was designed to gain control of all the western section of Oriente province. This was learned here today.

Santiago police were reported ready to pay $5,000 for information as to the American's name and his whereabouts.

According to information obtained here, the conspiracy, which failed after 19 persons had been killed, was planned to strike simultaneously in several cities in the east.

Five hundred armed men were to hide in houses in the Sueno section of Santiago, near the Moncada barracks. Another hundred were instructed to go to the local airport at 6:30 a. m., surprise and wipe out the guard stationed there, seize the Pan-American airplane arriving from Guantanamo, and make its pilots and passengers prisoners.

At that point the unidentified American was to have flown the plane over the city with seven men, who were to bombard the barracks, police headquarters, the seat of the provincial government and other public buildings.

Thereupon the 500 armed rebels were to have assaulted the barracks and seize control of the city. Simultaneous assaults were planned at surrounding cities.

Through confusion or loss of courage, only 37 men gathered at the agreed rendezvous, instead of the 500. Believing it impossible to strike an effective blow with so small a number, they sent an automobile speeding out to advise other bands to hold their fire. It was too late. Rebels already had struck at San Luis and other places, and government troops soon routed them.

DESPONDENT, HE SHOOTS SELF.

Homer Rennels, 30 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself in his home at 5833 South La Salle street, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury yesterday. Rennels left a note saying he was despondent. His wife, Helen, left the house shortly before he killed himself on Thursday and is believed to have gone to Boston.

PSEUDO PRIEST IS LINKED WITH MURDER OF GIRL

Gavagan Is Pointed Out by Baggageman.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 5.—[Special.]—Identified by a baggage clerk of the Long Island railroad as the man in priestly garb who was seen with Mary Helen O'Connor, 15 years old, a few days before her mutilated body was found last February at Massapequa, L. I., James Gavagan, a youthful clergyman impersonator, was questioned for hours here tonight by Nassau county authorities seeking a murder confession.

District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards and Police Inspector Harold King flew here from Mineola after Edward F. Majerbom, baggage master and mail messenger at the Jamaica, L. I., station had visited the House of Correction and spent some time gazing at Gavagan. The identification established to Majerbom's satisfaction, Gavagan was removed to the office of Magistrate Thomas A. O'Hara, who only this week sentenced him to serve three months for posing as a priest.

Prosecutor Sees Good Case.

Mr. Edwards, before questioning the prisoner, received the report of investigators who had preceded him here. Declining to make a statement before examining Gavagan, the district attorney said, however, that he "thought we had a good case against him."

Mr. Majerbom looked at the prisoner at noon. He peered intently, but with uncertainty. The man he had in mind, he said, had worn a priest's collar. One was obtained.

Detectives made Gavagan put his foot back and up, as if it were on a rail. The baggage master signaled them to the next room.

Sees Picture in Newspaper.

"That is positively the man I saw with the child five days before her body was found," he told the man. "I saw her picture in the newspapers and then I went to the district attorney and told him I saw her with that man in the railroad station at Jamaica.

"I recall distinctly seeing the man," he continued with a show of emotion, "because he had his foot in that unusual position and was scolding the girl. I thought it was queer for a priest to be standing like that and to be scolding."

The date mentioned by Mr. Majerbom was Jan. 27, the day the girl disappeared.

Jess Morris, 51 years old, 4625 North Racine avenue, was ordered to the Psychopathic hospital yesterday by Municipal Judge Michael G. Kasper. Morris recently made a number of telephone calls to the home of the late William Wrigley Jr.

PICK TWO NEW SQUADS FOR 'REAL' DRIVE ON CHICAGO'S HOODLUMS

Two hoodlum squads were created yesterday by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker and sent out with orders to arrest all known gangsters and other underworld figures. One squad, commanded by Lieut. Arthur Katt, is to work in the daytime, and the second, headed by Sergt. Edward Waller, will tour the city at night.

The detectives were given an office on the third floor of the detective bureau, the names of 75 known police characters, headed by Murray Humphries, and a file containing information about hoodlum haunts.

"Arrest these men every time you see them," Chief Schoemaker ordered the squads, "and we'll hold them until their lawyers free them with writs."

The names of the squad members were announced after an earlier meeting in which Chief Schoemaker criticized the 150 detectives assigned to the bureau for their failure to bring in hoodlums.

"If you don't know the men on this list," he ordered the assembled detectives, "get acquainted with them. I'll move every one of you out of the bureau if we don't get results in this drive."

GUNMEN INVADE HOTEL ON GOLD COAST; GET $895

Four gunmen invaded the lobby of the Ambassador East hotel at 1301 North State street last evening, intimidated a girl cashier, a clerk, a doorman, and a bus boy, and escaped with $895. No guests were nearby at the time.

A fifth man remained outside at the wheel of their car. The four others entering the lobby met William Nesbit, Negro doorman. Two of them menaced him with guns and held him prisoner in a corner.

Two of the robbers, both young, walked swiftly up to Miss Erline Bloom, 4825 Kentucky avenue, the cashier, and Earl Hanlon, the clerk, who were standing behind the desk. A busboy stood nearby. The three employés were brought quickly to attention as two guns were leveled at them.

"Just keep quiet," warned one of the men. His order was obeyed. He then darted behind the desk and emptied a cash drawer of its contents. Just as quickly he left, followed by his companion.

Activity in Service Unions.

Another phase of Humphries' activity—his domination of the so-called 'service unions,' such as the laundry and dye house trades—will also be exposed, it is said. Humphries is now reputed to be boss of the Cleaners and Dyers' Institute, founded and formerly headed by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires of the University of Chicago, and the Chicago Laundry Owners' association. Morris Kaplan and Aaron Sapiro are said to be attorneys for the Laundry Owners' association.

Kaplan drew up the famous Squires agreement, by which the university economist expected to rule the dyeing industry. Dr. Squires failed in that effort, finding the contract legally unenforceable, and is now building up a similar institute among the beauty shop owners.

Sapiro is a former New York lawyer who has spent years organizing such producer groups as the Canadian wheat growers, Kentucky tobacco growers and southern cotton planters. He won wide publicity a few years ago by forcing Henry Ford to abandon his anti-Semitic campaign in the Dearborn Independent.

Assistant Attorney General Salter, on whom the prosecution of the trade and union racketeers will fall, is a former member of the Oklahoma state legislature and former assistant United States attorney at Oklahoma City. He won considerable note in the southwest in 1924 as one of the board of managers for the Oklahoma house of representatives that prosecuted Gov. Jack Walton for misfeasance and ousted him from office.

Affairs of the coal teamsters' local, an affiliate of John Sheridan's outlaw Chicago teamsters' union, were again before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday. Troubles of the coal teamsters' local, to which are attributed five of the eight bombings in the last week, were brought to a head when an insurgent group led by George Roy Baker marched into headquarters at 637 South Ashland avenue and ousted the Sheridan forces, led by Jack Sheridan Jr., and Milton Booth Jr.

No action developed at yesterday's hearing, Judge Lindsay devoting most of the period to criticism of the newspaper reporters, one of whom had pilfered from his chambers a framed certificate of membership in the coal teamsters' local. The case was continued by agreement to May 17, the judge explaining that he needed a rest and was leaving town.

Referring to the certificate, which was returned by mail after being photographed, Judge Lindsay pointed out to opposing counsel in chambers that the certificate was issued when the now embroiled factions were at peace. The certificate, he showed, bore the signatures of Milton Booth Sr., founder of the union, whose son was ousted by the Baker forces, and the signature of James "Lefty" Lynch, who expects to be brought back as business agent if the Baker forces retain control.

Bomb No. 8 of the last week's series burst early yesterday at a restaurant which Mrs. Lillian Waxman expected to open today at 3703 Roosevelt road.

HOLIDAY GROUP NOT SO SURE OF STRIKE SUCCESS

But Organization Work Is Under Way.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Des Moines, Ia., May 5.—[Special.]—To the tune of "O, Them Golden Slippers":

O, that holiday, boys,
O, that holiday, boys,
Holiday, I'se goin' to join,
And fight with all my might.

It was a cheerful, although grimly determined, group of farmers who voted in the convention of the national farm holiday association at the fair grounds yesterday to declare a marketing holiday on May 13 and keep all their produce home until the nation meets their terms.

Not So Sure Now.

But today, as the executive committee of the association surveys the swiftly changing scene here and at Washington, sees the effort being made to raise the wages of the farmers and surveys the hardening military scene here, the strike does not look so simple or sure. In fact, the leaders, including President Milo Reno, did not want it voted yesterday, and action to make it effective is still necessary from the executive committee.

The appearance of a rift between the Wisconsin milk group, headed by Walter Singler, and the cattle and grain men, questioning whether each would stand by the other until victory came, a cloud, which was at once driven from sight by the president, indicates a lack of harmony.

Harry Bragarnick of Milwaukee, who came here to stop the strike and arrange a peace conference, predicts that there will be no strike and that the Singler group cannot control the Wisconsin situation to prevent it from reaching an agreement. There is also a national dairy conference in prospect, which might remove this greatest menace to the cities in the event of the strike vote being made effective.

Face Money Raising Task.

State and county organizations were being set up today, with a two-fold and gigantic task of raising money for a strike fund, also a defense fund for the imprisoned farmers of Le Mars and Denison, and finally the job of getting action on the billion dollar scrip plan which was thrown on the convention by the clever maneuvering of A. C. Townley of Nonpartisan league fame.

The Nebraska Federation of Labor has pledged aid, also the brotherhood of trainmen, but resolutions and words will not help launch a practical scrip plan by which the farmers and city people can work for each other and exchange products. Such a plan is in operation now in many small communities, but this convention proposes to set it up nationally. And they have no money in the treasury. They blithely voted to pay the soldier bonus, but had to be chided by one of their members for failure to pay dues to the association of 50 cents a family.

Leader May Leave Iowa.

They were fond of referring to the "revolution." President Reno, in his address accepting reelection as president, which was given by a shout of acclamation, said he might have to move from Des Moines. The threat in his mind is that of a state-wide martial law. He said he would go to Minnesota, Wisconsin, or South Dakota. The Kankakee group from Illinois promised him coöperation.

These men enjoyed getting together and making themselves a power through speeches and resolutions. They were warning Washington. They would not listen to caution. Impatience carried the day, and they all went home, leaving an impossible task to their leaders.

Farm Bureau Not Interested.

The statement that the holiday association has oragnizations in 22 states may be taken as largely a hope. Its organization is said to represent only one per cent of the Iowa farmers. The farm bureau federation is not interested in this drive and this strike. The Illinois group claimed 10,000 members. Wisconsin had the largest delegation.

All the sympathy of these farmers went out to their neighbors imprisoned by the troops in Le Mars and Denison. There was only a formal word of regret for what happened to Judge Charles C. Bradley. Soldiers will remain in the trouble zone for several days, but it is expected that next week civil trials will begin.

FALLS TO DEATH IN ELEVATOR.

Joseph Von Duetler, 67 years old, 1556 Clybourn avenue, a lamp shade painter, was killed yesterday when he fell down the freight elevator shaft in the building of the Kernes Manufacturing company at 814 Rees avenue, where he was employed.

WALLACE APPOINTS PROF. M. L. WILSON AS U. S. WHEAT DICTATOR

Washington, D. C., May 5.—(AP)—Prof. M. L. Wilson of Montana State college at Bozeman, will direct the program for curtailing production and increasing prices of wheat in the administration of the farm relief bill.

It was learned today that under instructions of Secretary Wallace, Wilson has undertaken a detailed survey of the position of the crop which has been one of his chief interests for a quarter of a century.

Wilson was an author of the domestic allotment plan for the regulation of crop acreages and during the campaign served as one of President Roosevelt's chief agricultural advisers. He is in Washington and has been assigned an office at the department of agriculture.

Wallace contemplates quick action in administering wheat provisions of the bill. A group of representatives of wheat organizations conferred with him today and asked that action on this crop be taken first because its planting is advanced further than any other crop, being now nearly complete.

POLICEMAN KILLS YOUTH WHO TRIES TO FLEE RAIDERS

Robert Korman, 20 years old, of 1857 West Huron street, was shot and killed this morning when he tried to escape from a police squad in front of 2727 North Oak Park avenue, where they had just made a raid. Six other youths were seized, and police later announced they had confessed many robberies, specializing in holding up couples in parked autos.

The detectives, James Smith, William Kolbaum, David Fitzgerald, John De Laurentis, and Martin Kavanaugh of Cragin station, had arrested five of the boys when Korman and James O'Shea, 22 years old, 2608 North 73d court, Elmwood Park, drove up in a cab.

De Laurentis and Kavanaugh seized O'Shea. Korman started to run, drawing a revolver at the same time. Policeman Smith opened fire, killing him with one shot in the back.

Those under arrest besides O'Shea are Stanley Petak, 21 years old, 2121 Augusta street; Harry Solan, 15, 1911 Huron street; Alex Kuzma, 16, 1833 Erie street; Andrew Parnorwy, 17, 2155 Addison street, and Clarence Murray, 1803 Grand avenue. Police found about $500 in jewelry in the Oak Park avenue house. The place had been rented by Korman.

Woman Found Dead in Room of Loop Hotel

A woman registered as Mrs. M. Mason of Kansas City, Mo., was found dead in bed in her room at the Saratoga hotel, 27 South Dearborn street, last night. She was about 45 years old. Death probably resulted from natural causes, police said.

Milkmen Decide to Fight "Own Battles."

Most of the agricultural experts who have been studying plans for a national farm strike, decided upon at Des Moines, Ia., were of the opinion yesterday that no serious shortage of foodstuffs is imminent in Chicago.

W. H. Hall of the federal department of agriculture, in charge of the reports on the local fruit and vegetable market, said there were no items of this nature which appeared to be at all scarce and that, in his belief, nothing less than a national tieup would cripple distribution here.

Milkmen Fight Own Battles.

It was indicated that no milk strike was planned at present. Don Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, whose 18,000 members supply Chicago with milk and cream, said:

"The association runs its own business. We are striving to get better prices through a sound and legitimate program, and we are against outsider groups trying to tell us what to do. Our members now are paid only $1.45 a hundred pounds and we started negotiations ten days ago for an increase. Until these negotiations are settled, under the arbitration clause of our agreement, we shall continue to deliver milk to dealers."

Mr. Geyer added that he had confidence in the fairness of Chicago consumers, and pointed out that the farmers had accepted the greater part of the cuts that have brought milk to 9 cents a quart.

O'Neal Predicts Failure.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, asserted in Chicago last night he does not believe the farm strike will assume large proportions. Such a strike, he added, would not materially improve farm prices.

"Our organization," said O'Neal, "has no connection with the Holiday association. We oppose all resorts to lawlessness and are convinced that the solution of the farm problem lies not in a temporary strike but in a sound national policy. We are now carrying forward the establishment of such a policy in Washington.

This farm leader declared that a survey showed less than 30 per cent of Iowa farmers in favor of the holiday and only a small fraction of the farmers in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin would support it.

HI-JACKERS GET 3 TRUCK LOADS OF FARM PRODUCE

Three trucks carrying farm products were hijacked yesterday, two on the south side and one outside the northwest city limits. In the latter holdup Dean Pittinger, 35 years old, driver of a truck carrying 20,000 pounds of butter from Mason City, Ia., and his helper, Leonard Kenney, 21 years old, both of Mason City, were forced from the truck at Mannheim road and North avenue by four men, one armed with a machine gun.

A truck belonging to the Meadowgold Butter company, 1526 South State street, was taken while the driver was making a delivery at East 47th street and Vincennes avenue. The truck contained $1,000 worth of butter.

The third truck belonged to the Harlow Produce company, 7022 South State street, and contained vegetables valued at $300.

Mr. Pegler Wonders About Inflation and the "Rest" Plan for the Farmers

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—There are several homely little problems suggested by the deflation of the dollar to which none of my friends in Washington has been able to give me any satisfactory solution, although some of them have been attending hearings and debates for months and have given profound study to Prof. Mordecai Ezekiel's learned proposition of the little black ball suspended above the line of the curve, or trend.

Chief among them is this:

If I am broke at this time and the dollar is reduced by half, does that mean that I am 50 per cent less broke than I was, because the dollar is that much easier to get, or 50 per cent broker because, when I do get it, it will take twice as much to buy what I could buy now for one buck if I had the buck?

And then, if the government prints a lot of fresh money, how do I go about getting some of it, assuming that I am a shoemaker and have no job?

3 Billion in Fresh Money.

I understand that they are going to shove out about 3 billion dollars' worth of this fresh money and call in 3 billion dollars' worth of bonds. The bonds bear interest, but the money won't, so it seems a smart idea, saving some per cent on 3 billion dollars every year. But, hell, mister, I haven't got any bonds, so how does this unbreak me?

And does this mean that I wind up just where I was all the time or am I crazy?

And another thing:

It seems that they are fixing to pay the farmer a bonus for raising less hay, potatoes, and beans, because he has been producing too much hay, potatoes, and beans. This made them so cheap that he couldn't turn a profit. Now the cheap dollar will raise the prices somewhat and the shortage caused by the reduction of acreage will increase them some more. And the farmer, with his high prices and his bonus for resting will be much better off except that I am the one who is supposed to buy his stuff, and if I am still broke there is just no sale.

Bonus for Resting.

I suppose that with this bonus which he will be paid for resting the farmer will presently start buying some shoes and plows and separators, and that this will revive business and gradually restore my job in the shoe factory.

But why give the farmer a bonus for resting, and not me? If the idea is just to revive business, why not revive it both ways against the middle, or let me and the farmer toss a coin if he can find one [I told you I was broke] to decide which one gets the bonus and start the revival? He is in a better position to wait than I am.

If they gave me a bonus for resting I would start buying a lot of eggs and rhubarb and parsley and all such things as farmers grow and revive their business for them. Broke as he is, the farmer can always go out in the yard, fling a few handfuls of oatmeal or cornflakes on the ground and raise his eating, anyway, because nature is wonderful that way.

But me, I can't raise my eating in my window box or geranium pot and I can't even make my own shoes, because all I do when I am working is to punch eyeholes. You can't keep your feet warm and dry and avoid stonebruises wearing nothing but the eyeholes.

Good Refrainer, Too.

You cannot imagine how many eyeholes I would refrain from punching if the government would pay me a modest bonus of, say, one cent a dozen. I would refrain from punching at least ten dollars' worth on average days and maybe twice that many when I happened to be feeling right. I would create the greatest eyehole shortage that the world has ever known on very attractive terms.

In all this hollering about the poor but honest farmer's plight I have never heard any one talk back to him with a little honest criticism that might be good for his soul—not that I have any interest in the state of his soul. I am a fellow, we will say, who aims to mind my own business and let the farmer wrestle it out with his own conscience.

I never had any feeling about farmers one way or another until just recently when it began to strike me that the farmers had a lot of time on their hands to meddle with my habits.

Prohibition came from the farmers and cost enough money in expenditure and loss of revenue to buy the country out of pawn today. And all the ornery, meddlesome little laws which used to prevent people from going to ball games on Sundays in New York and which still keep them out of the ball yards and even the movies in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and a lot of other cities are farmers' laws. Why doesn't the farmer learn to mind his own business?

When Is a Gamble?

I wonder also if the farmer didn't overspread himself during the boom, buying too much land and paying too much per acre, with the idea that the land would go on up and up and some one would come along and pay him a profit that would make him rich.

Now the government says he must not be allowed to lose his farm. When I bought a couple of shares of stock at $215 hoping to get rich, and it dropped to thirty cents, the government didn't say I must not be allowed to lose my stock. And I didn't try to lynch the judge.

Well, I hope that out of this will come an understanding that if I want to take a few drams that is my business and no affair of some hay shaker out in Nebraska, just as I make no objection, although I have my private opinions, when farmers sit beneath some wild eyed ignoramus in a rural grove and holler at the moon.

But I sincerely wish that our statesmen had thought of me, too, when they were fixing to pay the farmers not to bear down. A bonus for the eyeholes that I haven't punched the last three years would buy me a few acres where I could settle down and raise my own eating and never have to worry about money any more.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's version of his discussion with President Roosevelt on reduction of the war debts created a good deal of a sensation in official Washington tonight.

The British prime minister was quoted as saying in a radio speech that he and Mr. Roosevelt were in agreement that the world economic conference which is to meet in London June 12 will not be a success unless a settlement of the war debts is reached at the same time.

When the quotation was brought to the attention of President Roosevelt he declined to comment on it. Other administration officials who were in close touch with the White House conversations expressed surprise. They pointed out that Mr. MacDonald's utterance represented the British, but not the American viewpoint.

It was British Argument.

The British delegation made much of the argument that nothing effective could be done toward the economic rehabilitation of the world without scaling down the war debts. But Mr. Roosevelt, it was stated, had not assented to this view.

The theory was also put forward that the MacDonald statement is just a part of the British maneuvers, comparable to the original refusal of the British government to discuss economic concessions, Neville Chamberlain, the chancellor of the exchequer, asserting that Britain would never swap economic concessions for debts. Downing street, however, retreated from this position and Mr. MacDonald came to Washington to discuss economic concessions with Mr. Roosevelt.

Now it is suggested that the British eventually will recede from the stand that a debt settlement must be reached concurrently with such agreements as are made at the London economic conference. The President, it was explained, is adhering steadfastly to his refusal to throw the debts into the economic conference.

Plans Parallel Discussions.

He contemplates that the debt negotiations and the economic conference negotiations will proceed on parallel lines at London without becoming intermingled. The Roosevelt strategy is to give the debtor governments to understand that there is not a chance of getting the debts scaled down unless the American people are convinced such is to their interest and that only a successful issue of the economic conference giving promise of restored foreign markets can possibly persuade the American people that it would be good business to reduce the debts.

The President is not committing himself to a revision of the debts, his closest advisers assert, but is bearing it in upon the debtors that revision will not even be considered unless they join with the United States in economic conference agreements stabilizing currencies and removing tariff and other obstructions to international trade.

Mr. Roosevelt, according to this presentation of the matter, has no intention of taking a position on debt revision until after the conclusion of the economic conference. In the joint communique issued by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. MacDonald it was stated that the debt negotiations would be continued in Washington and London. According to the White House they have not been resumed.

Anxious for Success.

A common official view here is that Mr. MacDonald, who conceived the idea of a world economic conference and who will be its chairman, will move heaven and earth to make it a success. Mr. MacDonald is said to have proposed the conference because of the realization that if the conditions that forced Britain off the gold standard are to be perpetuated Britain will sink to a third or fourth rate power.

A different view is that the British are now manifesting a disposition to get from under the responsibility for carrying the conference to a successful issue. From British sources emanates the suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt having taken the initiative in bringing about preliminary conversations in Washington it is now up to Mr. Roosevelt to make the conference a success.

Interesting in this connection are the apprehensions one hears that the Roosevelt administration is being maneuvered into a tight corner from which it will be difficult to emerge with anything to show for its pains without giving away Uncle Sam's shirt. Europe, it is suggested, will endeavor to make Mr. Roosevelt pay roundly for concessions to the economic program which he hopes to carry through as a part of his new deal.

The President expects to complete the selection of members of the delegation within the next fortnight. In addition to Mr. Hull the members so far selected are former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic presidential candidate in 1920, and Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state. Henry Morgenthau Sr. also is to have a place on the delegation if he concludes the wheat conference at Geneva in time to go to London. Among others under consideration is Ralph W. Morrison, San Antonio, Tex., financier and stock man, who was a heavy contributor to the Roosevelt campaign fund.

France Gets Note from U. S.

PARIS, May 6 [Saturday].—(AP)—A note from Washington concerning "financial matters" was reported in government quarters early today to have arrived at the foreign office shortly before the return of former Premier Herriot to Paris from his conversations with President Roosevelt.

Premier Daladier and the cabinet members greeted Herriot at the station at 12:45 a. m. while a crowd of several hundred cheered. The premier and Herriot rode away conversing. Herriot appeared in good spirits and optimistic concerning the results of his talks with President Roosevelt.

Officials declined to reveal whether the American communication touched on war debts, stabilization of gold, or the customs truce suggested by the United States.

Village of Forest View Finds Out Who's President

The question of "who is president" of the village of Forest View, just south of Stickney, was amicably settled last night when Frank Rozohn, elected by 53 votes last month, moved into the president's chair. Mr. Rozohn attempted to occupy the same chair last Monday night, but James Rychly, whom he defeated, disputed his claims and the president elect withdrew. Last night Rozohn took the president's chair and let it be known that if Rychly tried to oust him Mr. Rychly would be removed very quickly. This apparently settled the matter, for Rychly made no effort to interfere.

34 DEAD, SCORES ARE INJURED BY ALABAMA STORM

Birmingham, Ala., May 5.—[Special.]—Death toll of a tornado that swept three Alabama counties early today was 34. Meanwhile news came of a storm at Belton, S. C., this afternoon in which 7 were killed, many others were injured, and over 50 families were made homeless.

The tornado death toll in the south since mid-March mounted to more than 180 with the storms today.

The casualties in three communities in Alabama were: Helena, 11; Brent, 7; Demopolis, 4. Helena, a village of 700 population, was hardest hit by the twister, which destroyed virtually every building in the town.

More than 100 persons were injured and two-thirds of the population was left homeless by the storm. A box car was lifted from the rails by the force of the wind and driven against a locomotive parked on a siding.

At Demopolis, where 50 Negro houses were leveled, the twister left a litter of débris half a mile wide. The mining community of Coalmont, four miles from Helena, was said to have been wiped out by the wind.

Seven Killed, Scores Hurt.

Anderson, S. C., May 5.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed, scores were injured, and approximately sixty families were made homeless by a tornado which swept through this section today, doing its heaviest damage in the Belton area, where preliminary estimates placed the financial loss at more than $500,000.

BRITISH ENVOY TO MOSCOW TO BE REPLACED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 5. — Sir Esmond Ovey, British ambassador to Moscow, will not return to his post. Walter Strang, counselor of the embassy, will continue as chargé d'affaires until a permanent arrangement is made, it was stated authoritatively today.

Sir Esmond is blamed in some circles for clumsy handling of the case of the six British engineers accused of espionage and sabotage, two of whom were convicted and still are in a soviet prison.

Prof. Viner Says Runaway Can Be Avoided.

Under a policy of controlled inflation the government should set a definite limit to the upward swing, at which point the brakes should be slammed on to insure it from becoming a runaway, according to Jacob Viner, professor of economics at the University of Chicago.

Addressing the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at a Palmer house luncheon yesterday, Dr. Viner held that a rise in wage scales would retard recovery, that inflation, meaning a rise in general price levels, after all depends upon the American public, and that one basic need is for the federal government to keep trimming its expenditures.

"The farm relief bill," said Dr. Viner, "may be a detriment because it would not increase prices on the average. It increases farm prices, but not other prices.

Control to Require Courage.

"One objection raised against inflation is that it cannot be controlled and that it would result in a breakdown. There is no historical basis for this. The danger arises when government has a tremendous deficit. A government which must resort to the printing press has surrendered control of inflation. It is much more urgent that government watch expenditures than anything else. If the government is to do its share in regulating inflation, it must have resources.

"The real difficulty in control is psychological. It would require a strong will power to stand against popular enthusiasm and check a boom.

"I'm not sure whether the federal government has settled on the control it expects to use, but it has favored control. In my opinion, the government should make some definite limit to which inflation should go, so that it would know when the brakes are to be applied. There is gold enough in the world to make possible a price level higher than that of 1929, but an attempt to restore that would be wrong.

Holds 20 Per Cent Gain Abundant.

"An increase of 10 to 15 per cent would be sufficient, and an increase of 20 per cent would be absolutely abundant and would restore employment to productive enterprises. A rise above 20 per cent would be dangerous. The farm bill would make possible a 70 per cent to 100 per cent rise—I think it would be dangerous.

"President Green of the American Federation of Labor takes the position that as prices rise wages should rise. I see that President Roosevelt urges that policy. I can interpret that proposition on the assumption that President Roosevelt may think employers may try to lower wages, or that he does not expect them to follow the proposal.

"The only guarantee an increase of wages offers is that you would increase the volume of idleness. To raise any element in the cost structure is an insane move if you care for the economic machine. It is a sure way towards communism.

Prosperity First Objective.

"There is a propaganda that is more dangerous than that of the communists. The proposals are well intended; they come from the heart, but we need proposals from another part of the psychological structure. To urge price inflation on one hand and to urge that costs be inflated on the other would be to retard recovery. And the major obligation is to restore prosperity to the American people."

As to the drop of the dollar in foreign exchange since America "went off the gold standard," Mr. Viner remarked:

"I think that exchange depreciation is a regrettable development, as it tends to deflate the rest of the world and does not tend to help us. How can you argue that defaults by foreign nations are immoral and that repudiations and defaults by ourselves are moral?"

Trust Fixes Cement Prices Charge of Secretary Ickes

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5. — [Special.] — Action to defeat a "cement trust" was ordered today by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, who charged a conspiracy to hold up the government itself.

Declaring that a combine of cement companies is boosting prices on government projects, even to the point of endangering the public works program for unemployment relief, Secretary Ickes presented evidence to the federal trade commission in the first step of a general investigation of the cement industry.

Ten Bids All Alike.

The secretary's action was taken after his department had advertised for bids for 400,000 barrels of cement for use in the construction of Boulder dam and had received 10 offers, from 10 separate companies, all at the same price of $1.29 per barrel.

This price, Mr. Ickes charged, is 20 cents a barrel higher than was asked two months ago. All the bids, he said, were uniform, the basic price of the cement being the same, with slight variations in the total bids resulting from differing transportation costs, which depended upon the distance the plants were away from the dam site.

Holding that quite obviously these identical bids were the result of a price fixing agreement by the cement companies, Secretary Ickes announced that, rather than pay such a price, the government would seek another means of obtaining cement, even if it had to go into the cement business.

"Raising the price of cement at a time like this, when the government is striving to alleviate unemployment by building public works, most of which will require cement in their construction, must have a deterrent effect on the government program," Mr. Ickes said. "It should be borne in mind that an increase in the price of materials will take just that much away from funds made available for labor.

Cites Illinois Situation.

"A similar situation arose in Illinois, when the governor was unable to get fair bidding for cement to be used in public construction of roads. He rejected bids three times, but they always were resubmitted at the same price.

"Gov. Horner has considered the building of a state plant to make its own cement. The government has also under consideration, now, the building of plants to supply cement for Boulder Dam.

"A total of 3½ million barrels of cement will be required for that dam and we will not pay exorbitant prices for it. It may be necessary for us to contract with one company, outside the cement trust, to furnish all the material we need, at a fair market price."

RISE OF HITLER DRAMA OF NATION BEATEN IN WAR

Germans View Him as Liberator.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRANKFORT-AM-MAIN, Germany, April 25.—[By Mail.]—To understand the National Socialist revolution, its incredible triumph and its future evolution, you have to understand Germany—the unknown Germany which is so obvious that most travelers dismiss it as an erroneous first impression.

Shrewd observers of German politics in Berlin have explained the dynamism of Hitlerism by pointing out that it is a political movement with many features of a crusade. This observer, who knows nothing of the technical intricacies of German politics, who has never stood close to the center, and who has merely watched the revolution unfold in the country as a particularly diligent tourist, would be more inclined to think of it as a crusade with many features of a political movement. This is probably an exaggeration, but the important thing is that in this country you need a telescope as well as a miscroscope.

Calls for Metaphysics.

Actually, trying to analyze Hitlerism is like trying to analyze living matter in a chemical laboratory—you can list all the elements that go into it, even follow most of their combinations, but to try to explain the impulse you must dive into metaphysics.

It is easy to list the external characteristics of Hitlerism and the factors in the success of Adolf Hitler's revolution.

Probably not enough attention has been paid to the negative factors. A year and a half ago when the then chancellor, Dr. Heinrich Bruening, had to inaugurate the régime of decree laws because no permanent majority could be realized in the reichstag, parliamentary democracy was moribund in Germany. The country was then in a state where, in a Latin-American republic, a military camarilla would have taken over the government.

Discipline Big Reason.

The paradox of a succession of personal dictators ruling within the framework of a democratic constitution was possible only because of two reasons. One was the intense sense of discipline of the German people. The other was the admirable Prussian civil service system built up by Bismarck and preserved intact by the post-war Social-Democratic governments.

It was such a foolproof masterpiece of machinery that it could keep on running smoothly with a bad driver at the wheel or without any driver at all. [Incidentally it was the possession of this machine which enabled the Nazis to carry out a technically flawless revolution. Since the machine had always remained loyal to the nationalist-monarchist junker caste, from which it was largely recruited, it was necessary for the Nazis to carry the Nationalists to power with them.]

No metaphysics is necessary to explain the debacle of parliamentary government in Germany. Under the kaisers the German people were given some directed instruction in self-government, but were never allowed to make a solo flight. Turning them loose to run a democracy in post-war Europe was like letting a ground novice make a trans-Atlantic flight.

Politically Immature.

It is hard to think of a people as technically and culturally advanced as the Germans being as politically immature as, say, the Guatemalans, but many intelligent Germans have assured me this is no exaggeration. It is banal to say that Germans must have some one to obey. The point is, that being born soldiers they will only obey some one who knows how to command. Authority is the weak point of all democracies, particularly those dominated by Socialists.

Lacking such authority, German politics was just one long dog fight in which personal, sectional, corporative and sectarian interests battled against each other with no regard for the superior interest of the commonwealth.

The mere existence of a religious party like the Catholic Center, of a regional party like the Bavarian People's party, of class parties like the Socialists and communists, could be regarded as a pathological symptom.

Myriad of Parties.

Add to that the fact that the republic tolerated from the beginning political parties openly committed to its destruction—communists, monarchists, Nazis—and supported by illegal armies. But one bit of statistics tells the whole story—in some of the later pre-revolutionary elections as many as 35 parties were represented at the polls.

But this disintegration of the German republic only brought on a pre-revolutionary state which might have led to a communist or monarchist putsch as well as a Nazi one. Unemployment and the general economic misery only acted as a catalyzer and did not give a trend to the revolution.

The oppression of the German people by the peace treaties was likewise a powerful catalyzer of revolutionary sentiment—the most powerful of all. But there one gets closer to the heart of the mystery, because in practice it does not seem to have favored the Nationalist cause as much as the National Socialist cause. It is hard for a foreigner to understand the depth of the bitterness which the war has left in German hearts.

Want Colonies Returned.

They want their lost colonies back, naturally. The Polish corridor drives them wild, as it would any people. They want their army and navy, for security and perhaps for conquest, but above all for themselves. No one can spend a week in Germany without realizing how deeply military is the feeling of the people, how essentially soldierly their outlook on all points, to say nothing of their naive and proverbial delight in brass buttons and brass bands. To be deprived of an army is a badge of shame.

But it is imponderables that oppress them most. One is the "war-guilt lie"—they never refer to it any other way. Another is the feeling that other nations may believe that their defeat and present submission to the Versailles restrictions is due to cowardice.

Above all the sting of wartime propaganda is still rankling in the German flesh. The very word has a mystic significance which can't be analyzed. It is a sort of cabalistic curse to them. To other peoples propaganda is just another material of war, to be slung at the enemy or received from him like bullets or poison gas.

To the Germans it is an unclean witch's concoction, which destroys the victim in this world and the next.

The difference in the attitude of the Nazis and of the Nationalists toward the "Versailles chains" is illuminating. The Nationalist program is rational. In brief it is to restore to Germany everything she lost during the war. This is implied in the Hitler program, but the emphasis is laid on the imponderables.

The Nationalists speak of colonies and corridors. Hitlerism says, "Everything which has been German shall be German." Hitler promises his followers freedom, glory, the right to assert their courage, the opportunity of carrying out their historic mission as Germans and Aryans. It sounds threatening and vague. It sounds like demagogic oratory designed to win votes without committing the government to anything definite. It is not.

A Prayer and a Program.

One is the call of a conclave of rulers and nobles to conquer territorial and commercial advantages in the eastern Mediterranean. The other is the call of Peter the Hermit to free the tomb of Christ from the infidels. The difference is between a prayer and a program. In last analysis there is a certain amount of mysticism behind the Nationalist program. But the Hitlerite prayer expresses it better.

Somewhat the same distinction in emphasis is apparent in the policy of the two allies on the unification of the reich. The Nationalists view this as a problem in practical politics, the centralization of power in Berlin under a strong imperial government symbolized by a kaiser. With Hitler this centralization of power is the consequence of the racialist doctrine of the unity of the German race.

"All Germans are Germans, there are no Germans but Germans, and Hitler is their prophet," is the sense of it.

Racialism Cohesive Force.

Hitler has discovered that racialism—which existed in Germany before the war but was only one phase of German kultur—is a stronger cohesive force than economic or political interests. The Nationalists, and even the Bruening government, hoped to persuade the German states to merge their divergent interests in the cause of their greater common interest. Hitler made internal boundary lines and local autonomy an absurdity by placing the emphasis on the underlying racial tie that binds all Germans together, and by making this doctrine the keystone of his political system, even if he is a former citizen of Austria.

In this case there is a rational, as well as a mystic, base to Hitler's racialism. Germany for centuries was split up into hundreds of petty states constantly warring with each other and intriguing with foreign nations. The bond of race was the only bond between them. Only by emphasizing it again and again, even to the point of absurdity, could the internal boundaries and the internecine struggles be ended. Hitler apparently sensed or valued at its true importance the historic evolution towards closer unity going on in all German hearts and anticipated its logical conclusion by a few years.

If you study Hitler's speeches and the speeches of his followers—but particularly his own—your first impression is of turgid oratory and cheap demagogy. Above all, you are impressed by its vagueness.

Finds Right Medicine.

If you analyze it more closely you come to the conclusion, almost paradoxical, that Hitler has found the right medicine for the German people. He will free the nation, if only by the hypnotism of the inferiority complex the war has left it. He has a conception of national unity which is mystic in its origin but highly practical in its fruits.

In the economic and social fields the program of the new government seems as vague as everywhere else. Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, recently issued an emphatic reminder to Hitler's followers that the revolution was socialist as well as national.

What form its socialism will take is hard to predict. Probably it will take many forms before reaching a definite one. The important thing is that a keen sense of social justice is one of the German heritages. It was no accident that Marx was a German and even Bismarck dabbled in paternalistic legislation for social betterment. Leaving aside the question of private property, bona fide socialism is abhorrent to the Nazis because it is pacifist and international, also because it is materialistic and equalitarian.

Nazi socialism must be national militant, mystic and based on the principle of obedience to dynamic leadership.

Prominent Nazis say the revolution will not be complete until they have got rid of their Nationalist allies. The Hohenzollerns and the other princes may come back, but prewar kaiserism is dead.

BERLIN SUBMITS BID FOR RENEWAL OF NAVAL POWER

GENEVA, May 5.—(AP)—Amendments to the British proposals on naval armaments were introduced by Germany today at the world disarmament conference in terms which created the impression that the Hitler government expects to participate in the projected conference of great naval powers in 1935. Germany was not represented at the naval conference of 1930.

"Germany has not abandoned hope that the conference will decide on the complete abolition of submarines," the German amendments set forth.

"If, however, it is decided that submarines cannot be renounced for national defense, the German delegation reserves the right to return to this question at a later date."

This is regarded by other delegations as implying that Germany is prepared to press for the right to build and possess naval weapons equal to any.

GERMANY BANS NEW STORES TO AID SHOP OWNERS

New Law Eases Rivalry Among Merchants.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 5.—German shopowners are protected against further competition by a decree law issued tonight by Chancellor Hitler's government. The law prohibits the opening of new shops during the next six months or until the government has decided on final business regulations.

Competition among shopowners also is eased by another law which restricts the issuance of premiums or gifts to purchasers.

Jews Further Restricted.

A third law provides that the nomination of tax advisers shall be guided by the same principles governing the appointment of civil servants, thus restricting the participation of Jews.

Meanwhile the alliance between the Nazis and Nationalists appears to be approaching an end. Political observers are predicting that Werner Willikens, Nazi president of the Farmers' union, will be appointed Prussian minister of agriculture to succeed Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist party leader. Dr. Hugenberg is minister of agriculture and economics in both the reich and Prussian cabinets.

Nationalists Are Angry.

The Nationalist Deutsche Zeitung emphasizes that the Nationalists agreed with the Nazis to constitute the reich cabinet solely on the understanding that these four ministries were to be centralized in one hand. If the Prussian ministry of agriculture is taken away from Dr. Hugenberg, the newspaper declares, he will resign from Hitler's cabinet, "especially in view of the great difficulties of his position owing to repeated reports that Nationalists are being subjected to unfriendly slights throughout the country."

It was announced today that 187 of Berlin's 2,400 Jewish lawyers will be permitted to practie after Hans Kerrl, Nazi speaker of the Prussian diet, has enforced regulations adding new teeth to Hitler's decrees against Jewish professional men.

The Jewish lawyers have protested.

The Catholic Centrist party today announced the resignation of Ludwig Kaas, party chairman. It is expected that a man who sympathizes with the Hitler revolution will succeed him.

BERLIN EXTENDS "PEACE" PACT WITH MOSCOW

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today an exchange of ratifications had taken place yesterday between Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs, and Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen of Germany in prolongation of the Berlin treaty of 1926 and the soviet-German conciliation agreement of 1929. The extension is for an indefinite period, but can be denounced by either party on one year's notice.

A communique announcing the exchange said:

"In interest of the relationship of both countries, as well as in the interests of general peace, it is necessary to observe with special satisfaction the Berlin treaty, which, together with the Rapallo treaty, forms the basis for soviet-German relationships and now continues effective."

PAY TAXES FIRST TO BE EDICT IN RECEIVERSHIPS

Circuit Court to Adopt 75 Per Cent Rule.

A court ruling requiring all receivers of income producing properties to turn over 75 per cent of the monthly net operating income for the payment of delinquent taxes will probably be adopted at a special meeting of Circuit court judges next Monday, it was learned yesterday.

The plan, it was revealed, has been approved by the chancellors of the court. Their recommendations will be presented to the courts as a whole at the meeting and no opposition is expected.

The new rule has been emphatically indorsed by tax experts who have been struggling with the problem of enforcing the payment of back taxes. A number of judges, acting individually, have already announced that receivers they appoint for properties must pay delinquent taxes or be dismissed.

Payments Are Increasing.

Manwhile payment of delinquent taxes to County Treasurer McDonough continued on an increasing scale as a result of his campaign to proceed against tax delinquent properties under the Skarda act which permits him to take such properties into receivership and collect the income for the payment of back taxes.

Thus far the mere announcement of the filing of a county receivership suit has been enough to bring attorneys hurrying to the county treasurer with cash for payment of back taxes. The reason for the speedy response is that many leases provide for a cancellation in case of receivership and the owners of the property face heavy losses if leases are broken in this manner.

A payment of $100,000 in delinquent taxes was made on the Michigan-Lake building yesterday by attorneys representing a bondholders' committee. Of this amount $39,000 was paid as the first installment of the 1931 taxes and the remaining $61,000 was applied against delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes, totaling $237,199.

$64,000 to Be Put in Escrow.

Attorney Lester L. Falk, representing the 208 South La Salle street building, agreed to put $64,000 in escrow for the county treasurer pending a decision in the County court on objections against the assessment on the building.

Sol H. Goldberg, lessee of the Loop End building, 177 North State street, refused to pay delinquent taxes on his property and the suit against him will probably be the first court test of the Skarda act. Attorney Thomas D. Nash, representing the treasurer, said he would ask that the suit be heard next Monday.

Other Suits Filed.

Suits seeking the appointment of a county receiver were filed yesterday against the Wells-Van Buren building, 200 West Van Buren street, and the 57 East Adams street building. Taxes totaling $90,755 for 1928, 1929, and 1930 are due upon the two buildings.

Tax collections yesterday totaled $1,711,514, a substantial increase over the usual collections at this time. Of that total 1928 taxes paid totaled $15,682, 1929 taxes were $30,335, 1930 taxes were $99,961, and 1931 taxes were $1,565,536.

11 More Judges Accept Pay Cut but Lyle Is Against It

Eleven more judges of the Municipal court yesterday declared themselves willing to accept the 48 day pay cut provided by the city council pending passage of the 1933 city budget. The standing to date is 24 favoring the cut, 3 opposed, 2 noncommittal, and 7 not yet declared.

Judge John H. Lyle yesterday voiced himself against the reduction. He said he was elected to receive a stated salary and that his full salary is what he wants and what he expects to get. Others opposing the cut are Judges Edgar A. Jonas and Edward B. Casey.

The latter have said they will accept the cut on the condition that Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby reduces the expenses of his office, which has increased from $31,000 to $76,000 during his tenure. In this demand for a cut in office expenses Judges Casey and Jonas were joined by Judge John J. Lupe.

Lupe to Accept Cut.

For this reason Judge Lupe was previously listed as an opponent of the cut. He explained yesterday that he is not willing to go as far as Judges Casey and Jonas, but will accept the cut, "though I am vigorously against the budget for the chief justice's office."

Other judges commented as follows:

J. WILLIAM BROOKS—I took the cut last year and will again.

GIBSON E. GORMAN—We judges are no different than any one else. I intend to take the cut.

JOSEPH A. GRABER—The judges will go along, I am sure. I will.

HAROLD P. O'CONNELL—I am willing to go along.

EUGENE HOLLAND—We judges will have to take whatever cut the city council fixes.

JOHN J. ROONEY—I took the cut of 48 days last year and will continue to do so as long as the city is in financial difficulty.

Against Permanent Cut.

ROBERT JEROME DUNNE—I am willing to accept the salary reduction, but I am not willing to consent to a permanent reduction after the financial distress is over.

WILLIAM E. HELANDER — The city council has not yet determined what the cut shall be. I took the cut last year and am willing to take the same cut this year.

FREDERICK W. ELLIOTT—I took the cut last year and am willing to do my bit this year.

LEON EDELMAN—If the voice of the people through the city council provides for a cut in my salary, I am willing to abide by that voice.

EDWARD S. SCHEFFLER—I am with the majority of judges in willingness to take the cut. We cannot ignore the financial crisis.

ONLY $276,000 NEEDED TO MEET SCHOOL PAY ROLL

$3,124,000 on Hand for Salaries.

Cash for the September pay roll of 14,000 teachers and 4,000 other school employés yesterday reached $3,124,000, or within $276,000 of the amount needed. Among the receipts was a check for $48,000 for tax anticipation warrants from H. R. Levy, president of the Studebaker Sales corporation, to Mayor Kelly.

Mr. Levy explained to the mayor that 120 of his employés, who have children in school, have purchased $400 worth of warrants each, under a plan by which they will pay their employer over a period of time.

"I am pleased with the swift action of the legislature in passing bills to collect taxes," said Mayor Kelly, after thanking Mr. Levy, "and believe the legislature really wants to help Chicago out of the muddle. This legislation will go a long way toward financing the pay rolls of school teachers and other employés."

$2,306,000 Warrants Sold.

The committee headed by Attorney Henry P. Chandler, conducting a drive to sell warrants, announced that a total of $2,306,000 worth had been sold. Mr. Chandler declared other sales would come in today and Monday.

In addition to the $2,306,000 from the Chandler committee and $48,000 from the Studebaker corporation, there is $750,000 from the state distributive fund. This will be made available for pay roll purposes at a special meeting of the board of education Monday. The board has $20,000 cash on hand for the pay roll, which is $3,400,000 for last September.

Meanwhile the department heads of the school system are working on the savings that would result from a sixteen point economy program broached by Orville J. Taylor, president of the school board, earlier in the week.

$1,139,000 Saving Yearly.

John Howatt, chief engineer for the system, announced that $1,139,000 could be saved yearly by returning to the old contract system for engineering and janitorial services. Under the former plan, an engineer was paid $105 per 1,000 square feet of space in the high schools and $90 to $96 per 1,000 square feet in the elementary school buildings. Out of this the engineer would hire his own help.

Allentown, Pa., May 5.—(AP)—The wife of Gov. Gifford Pinchot today joined picket lines of young textile strikers in protest against low wages and long hours for child labor in Pennsylvania mills.

Mrs. Pinchot marched for two hours along the streets of Northampton and Allentown with boys and girls who had walked out of shirt factories because, they charged, they were paid as little as 57 cents a week.

Attired in red and carrying a placard bearing the word, "striker," she denounced underpayment of workers as "one of the factors in continuing the depression" and urged elimination of "sweatshop" conditions.

She waved her hat to the several hundred "child strikers" who followed and thronged about her. Among them were girls who told her last night they had lost their factory jobs because they resented advances of their "bosses."

As Mrs. Pinchot voiced her colorful protest, the state's general assembly at Harrisburg, in the closing hours of its session, adopted a resolution for a legislative investigation into conditions under which children are employed in Pennsylvania industries.

The resolution described wage and working conditions as "intolerable" and asserted that because families of many of the low paid employés were on state relief rolls, the jobless aid money was, in effect, being "used to subsidize sweatshops."

PEDDLER KILLS A BANDIT AFTER BROTHER IS SHOT

Charles Johnson, 30 years old, 2411 West Lake street, a Negro bandit, was shot and killed yesterday by Tony Cozzi, 25 years old, 2708 Arthington street, during a robbery in the offices of the Roosevelt Paper Stock company, 1017 South Fairfield avenue. Cozzi, a peddler, killed the bandit after his brother, James Cozzi, 30 years old, 1011 South Morgan street, had been shot in the shoulder in an attempt to disarm the Negro. Three companions of the slain bandit escaped with $23.

GIRL HAS FIANCE JAILED ON CHARGE OF STEALING RING

Lloyd A. Kingsbury, 48 years old, 3691 North Kedvale avenue, who said he was head of a finance company, was locked up in the Hyde Park police station last night at the request of his fiancée and her best friend. After a cell door had clanged behind him the fiancée, Miss Daisy Davis, 5111 University avenue, announced that the engagement was ended.

Kingsbury is charged with larceny by bailee. The complainant is Mrs. Mona Pick of the Pearson hotel, wife of Richard A. Pick, and the friend of Miss Davis. The article Kingsbury is alleged to have taken is Mrs. Pick's engagement ring.

The Kingsbury-Davis wedding, after a whirlwind courtship of three weeks, was set for next week, but Miss Davis insisted that she wouldn't be married until Mrs. Pick had approved of her husband-to-be.

Kingsbury called at the Pick apartment yesterday. After some conversation he enlisted the aid of Mrs. Pick in helping him buy an engagement ring for Miss Davis, one just like Mrs. Pick's.

He borrowed her diamond ring and took it into a loop building, leaving Mrs. Pick outside. Later he informed her the jeweler had to keep it for measuring. Mrs. Pick caused his arrest last night at the home of Miss Davis.

A city budget of $48,249,088 was forecast last night when City Controller Szymczak gave that figure to Mayor Kelly as revised estimate of net revenue for 1933. The amount is one against which the city council can appropriate for activities that are financed out of the corporate fund.

The budget figure for last year was $50,293,834. The revenue figure represents a reduction for the current year of 4 per cent below the appropriations of last year, and of 23 per cent below the budget for 1931, which was prepared under the administration of a former Republican mayor. None of the figures includes an appropriation for the loss and cost in the collection of taxes, which was estimated by the aldermen at 10 per cent for 1932 and only 9 per cent for 1931.

Mayor Orders Spending Cut.

But if the council carries out the ideas expressed by Mayor Kelly, all city departments will have strict orders to curb expenditures for the purpose of salvaging millions out of the proposed appropriations of $48,000,000. This salvage could be used as a "cushion" that would carry the city through without a deficit even if tax collections do not improve. Or, if collections are better when the 1933 taxes are collected, because of the mayor's tax program, the salvage could be used to retire outstanding warrants of other years, improving the market for warrants.

"I see no good reason for spending up to 90 per cent of the 1933 tax levy if only 65 per cent of the levy is going to be collected, as indicated by tax payments for the years of 1930 and 1931 so far," said Mayor Kelly. "We must retrench, even thought it hurts and impairs city activities.

"With tax collections behind a normal schedule, the city is dependent upon the sale of warrants for money with which to function. If we can retire outstanding tax warrants of past years through a salvage in appropriations, the market will be improved for the sale of warrants of 1932 and future years."

Expect 33 Millions from Taxes.

The Szymczak figure of $48,249,088 is based on an expected tax revenue of $33,647,724. To this figure he has added $12,705,000 as the estimated yield from miscellaneous sources, such as the collection of license and inspection fees, and a figure of $1,896,364, which is a paper surplus that would be realized with the eventual collection of 90 per cent of the 1930, 1931 and 1932 taxes.

The controller has taken cognizance of the apparently impending reductions in real estate valuations in the city through the order of the board of tax appeals for a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 base assessment valuation of homes and small flat buildings, and the statement of Assessor Jacobs that there would be a general 15 per cent cut in 1932 valuations.

Personalty Value Stands.

In building the 1932 budget the council finance committee estimated its tax revenue on a valuation of city real and personal property of $3,260,000,000, and ordinarily would have used the same figure for 1933. Mr. Szymczak, however, based his 1933 tax revenue expectancy on a city valuation of $2,832,322,000.

"The reduction was made entirely by cutting down the value of real estate, leaving the personal property figure the same as for 1932," said V. S. Petterson, deputy controller. "If the real estate valuation goes no lower than our figure, and the personal property valuation is raised, the increased revenue will be 'velvet' for the city."

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

What is considered the largest picture ever painted was installed yesterday in a building specially constructed for it at A Century of Progress after a welcoming reception that would have been worthy of a visiting celebrity. The picture is the Pantheon, recording the world war and showing more than 6,000 recognizable world figures and heroes and the battle fronts as they were at the time of the armistice. It was shipped here from Washington, D. C. The picture was received officially by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker of the United States army following a luncheon by exposition officials and world war veterans at Old Heidelberg. A procession of Legionnaires through the loop preceded the ceremonies at the exposition grounds.

T. V. Soong, minister of finance for the republic of China, visited the exposition grounds yesterday on his way to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt on the world economic conference. After visiting the site of the Chinese village the statesman expressed the hope that a permanent link of understanding would be welded between the Chinese and American nations through the medium of the World's Fair.

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday that the week from May 22 to 29 has been designated as the period for Chicagoans to send invitations to friends and business associates urging them to attend A Century of Progress. The association named the period as "World's Fair Invitation Week." Members will send letters, telegrams, and souvenir booklets, and will broadcast invitations.

A series of signposts at five mile intervals will guide traffic along the 370 mile trail from the Heart of Lakes country of Wisconsin to A Century of Progress. The signposts will be in the form of red hearts, 3 feet high. The trail, which is being erected by the Heart of Lakes association, will follow United States routes 12 and 51. The association will have an exhibition of historical data, trophies, and fish from the region in the Travel and Transport building.

Three of the treasures loaned to the Art institute of Chicago for the official World's Fair art exhibit are so valuable that a special car will transport them from Philadelphia to Chicago. The paintings are the "Lady Weighing Gold" by Jan Vermeer, a self-portrait of Lorenzo di Credi, a fellow student of Leonardo da Vinci, and the "Portrait Bust of a Lady" by Neroccio di Bartolomeo Landi.

Commencement exercises for the school of the Art institute will take place at the Goodman theater June 6, nearly two weeks earlier than usual, because of preparations for the World's Fair in the institute building.

Students of the Art institute school are busy on a great mural project for the Hall of Science geological division at the World's Fair. The mural will be 60 feet wide by 12 feet high. Awards of the yearly traveling scholarship will be given on the basis of work on the mural, making the incentive additionally keen, according to Robert Harshe, director of the institute.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, the general manager of the World's Fair, left the editorship of Military Engineer, a United States army publication, to take over the post at the exposition four years ago.

President Harry Joseph of the west park commissioners announced that a number of skilled workmen will soon start to dress up the buildings and grounds in Garfield, Douglas, Humboldt and Columbus parks for the World's Fair visitors. Swimming pools, bridges, bandstands and other park structures will be rehabilitated first. Workmen will be furnished by a committee of the emergency relief commission.

COUNCIL GROUP URGES BAN ON CURB GAS PUMPS

The city council committee on public utilities recommended yesterday that all curb gasoline pumps in the city be removed. The ruling follows several years of agitation and litigation over the right of the city to license the curb pumps.

An ordinance licensing the pumps was held invalid recently by the state Supreme court. Members of the committee, who made their recommendation in keeping with the court decision, estimated that there are approximately 3,000 of the curb pumps in the city.

The committee also moved to ask Attorneys George I. Haight and Benjamin F. Goldstein to inform the committee on what they would base an appeal to the United States Supreme court in the Illinois Bell Telephone company rate case which the city lost recently.

M. G. GRAHAME, INSURANCE HEAD, IS SUED BY WIFE

Mrs. Georgette S. Grahame, 1441 Oak Mont road, Highland Park, yesterday filed suit for divorce against M. Gordon Grahame, vice president of the Globe Indemnity company, in the Circuit court at Waukegan. Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady granted her an injunction restraining Grahame from molesting her and their son, M. Gordon Jr., 8 year old, and from disposing of his assets.

The bill, filed by Attorney Earl K. Cook, charges cruelty. On Nov. 1, 1931, Grahame threatened his wife with a loaded revolver, according to the bill, and on Dec. 15 last he tried to choke her. On April 29, Grahame punched his wife in the face, the bill says. The bill states that Grahame has a fixed income of $9,000 a year from the indemnity company, and last year earned a $7,000 bonus.

VOTES ON FLOWER FOR FAIR POUR INTO THE TRIBUNE

Hundreds of additional ballots designating the voters' choice of an official flower for A Century of Progress exposition poured into THE TRIBUNE office yesterday. None of the six plants designated on the ballot nor those written in by choice has any marked lead so far.

Those who are picking their own flower are requested to make it an annual, not a perennial. The exposition plans to plant great beds of the one chosen and these should mature during the fair, producing a riot of bloom through the summer. That's why a perennial will not do.

The contest has furnished much comment in offices and stores and many interested persons have gathered up large batches of votes and mailed them together. All votes must be in by May 20.

Gen. Roman Gorecki, Polish banker and soldier, in an interview last night expressed his concern over the program of inflation undertaken in this country. Gen. Gorecki, who is president of Fidac, interallied veterans' association, arrived for a one day whirl of conferences, dinners, and meetings with Legionnaires who are members of the international organization.

Gen. Gorecki will pay his respects to Mayor Kelly this morning. At noon he will be guest of honor at an American Legion dinner at the Palmer house, thence to be whisked away for a tour of the World's Fair grounds and numerous conferences. Tonight the general will be the guest of Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to Poland.

Among his guides will be Titus Zbyszewski, Polish consul general; City Controller M. S. Szymczak and County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

MRS. BEESLEY, AID TO CERMAK, QUITS CITY HALL POST

Mrs. Clara Beesley, private secretary to the late Mayor Cermak for ten years, yesterday resigned her position as executive secretary to the mayor. She took the city hall position on the death of John Kelly, who had served as secretary to Chicago mayors for 25 years. This was shortly after Mayor Cermak took office. Mrs. Beesley had the distinction of having served three mayors in two months. She held the position after the death of Mayor Cermak during the term of Acting Mayor Frank J. Corr and also served Mayor Kelly.

HUNT FOUR GARAGE ROBBERS.

The New City police yesterday were seeking four prowlers who were fired upon by Adam Molis when he saw them trying to break in the garage in the rear of his home at 5431 South Mozart street.

PRESIDENT EAGER TO SEE "CRAZY" FAIR BUILDINGS

Dawes Tells of Interest Shown by Roosevelt.

Rufus C. Dawes, president of the World's Fair, returned to Chicago yesterday after obtaining the promise of President Roosevelt to attend the grand opening of the international exposition on Saturday, May 27. The only possible hitch, Mr. Dawes explained, would be that congress is still in session or that other urgent national business might keep the President in Washington. In that case Vice President Garner will represent the President.

"I think they are crazy," exclaimed President Roosevelt, laughing, "but I like them and want to see them."

Push Work for Opening.

Meanwhile, under the direction of Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the exposition, workmen pushed their program to be ready for the opening five day earlier than the schedule. The Fair was to have opened on June 1, but the earlier date was decided on because President Roosevelt had previously accepted an invitation to distribute diplomas to graduates from the United States naval academy at Annapolis on that date.

According to plans for the celebration, the flags of all nations will be raised in the Soldier Field stadium at 10 a. m. on the 27th. A few minutes later the parade will start at Chicago and Michigan avenues, moving in Michigan avenue to 11th street and thence to the stadium.

The Order of March.

The order of march follows: Motorcycle police, marshal of the day, band, Black Horse troop, secret service men and motorcycle police; automobiles carrying President Roosevelt, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and Mr. Dawes; patriotic organizations, and government officials.

At the stadium addresses will be given by the notables and following the program there will be a luncheon for the President in the Administration building.

IT'S WONDERFUL WHAT A LITTLE RAINDROP CAN DO

Close weather observers who were out yesterday noted a certain levity in the raindrops. They were little raindrops, and so light that at times they floated perpendicularly on the breezes.

Miss Sarah Wolff, 27 years old, 628 Grace street, was not a close observer. Standing under an umbrella at Broadway and Grace street, she became conscious that her face was getting wet, but instead of blaming the floating raindrops she blamed Jack Khaell, 30 years old, 3765 Broadway, who was standing nearby.

"Quit spitting in my face," she said.

"I ain't spitting," replied Mr. Khaell.

"You're going to get a lesson about spitting in a lady's face," asserted Miss Wolff.

So saying, she lowered her umbrella. Then she spit in Mr. Khaell's face and broke the umbrella on his head. Policeman Walter Widholm took them both to the Town Hall station. There Miss Wolff insisted that Mr. Khaell pay for breaking her umbrella with his head, but Mr. Khaell retorted with a lecture on the levity of the raindrops and was freed. He was also allowed to sign a warrant charging Miss Wolff with disorderly conduct.

Court May End Her Wandering.

For the first time in three years Baby Jean—who is just that many years old—gazed yesterday into friendly eyes, and it appeared as if her days of wandering were over. Up to now Jean's life has depended considerably upon how those close to her fared with the law. That included her mother, Mrs. Marian Kalish, 117 West Chestnut street.

The story of the waif's unhappy life was told yesterday before Judge Edward S. Scheffler in the Court of Domestic Relations. Before him stood Frank and Mrs. Florence Foraci, 67 West Chestnut street. Jean was there in the arms of Policewoman Mabel Rockwell. The Foracis have been boarding Jean since last June, and Mrs. Kalish was present to explain alleged delinquency in Jean's care.

Policewoman Rockwell testified she had found Jean in the Foraci home, a "filthy one room place." Sympathetic roomers there had contributed to buy the baby food, she added.

Before going to the Foraci home Jean had lived for a time with one Edward Martin, the policewoman said. That was a year ago, after Jean's mother had been sentenced to Dwight reformatory for 6 months and had turned Jean over to Martin. Then Martin was sentenced to jail and he passed the child on to the Foracis.

"I hope a decent home can be found for this baby," said Judge Scheffler, continuing the case to May 9.

Jean listened gravely as the judge ordered her mother and the Foracis to the psychopathic hospital for observation. She smiled when courtroom spectators put some change into her tiny hands. It was only when everybody was leaving the courtroom that Jean talked.

She dropped some pennies into Policewoman Rockwell's hands.

"Please buy me a dolly," she commanded.

2 Sewing Circle Girls Meet Up with Robbers

Two bandits last night curbed the automobile of Miss Lillian Rydell, 25 years old, 5651 Berenice avenue, and Miss Iris Goldbeck, also 25, of 2456 Coyle avenue, near Montana street, where the young women had just left a sewing circle meeting. The robbers got $5 and a $120 wrist watch from Miss Rydell and six cents from Miss Goldbeck.

'QUEENS' TO HAVE TEN BIG DAYS OF FUN AS FAIR GETS UNDER WAY

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

It's a safe wager that ten hearts will go into double quick time tomorrow morning when ten pairs of eyes scan the rotogravure section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. For in Chicago and out of it, ten faces will look into their mirrored countenances in the initial group of winners, out of a total of fifty-one named to try for the honor of being Queen of Chicago's 1933 exposition.

Out of 100,000 who tried for it, these ten and forty-one others have won places in the queen's court for A Century of Progress. Out of these fifty-one, three will emerge May 26 as the sovereign of the fair inaugural and her two maids of honor, trailing lustrous robes and clasping checks for $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively, in the order in which they are ranked by the jury.

To make certain that their ten days in Chicago are quite as perfect as any of the fifty-one hearts could wish, directors of the competition are hard at work completing arrangements for a glamorous program, nicely balanced with enough informative and interesting features to insure parental endorsement as well as youthful enthusiasm.

CHRISTEN PLANE TODAY FOR TRIP TO LITHUANIA

Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, ex-soldiers, announced yesterday that they would leave the Chicago airport at 7 a. m. tomorrow on the first hop of a 4,500 mile trans-Atlantic flight from New York to Lithuania.

Their ship, a cabin monoplane, is to be christened the Lithuanica this afternoon by Mrs. Augustina Degutis, mother of Capt. Darius. The flyers expect to reach New York at 2 p. m. tomorrow, where a reception has been arranged by New York Lithuanians. Weather permitting, they will hop off on May 20, over the great circle route.

The flight is being financed by Lithuanians in America and $20,000 has been raised. The fund is being handled by Antanas Kalvaitis, Chicago Lithuanian consul. Darius and Girenas served in France in the American forces.

DAVID W. CLARK CELEBRATES 93D BIRTHDAY TODAY

David W. Clark, 3125 Warren boulevard, former banker and well known in public life for many years, will celebrate his 93d birthday today. Although a Republican and proud of the fact that he voted for Abraham Lincoln, he had praise yesterday for President Roosevelt's administration. "President Roosevelt is a wonder," he said. "He's got congress with him and he'll pull us through."

Mr. Clark's solution for the nation's economic difficulties would be to use funds now being distributed in form of charity to build public highways and buildings. This, he said, would create jobs. President Roosevelt's reforestation project is a step in that direction, he added.

Born in Boston, Mr. Clark came to Chicago in 1854. He fought in the Union army during the civil war. He has been alderman, county commissioner, chairman of the board of local improvements, member of the state legislature, and president of the county board. He has been an officer of the William B. Warren Masonic lodge for over 70 years.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

INFLATION IS ENOUGH.

The inflation amendment to the farm bill has passed the house and senate in identical form. There are disagreements between the two houses over the rest of the bill, and it is these disagreements which are now to be ironed out in a conference committee. They concern the Wallace price-fixing scheme and the refinancing of farm mortgages.

Every day it becomes more apparent that with inflation a definite prospect, the rest of the bill is as superfluous as it was always unsound and unworkable. With nothing more than the grant of power to the President to reduce the gold content of the dollar and issue greenbacks, wheat has risen to the highest price in two years and corn to the highest price in a year and a half. The higher the prices move in the open market, the more difficult and, of course, the more unnecessary, it becomes to apply the domestic allotment scheme. Likewise, at today's price level, tens of thousands of farmers who were unable to cope with their debts a few weeks ago are beginning to see daylight.

All this has been accomplished without the exercise of the permissive powers to be granted the President in the inflation bill. It seems pretty clear that the judicious exercise of the power of inflation to be granted Mr. Roosevelt will enable him to rescue the farmers without the help of any additional legislation.

A grant of power, 99 times in a hundred, means the exercise of power. When the farm board was created under President Hoover he was known to oppose the price fixing sections of the bill and it was widely assumed that as long as he was in office those portions would not be invoked. Within a few months the government was pouring its hundreds of millions into the wheat and cotton markets with the disastrous results which Mr. Hoover and Mr. Coolidge before him had foreseen. The pressure of interested groups had been great before the bill was enacted, but once the permission to fix prices was incorporated in the law the pressure became irresistible.

Mr. Hoover, it should be remembered, did not believe in price fixing. Mr. Wallace does, and the allotment plan incorporated in the bill is his pet. To expect him to have the power to try his experiment and still not try it is to disregard all the probabilities.

With inflation a certainty the rest of the bill ought to be buried. Senator Smith of South Carolina, himself the author of the cotton provisions of the present farm bill, was candid enough to refer to the superfluous parts of the bill as "all this farm relief nonsense." It is to be hoped that his candor will remain with him when he enters the conference and that both the domestic allotment and the mortgage refinancing sections will be allowed to die in committee. The country may survive the inflation and even be benefited by it, but only harm can come from the wastrel spending of money which the rest of the bill provides. It was that kind of extravagance which put us where we are today.

HOW TO TAME A KINGFISH.

Mr. Levinsky, the Chicago Kingfish and the only genuine one, knocked out the sturdy Charley Retziaff in the first round of what was expected to be a tough battle between two good sluggers. It might have been if Mr. Retziaff had been elsewhere than where he was when Mr. Levinsky reached for him with something equivalent to a mule's kick. Bad luck drops in the prize ring in that fashion once in a while and brings the proceedings to a sudden end.

Mr. Levinsky has joined the athletic school of thought which tends toward the decoration of sport with bright ideas. The art of it is to inject an element apparently inconsistent with the avowed purposes of the sport, an incongruity which will be entertaining because it is an incongruity. Thus baseball, which is primarily a peaceable game, is to be given an overtone of manslaughter. Prize fighting, being intrinsically savage, the intent being to destroy the opposing fellow man, is to have a comedy relief.

Although the record is not clear, it is probable that Mr. Long, the senatorial Kingfish from Louisiana, is merely an imitator of the Chicago Kingfish. If Mr. Levinsky should sue Mr. Long for infringement of personality, the Louisiana Kingfish would duck into his congressional immunities and there is nothing for Mr. Levinsky to do about it except to outshine his imitator on all occasions.

When the first and original Kingfish had knocked the whereabouts out of Mr. Retziaff he went into an ecstasy of personality which sent him walking the ropes of the ring, shadow boxing with his cosmos, and enjoying himself like the Great God Pan full of hops. Progressing in comic afflatus, he turned himself upon his three seconds who had climbed into the ring and knocked two of them out through the ropes before the third, exercising rare good judgment, gave the Kingfish such a swift kick in the seat of the pants that it jolted a comparative sanity back into his head.

The moral of this may be nowhere more apparent than it will be in Louisiana. The spirited behavior of Mr. Levinsky's third second can be recommended to the citizenship of Kingfish Long's home state.

CLEAN OUT THE WASTERS.

The announcement that the Cook county government confronts a deficit of nearly twelve and a half million dollars for the fiscal year of 1933 will be no surprise to such of our people as have troubled to follow events in local government. But it should set off an explosion of public indignation that will sweep every official responsible for this condition out of office.

The deficit has been created in callous disregard of notorious facts and of sound principles of public finance. Commissioners who are trustees of the people have ignored their duty and exploited their own selfish ends at the expense of the community. Warned repeatedly of the disastrous consequences of extravagance, they have persisted in it and refused to apply the economies essential to government solvency and the relief of taxpayers. The course which has brought the county to its present crisis has been a brazen defiance of public welfare. Every commissioner who has contributed to this misfortune should be put out of office as soon as his term is ended. There must be a clean sweep of unscrupulous wasters and men put in their places who will do their duty. The county finances have been bled white by parasites and the political organization should be either induced to present servants faithful to the public interest or be broken on the wheel of public indignation.

OLD DOCTRINES AND YOUNG MINDS.

The Crusaders, who played so important a part in the work for the repeal of the 18th amendment, have broadened out the field of their activities. One feature is the incorporation of a junior division. A start has been made at the preparatory school in Lawrenceville, N. J.

Two things are recognized by the citizens interested. One is that the 18th amendment was only one instance of the diversion of government control into improper channels. It was the most direct approach to the control of every individual, but many other approaches less direct have been made or are being proposed and attempted. The full meaning is that the government shall be everything and the individual nothing.

The second thing recognized is the natural tendency of young people to yield to new ideas which they think will correct errors of the past. They are quick to see what they think are the infirmities of their elders of the generation upon whose heels they are treading and of the order which has prevailed until their time. Revolutionary proposals may be regarded by them as synonymous with logic, common sense, and intelligence. A natural adolescent judgment would be that everything's wrong and youth is to correct it.

These impressions have gained such headway among young people that there may now be an attractiveness in the thought, properly presented, that the revolutionaries are not smart, but, in fact, dumb; that it is not intellectual to be against the best tried theories of government and society, but to be for them.

It is this new thought that the Crusaders seek to advance before the young people of the country. Experience and sound reasoning may present the idea as a new thought to them. It has become truly progressive to concede that trial and results have not ceased to offer admonitions and are still worth the consideration of an intelligent person. Intelligence is highly prized by youth and it may be made attractive.

THE ROYAL SCOT IN CANADA.

It will be a relief to discover that everything removable from the Royal Scot was taken off by enthusiastic Canadians before the train crossed the border. Americans will be content to have the achievement wholly Canadian, although they will not be taken unaware if the English newspapers manage the inference that, inasmuch as the train is coming to Chicago as an exhibit for the World's Fair, the damage done to it was the work of Chicagoans.

Americans have a great deal of respect for British railroading and they'd be more interested in seeing the train intact than in having pieces and broken bits of it exhibited. The Canadian vandalism, encountered at Ottawa, Toronto, and Hamilton, may have been a labor of love, collecting souvenirs to show the high esteem with which the despoilers regarded the prize specimen of British railroad speed and comfort. Whatever the motive the Canadian hoodlums nearly demolished the train and its crew made a hurried dash into the United States to save what was still left of it.

Editorial of the Day

[Waterloo, Ia., Courier.]

The vast majority of farmers who still revere institutions and traditions established by their pioneer ancestors, true Americans everywhere, lament the incident at Le Mars, Ia., last week, when a mob assaulted a District court judge. It was a typical example of the way in which mob spirit tends to disperse reason.

The question of the judge's fairness in the particular case over which the controversy arose does not enter into consideration of the mob's action. Regardless of the judge's position, the protesters could have adopted more conservative methods in insuring that justice be done.

News dispatches stated that the attack on the judge followed his refusal to promise he would sign no more farm mortgage foreclosures. The judge refused to make such a pledge until he had studied 15 suits filed in his court, in each of which mortgage holders were attacking the constitutionality of the two debtor relief laws passed by the Forty fifth Iowa general assembly. In refusing to make that pledge the judge was adhering to the oath he took upon assuming his place on the bench.

Laws and courts are primarily for the protection of those who recognize the need for restraining people who recognize no law except that dictated by their own selfish interests. There have been, and are, courts where the true intent of equitable laws is not observed. Our system of courts, however, is so arranged that appeals may be made from real or fancied injustice. The interests of those in the right are scrupulously safeguarded.

Those who participated in the Le Mars affair will realize the magnitude of their error when viewing it in the light of reason, which is inalienably divorced from the stimulus of mob spirit. Their cause, and the cause of farmers everywhere, has been injured. They failed to recognize that the liberty they sought to gain is best preserved by the institution they attacked.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"GOT!" It's our new word, says F. D. And, furthermore, he says, says he: It means prosperity must be got, And the old depression be for-"got." We'll now use "got" most cheerfully, While we used to speak it tearfully; We sadly say, "Again, by Heck, We've got the ax, right in the neck." We knew we'd "got" to face cold facts, We'd "got" to pay the income tax; We'd "got" to pay for all our ills, We'd "got" to face our many bills. The landlord we had "got" to soothe Or else, by golly, we'd "got" to move. We'd "got" to get along some way, We'd "got" to smile and try to pay. And the biggest "got" that made us sigh Was that some day we'd "got" to die. But "got" no longer must mean woe, Franklin Delano says, No! No! We've "got" to be happy, we've "got" to be gay, We've "got" to get on to a happier day. We've "got" to stop grieving and kicking at fate, And keep hoping and working early and late. And some day we'll find, and F. D. says, Why not? That our happiest word is the once despised "got."

THE CREATURE BRONTOSAURUS.

Over a hundred million
Centuries ago
Before the Rocky mountains
Raised their heads of snow
Making hard and nubbly
A land that once was swamps
The Creature Brontosaurus
Went on his ponderous romps.

His name means Thunder Reptile,
But he couldn't make a sound
As over eighty feet of him
Went slithering around;
Poor fellow—how upsetting
It must have been to not
Be able to express himself
When sleepy, cross or hot.

Forty tons of temper
Without a single whimp
Would leave a person feeling
A little long and limp;
But perhaps he just stamped harder
Upon the sandy ground
And made those giant footsteps
That scientists have found.

Even today we see them
Planted on old stones;
Even today they keep on finding
Brontosaurus bones
Which people in Museums
Fit together till
The ancient age-old creature
Rears up—bleak and still.

In all his mighty body
His brain weighed just one pound,
So maybe we're not missing much
Not having him around.
Perhaps his heart was big, though—
Perhaps he shed a tear
For lack of laps to climb into
Or scratchings on the ear.

TODAY'S THE DAY and we're desolate because we seem to have got a raw deal, our pick, Beefsteak, having slipped out of the Derby. Come on, you Broker's Tip!

"'WHAT ARE WE FIGHTING FOR?' Bolivians Ask."—Headline. Now that's encouraging. Knowing that they've just got into a war we would expect the Bolivians to be whooping and cheering, following the bands around, listening to exciting speeches, calling all objectors to the war traitors and tarring and feathering them or hanging them to lamp posts. But instead of that the Bolivians sternly demand of their government, "What's all the shootin' fer?" Verily, the world do move!

AS APRIL TURNS TO MAY.

Oh, men there are, and men of worth,
Who have not seen the dawn unfold;
They are the poorest of the earth—
They sold their dreams for gold.

Their feet have trod the orient,
Rich island realms they hold in fee,
But all in vain their days are spent—
They have no eyes to see.

Poor victims of the lust to hold,
How must they envy me today—
Who search for Springtime's newest gold
As April turns to May!

WE DON'T UNDERSTAND about the earmarked gold that the government will permit to be sent out of the country. We haven't any earmarked gold, but we've got a little that must be pretty well toothmarked. It's in the back molars.

SOME INSANE ARE CURED.

TWO of the members of the staff of the Worcester hospital for the insane make a very favorable report on a plan which has been in operation there for several years. The method is one of grading the patients—dividing them into five or six groups in accordance with certain rules. One of these groups is composed of people who have gone home but are still under some control and observation by the social workers and physicians of the hospital. Another group is fit to go home but is not to be discharged until the improvement has been proved to have some promise of permanency. The other six groups are composed of those in the hospital and below the discharging level.

Most insane persons are quite egocentric. At least, so far as the subjects of their mental twists are concerned, they are very certain they are right and those who cannot see it their way are wrong. In many instances they are willing to fight for their ideas. In others they are contentious for them but without being pugnacious. In still others they are willing to let the other fellow stick to his ideas which to this person are erroneous; but he lets the person of opposing opinions alone and wants that person to let him alone.

Those who are in the lower levels have a proper regard for themselves and their own interests but have no regard for others and their interests. Those in the lowest levels have no regard for their own interests or for themselves. They neglect their persons, their wants and other matters, in which they show a lack of self-respect.

At the other end of the line are the grades which hold those who not only respect themselves but have a proper regard for others.

There is no satisfactory definition of insanity. The social and the legal definitions of insanity are based on a person's ability to fit in, to get along with his family and his associates at work, playing fair with them and with himself, and making no undue amount of trouble for anybody.

Therefore, when a patient is getting well enough to fit in, to be a good companion, to want to do something for others and for himself, he is about ready to resume his place in society. The plan that is being worked at Worcester is based on these simple principles of social conduct. A further foundation is the natural desire of every one to get back home among family and friends, to return to work, and to have as much liberty as possible. Unless a man has this desire and hope, at least in the back of his mind, there is not much salvage in him.

Another foundation stone of the method is the public school training of practically every one. They worked out a plan of dividing the patients into classes, as they are in a grade school. The members of each class work to learn the lessons and accomplish the training that would move them out of the class below and into the one above. Competition, pride of performance, and pride of accomplishment were the urges that were made use of to the benefit of the ninety and, maybe, nine, but to the harm of a one who was broken because a competitive world has been too much for him.

There was another resemblance to the principles of the school structure. The pupil first trained himself in self-control. Then followed training in regard for others. As the child proceeds from the first to the eighth grade he has traveled from a self-centered point of view to one that is based on social relations.

The system in this hospital is one of rewards. There is an answer to the question that, phrased one way or another, every patient asks of himself, to wit, what's the use?

DIVIDING PROPERTY.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the case of a man and wife separating, what can be done about the furniture, most of which isn't paid for yet? 1. Can the husband claim all the furniture to help pay for the debts? 2. Can the wife be held responsible for any debts made while living together? 3. Is it necessary to obtain an attorney to legalize the separation? G. H. S.

1. Of course, he can "claim." If the wife resists and the matter is settled in court the decision will be largely discretionary, depending on all the equities of the parties.

2. Either spouse can be held for family expenses.

3. No, in the sense that there is no law against the parties living apart. Yes, in the sense that either one would have to secure a divorce before being in a position to contract another marriage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE PAYMENT.

Maywood, Ill., May 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a home on which a mortgage matures within the next few months, this mortgage having been given to a bank as trustee, and which bank is now out of existence. 1. When the time comes for payment how can I make sure that the holder is the legal holder, and [2] what kind of a release should I have to make a clear record on the county books in order that future buyers will know that the trustee is extinct and that the party releasing has a right to do so? R. J. H.

1. You are entitled to assume that the person presenting the papers for payment is the legal holder, if you have no notice to the contrary.

2. After paying the notes, you should take them to the trustee named in the trust deed and secure a release deed from him which you should record.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 6, 1893.

CHICAGO.—La Belle France lifted the curtain yesterday from her choicest treasures at the World's Fair. All afternoon the east annex of the Palace of Fine Arts was crowded by Frenchmen and their guests. The pictures that seemed to elicit the greatest praise were the works of Bonnat, Bouguereau, Chartran, Aubiet, Adan, Raffaelli, Carolus Duran, Jules Breton, and James Tissot. The portraits of Bonnat, especially those of Lavigeri and Renan, are masterpieces.

In all the splendor of a magnificent electrical display the season of open evenings at the Columbian Exposition will begin May 8. It will be the first of a series of summer night fêtes which in brilliancy will surpass anything men have yet enjoyed. The duke of Veragua and his suite will lend the dignity of their presence to the function, and under the glare and glitter of 10,000 lights the White City will shine in new and peerless beauty.

The gates of the World's Fair will be closed next Sunday. Much as the local board would like to admit visitors seven days in the week, it cannot for the present do so. This decision was reached yesterday at a conference of the leading officials.

May moving as an occasion of merrymaking is something novel, but there will be an illustration of it at the Exposition grounds this afternoon, when the Quackuhl Indians from Vancouver will take possession of their new home on the east side of the south pond. They will also dedicate the totem pole erected in front of their new shack. At present the Vancouver tribe is occupying quarters in the stock pavilion.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 6, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The house of representatives was the scene of a great outbreak of patriotism and enthusiasm when A. J. Balfour, former British premier, now head of the mission in this country, appeared to address the members by invitation. He was the first British official to speak in the house in American history. From the time that Speaker Clark introduced Mr. Balfour to the members until the noted Briton ended his short address, the members of the house, the crowded galleries, and the justices of the Supreme court, who were present by special invitation, were in constant applause, at times breaking forth into cheers. The whole house rose to its feet and shouted when Mr. Balfour said that the democratic governments of the world were fighting for existence and freedom, and that they would not cease until victory had been won and predicted that the cause of democracy "surely shall conquer."

CHICAGO.—In the vast amphitheater in the stockyards there occurred the climax of two days of demonstrative acclaim by Chicago for Marshal Joffre, for Viviani, and for France. Workingmen and women by the thousands joined with college students to give the final touch to the visit. And so, with the yells of the collegians and the shouts of the men from the melting pot sections ringing in their ears, the distinguished Frenchmen and their aids departed last night for Kansas City.

CHICAGO.—Bread will be delivered tomorrow. The "strike" of bakery wagon drivers was settled last night in the office of Charles F. Clyne, United States district attorney, when the men won a raise of $2 a week.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The treasury was buried today beneath an avalanche of applications for allotments in the Liberty loan. Yesterday's pace of $20,000,000 an hour was quickened to almost $500,000 a minute, and it became apparent that the $2,000,000,000 offering would be oversubscribed beyond all previous estimates.

THE VICTIMS.

La Crosse, Wis., May 1.—There seems to a be a popular view among politicians that any emergency justifies the abrogating of the constitution of the United States. Of what use is the constitution except in emergencies? When all is going well and there is no danger to any one the constitution is a pleasant and satisfactory document to read and study, but it does not become the bulwark of our liberties unless our liberty is in danger.

In 1913 the writer inherited about $1,800. This was loaned to a farmer and paid back during the war inflation. It was not paid back in bushels of wheat, but in cheaper money. Nothing was said about the money buying less wheat than when it was loaned, but the borrower cheerfully took advantage of the situation, paid back his debts, bought more automobiles, and went his way rejoicing. I have saved such little interest as could be got and attempted to add a little to the original capital from year to year, to have something to fall back upon in advanced years or if sickness overtook me.

This, I presume, classes me with the bourgeoisie or the farmer kulak. If it is put into a bank the banker is liable to take it, the unemployed want it for their support, and the government, if any is left, is trying to take it through currency inflation. The middle class, supporting the banker and frenzied financier above and the unemployed below, is the class now about to be squeezed by the proposed legislation at Washington unless it asserts itself. If it is wrecked the nation is wrecked.

The thrifty, industrious wage earner and the small business man in the city and the thrifty and industrious farmer in the country are the backbone of our nation. That is the class communism desires above all else to destroy. That is the very class toward whose destruction our country is now drifting.

A. E. BLEEKMAN.

IN THE SADDLE.

Chicago, May 1.—The chairman of every important committee in the house and senate is a southern Democrat. The Tennessee river project is the first raid upon the taxpayers of the north to aid pauper southern states. Crackers and hill billies are now in the saddle and are going to ride northern taxpayers with spurs, as at least 80 per cent of the federal taxes are paid by the northern states. H. B. F.

THE LEADER.

Racine, Wis., May 3.—In your recent editorial you ask, "Will a free people fight?" There is but one answer, and that is: Yes, we will fight, under the able and fearless leadership of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

JOHN M. MILLER.

THE JUNIOR CRUSADERS.

Park Ridge, Ill., May 3.—And now the Crusaders are going to organize the high school boys. This fanatical organization belongs in Germany or Russia, not in the country of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln.

RANDOLPH HECHT.

A TERRIFIED CONGRESS.

Chicago, May 1.—The mass of the American people believe that the President is the personal savior of their affairs. Congress knows the President is backed by popular favor and they are afraid to act as they know they should to protect the country against the proposed radical legislation. I think Westbrook Pegler hinted at our greatest American menace when he wrote of the democracy and geniality of the President. It has disarmed even the newspaper people.

The people don't want the products of the President's so-called brain trust. They are foreign to every American ideal. But the average man on the street doesn't know what is going on. He thinks because the President acted so quickly in connection with the banking situation, the veterans' budget, and the beer bill that he can be trusted to solve the rest of the problems.

I think a few really graphic cartoons will do much to awaken the American public in the shortest possible time.

LEILA G. WHITNEY.

DICTATORS.

Chicago, May 1.—Senator Robinson would have us believe that F. D. R. is a combination of Lenin, Stalin, Mussolini, and Hitler, and yet he (Senator Robinson) would have us under the thumbs of still more greedy dictators, the bonus seekers, because he happened to be in the war and feels that the soldier vote may help return him to the senate next year.

Well, in my opinion, Senator Robinson will get a chance to visit with his former colleague, Senator Watson, after next election. J. P. RYAN.

ENDANGERED LIBERTIES.

Chicago, May 3.—Will a free people fight? Our liberties are in danger? Just what does the Roosevelt administration threaten to my father's glorious liberty in being allowed to work 14 hours out of 24, no days off? What does this "free" father of mine stand to lose when before the election he was told at the shop to vote for Hoover or get out? And please don't print my name, because, thanks to this magnificent freedom now at stake, if it were known my father or any of his kin complained about his lot he would be fired.

This government is the ablest we've ever had, and when we poor fools become free, thanks to Roosevelt and not to the Manufacturers' association, then we'll fight to protect our freedom. Don't ask us to help fight now. Give us freedom first. JAYHAWK.

COMMENT ON A CARTOON.

Chicago, May 3.—Mr. Orr should have included another picture in the series which appeared on the front page of THE TRIBUNE this morning under the title of "Teaching Our Youth." It might have been labeled "And this is education," showing boys making cookie cutters out of old tin cans, girls learning to wash in beautiful laundry tubs, and both boys and girls learning to draw to rhythms. GLASS CHANGES BANKING BILL TO SATISFY WOODIN

Measure Now Likely to Pass Soon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—A compromise was reached today between Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], which is expected to start the long delayed Glass banking bill once more on its way through congress.

At a conference with Secretary Woodin, Senator Glass consented to two important modifications of the measure he has unsuccessfully urged for many months.

Agrees to Woodin's Changes.

Despite his ardent contention that the treasury and the federal reserve system should be divorced as completely as possible, the senator agreed to drop the provision in his bill removing the secretary of the treasury from his ex-officio membership on the federal reserve board. Secondly, he agreed that the creation of a corporation to insure deposits should not become effective until a year after the bill's enactment.

President Roosevelt, it was authoritatively learned, promised Senator Glass at their White House discussion yesterday that if objections put forward by Secretary Woodin could be met he would back a move to put the bill through at this session. Mr. Woodin has not been enthusiastic over any changes in the fundamental banking laws at this time, believing that such legislation might prove a disturbing rather than a helpful factor.

Report Out Next Week.

The secretary insisted on the year's delay in putting the deposit guarantee plan into effect on the ground that banks would require time in which to prepare for entrance into the corporation.

Following his conference with the secretary Senator Glass announced that he and his subcommittee would report the measure to the full senate banking and currency committee next Monday or Tuesday, ask the committee to report the bill to the senate as soon as possible, and then seek a preferred status for the bill from senatorial leaders.

Poles Plan to Renominate Moscicki for Presidency

WARSAW, Poland, May 5.—(AP)—The government party today decided to renominate President Ignaz Moscicki for the presidency at next Monday's election as a gesture of appreciation for his services. It is believed likely that the president will decline the honor and this will necessitate a second election several days later.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Election June 5)

KICKHAM SCANLAN

Judge Kickham Scanlan, Republican, has been on the Circuit bench almost a quarter century. He was one of the top four in the bar primaries. For the last five years he has sat on the Appellate bench. Some ten years ago he was one of the leading factors in the organized campaign against lawlessness and graft.

In 1922, as chief justice of the Criminal court, Judge Scanlan, in charging a special grand jury, declared that some of the unions in Chicago had come under control of gunmen and ex-convicts, who were terrorizing union members, intimidating court witnesses, and extorting money from industry. His address marked the start of the fight against racketeers.

The year before, 1921, the former city hall machine sought to defeat Judge Scanlan in retaliation for his decision ordering eight school board trustees and the attorney for the board punished for contempt of court. He was one issue in the 1921 judicial battle in which a coalition ticket defeated the efforts of the old machine to raid the courts.

Judge Scanlan was born in Chicago 68 years ago. He studied at Notre Dame university, and took his law course at Union College of Law and the Chicago College of Law. Notre Dame has conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

He was admitted to the bar in 1890 and engaged in general practice. For years he was associated with the late Luther Laflin Mills. He became widely known as a lawyer for labor unions and was often selected by them to serve on arbitration committees.

Among the criminal cases in which he participated as an attorney were the Cronin murder case and the McGarigle trial.

He was elected as a Circuit court judge in 1909 and was reëlected in 1915, 1921, and 1927. The Chicago Bar association report said of Judge Scanlan: "He is an able and experienced judge and should be renominated."

JESSE H. JONES NEW CHAIRMAN OF R. F. C. BOARD

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation today, Jesse H. Jones, publisher and financier of Houston, Tex., was chosen chairman to succeed former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland, O.

Mr. Jones, who was named a director of the corporation in February, 1932, has long been a power in the Democratic party. It was his influence that brought the 1928 Democratic convention to Houston and his donations to the campaign fund have been liberal.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL TO GOVERN SECURITIES SALE

Similar Measure Awaits Senate Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The house of representatives today extended the long arm of federal regulation protectively about the investor in securities.

By a unanimous vote the administration securities bill, aimed at preventing the sale of worthless and fraudulent stocks in interstate commerce, swept through the lower body in a form substantially the same as that suggested to congress in a message from President Roosevelt.

Protected by a special rule, as have been all but one of the administration measures this session, the bill was approved without amendment and with scarcely a murmur of protest.

In the senate a measure with similar purposes, but differing in several particulars from the house bill, is awaiting certain approval within the next week or ten days. Senate action will send the two versions to conferences, where differences will be reconciled.

Aims to Protect Investor.

The bill, as it passed the house today, is designed to protect the investor in securities by throwing the full light of publicity on every prospective issue of stock.

The federal trade commission would function as the regulatory agency at which sponsors of stock issues would be required to file a complete statement of facts regarding the proposed issue.

Every new offering of securities would be regarded as illegal until the "registration statement" has been filed with the commission and until the statement has remained open to public inspection for a period of thirty days. Venders of the stock, following expiration of the thirty day examination period, would be required to furnish prospective customers with a replica of the registration statement filed with the commission. The federal agency would have power to stop sale of the security in the event the terms of the bill are not complied with.

Interest Must Be Disclosed.

Newspapers and "tip sheets" sold in interstate commerce, as well as radio descriptions of purchasable securities, would, under the bill, be forced to disclose the financial interest of the writer or broadcaster in the stock in question. Corporation directors and all persons involved in the issuance of stock would be liable for damage action by purchasers if the registration statement proved false in any particular.

The house bill contains a provision making it unlawful to sell any interstate security in any state where such sale would be unlawful if it had taken place wholly within that state. This provision forms the major point of difference between the house version and the senate bill, in which it is eliminated. It was this section, likewise, which provoked virtually the only opposition to the measure in the lower body today.

In a minority report, signed by Representative Clarence F. Lea [Rep., Cal.] and Representative Schuyler Merritt [Dem., Conn.], it was contended that this section violates the fundamental principles of federal interstate regulation and would place an unbearable burden not only on business, but on the function of enforcing the provisions of the securities bill.

Burden on State Seen.

"This section," said the minority report, "makes the federal government the enforcing agency for legislation of the states without any discretion as to the wisdom of the state laws. It is proposed that congress shall give a blindfolded approval thereof.

"The section injects a destructive principle which detracts from the value of the general scheme of constructive control. It destroys the uniformity of the plan of regulation by giving each state arbitrary control of the sale of interstate securities within its boundaries. It also denies the federal government its proper function of acting as arbiter between the states in the regulation of interstate commerce."

HALF BILLION RELIEF BILL TO BE REPORTED TO CONGRESS TODAY

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—The Wagner-Lewis half billion dollar relief bill will emerge from the house-senate conference room tomorrow loaded down with political patronage jobs.

A compromise between negotiators for the two houses resulted today in the retention of the house stipulation that positions under the "new federal relief administrator" be outside the civil service. The senate had insisted that only persons with civil service status be employed under the bill.

In connection with the house's insistence that the relief bill open up a host of new jobs to be filled from the patronage lists, it was recalled that the administration has not yet cut the political pie expected by members of congress. Patronage is being withheld until the administration legislative program has been pushed through in accordance with the wishes of the President.

HOLD THREE AS BURGLARS.

Judge John Gutknecht in the Boys' court yesterday held three youths to the grand jury on burglary charges and set their bonds at $1,000 each. The youths are David Edwards, 23 years old, of Oak Park; Patrick Burke, 25 years old, and Thomas Campagna, 20 years old.

U. S. CONTROL FOR FOOD AND DRUG TRADE PLANNED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Plans for rigid control of the food and drug industries are being laid by the department of agriculture and President Roosevelt may soon be asked to call upon congress for a full rewriting of the federal food and drug act.

All embracing federal control, including the laying down of legal minimum standards for foods and drugs, government inspection of plants and censorship of radio and printed advertising is being weighed by the department.

Behind the drive for renovation of the food and drug act is Rexford G. Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture and a member of the President's staff of professorial assistants. W. C. Campbell, head of the food and drug administration, is said to have been entrusted with the drafting of the proposed legislation.

As it now stands the plan is believed to contain several points ranging from provisions for licensing of manufacturers to penalties for slack packing of cosmetics.

A move to make the publisher of any advertisement which is judged false jointly liable with the advertising agency and the advertiser has been dropped.

HALF A MILLION AUTOS EVADING LICENSE TAXES

Old Plates Still Numerous on Streets Here.

BY HAL FOUST.

With a third of the year gone there are still half a million Illinois passenger cars and about 70,000 trucks operating without 1933 license plates. Secretary of State Hughes reported yesterday that 786,204 passenger cars and 110,125 trucks were registered for this year on May 1, as compared with a total registered for last year of 1,311,783 passenger cars and 181,715 trucks.

After July 1 plates may be purchased for half price, but Mr. Hughes has warned that the attorney general has held that these six months' licenses may be issued only where the car has not been operated during the first half of the year, and only where the car was not registered for the preceding year in the name of the present owner. The license fee can not be evaded by waiting another two months before buying the plates.

Thousands Escape Arrest.

Two weeks ago the Chicago police started their first serious effort to enforce the automobile tax laws. Approximately 20,000 arrests were made. The campaign during the last few weeks has been waning, but there are still 150,000 passenger cars and 25,000 trucks operating in this city without 1933 plates.

In a drive yesterday from Evanston to the Tribune Tower, the following numbers were noted on 1932 plates. With the numbers are published the make of car and the name to whom the licenses were issued.

439-855 [La Salle] Sam Pincus, 6807 Wayne avenue.
1-034-110 [Peerless] E. L. Butler, 846 Montrose avenue.

License Books Delayed.

The collections are so late this year that police of the state are still without any published lists of 1933 license holders. These are used by the police in tracing the ownership of automobiles abandoned or involved in crimes or accidents.

Some states have resorted to reductions of the registration fees to keep automobiles from going into dead storage. In Illinois the rates are the same as in more prosperous days. There has been no concerted move to reduce the Illinois license because almost all of the $160,000,000 road bonds are outstanding against revenue from this tax, and bankers fear a change in the statute might jeopardize the validity of the bonds.

ROB INSURANCE OFFICE OF $500.

Two bandits yesterday held up the offices of the Workmen of the World, an insurance company at 3929 East 92d street. Andrew Starrick, 9004 Escanaba avenue, the manager, was forced to give up $500.

POLICE OFFICER'S SILENCE FREES 2 BANDIT SUSPECTS

Patrolman John McDonough of the Brighton Park police, who has been in the county jail since a coroner's jury recommended that he be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder, refused to testify in the Felony court yesterday against two men whom he had charged with attempted robbery. The men, Edward Laurence, 27 years old, 3429 Charleton street, and Robert McCormick, 21 years old, 3507 West 60th place, were freed by Judge Howard Hayes, who said they could not be held if the policeman failed to testify.

Attorney James M. Burke, representing McDonough, told Judge Hayes that his client would refuse to testify until after the murder trial.

Patrolman McDonough was held by the coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Austin Kittridge, 27 years old, 3525 South Marshfield avenue. The policeman testified at the inquest that he had thought Kittridge and the other two men were trying to rob a soft drink parlor at 3600 South Marshfield avenue on April 2, and that he fired at them, killing Kittridge, and wounding Laurence and McCormick.

RACING FLYERS START SEASON IN FORT WORTH

BY HUGH SEXTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., May 5.—[Special.]—The American air race circuit opened a new season of thrilling aerial maneuvers and races here this afternoon beneath a cloudless summer sky. More than 5,000 persons attended the first day of a three day show sponsored by the Fort Worth Star Telegram.

A group of the country's leading racing and stunt pilots emerged from winter inactivity with a bag full of new tricks and more breath taking stunts to stage a program that brought the spectators to their feet with applause. They were celebrating the opening of a series of air shows and air races to be held in more than fifty cities this summer under the auspices of the American Air Race Association, Inc.

In Chicago for Fair.

The circuit includes the American air races outstanding aviation events of the year to be staged at Chicago airport July 1, 2, 3, and 4 in connection with A Century of Progress.

John Livingston of Aurora, Ill., winner of more air races than any other American pilot, started the show off with a burst of 300 mile speed after a power dive 1 mile long. He flew a Howard special racer. Arthur J. Davis of East Lansing, Mich., war time pilot and veteran aerobat, followed with a balloon bursting exhibition.

Arthur T. Killips of Lyons, Ill., holder of the international trophy for aerobatics, swept across the airport in inverted flight at a height of only 50 feet. Livingston, Davis and Killips, composing the only civilian formation stunt team in the country, performed a series of military maneuvers in tight formation that rivaled the army's "Three Musketeers." Killips placed first in a closely fought 25 mile closed course race. Davis was second and Marcellus King third. Davis and Killips later simulated an aerial dog fight.

Woman Flyer on Hand.

Washburn, Wis., May 5.—[Special.]—Concluding their second day at Brinks camp in the Moquah National forest, 212 Milwaukee youths enrolled in company 640, civilian conservation corps, have decided that camping in northern Wisconsin is a great adventure.

So far the boys have had no chance to plant trees or to take part in any reforestation activity, but they made preliminary observations today of territory previously planted by the federal forestry department. Capt. N. N. Rogers, commanding officer, said it probably would be more than a week before active work gets under way.

"The first thing we must do is organize our camp headquarters so they will be suitable for our six months' stay," he said. "The boys will be drilled daily to keep them in trim."

The Milwaukee boys were as cheerful today as they were the first day of their arrival, but they had grown more accustomed to their surroundings. They no longer wondered why there are no trees in the the vicinity of their camp, realizing that it will be their purpose to create a forest. The general question of the boys at first was: "Where are the trees?"

"Fifty years from now we can come back here with our grandchildren and show them the forest we made," remarked Thomas Pilachowski, one of the recruits. "This sure is a great country. The only trouble about it is there isn't a swimming hole near the camp."

The boys were informed that several trout streams flow nearby the camp and that they could take their dips in these. Many of the youths said they hoped they would get some time off to try for a few northern Wisconsin brook trout, about which they had heard.

The recruits are learning much about nature, many of the boys never having been in the woods. Some of them have seen deer, grouse and gophers for the first time. The youths displayed as much excitement over a rabbit as they would for a bear.

Wolves howled last night, but the boys fell into such a sound slumber that they didn't hear them.

NOTED MANAGEMENT EXPERT IS RETAINED BY STEVENS HOTEL

Lucius Boomer, president of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York, has been engaged as adviser and consultant by the Stevens hotel during A Century of Progress Exposition, according to an announcement last night by Arthur B. Hall, receiver for the Stevens.

LUCIUS BOOMER.

"Due to the volume of business anticipated during the World's Fair, the Stevens, as the largest hotel in the world, needed the services of the foremost authority on the management of large hotels," explained Mr. Hall. "The first week in June will start a series of convention engagements extending practically without interruption during the entire period of the fair."

Mr. Boomer is to begin his services immediately, although he will divide his time between Chicago and New York during the summer. He was president of the old Waldorf-Astoria and was also in charge of the McAlpin when that hotel was opened in New York. He later became president of the Boomer-Du Pont Properties which controlled many major hotels. He has written a standard text book on the scientific management of large hotels.

JAPS ASK RUSSIA TO CONFERENCE OVER RAILROAD

TOKIO, May 5.—(AP)—Japan has proposed to soviet Russia the convening of a conference at Tokio of Japanese, soviet, and Manchukuoan delegates to work out solutions for problems which are troubling Russo-Japanese relations. This was authoritatively made known today.

Questions which now are disturbing the relations of the Tokio and Moscow governments and which would be treated at the projected meeting are the controversy over management of the Chinese Eastern railway, jointly operated by Russia and Manchukuo; clashes involving soviet Russia which have occurred on the soviet-Manchurian frontier, and the question of navigation rights on the Sungari river, which is a great Manchurian tributary of the Amur, natural frontier between northern Manchuria and Siberia.

Try to Assassinate Governor.

TIENTSIN, China, May 5.—(AP)—Chinese officials said today that an unsuccessful attempt had been made Monday to assassinate Yuh Suehchung, provincial governor and commander of the Chinese Tientsin garrison. They held agents of the state of Manchukuo responsible.

Tuesday morning two men, said by the Chinese to have been implicated, were executed by order of the governor. The men were said to have confessed and to have charged that Manchukuoan agents arranged it.

RABBI PROTESTS HITLER CHOICE AS ENVOY TO FAIR

Rabbi George Fox of the South Shore temple at 7215 Jeffery avenue, last night expressed severe condemnation of the action of Chancellor Adolf Hitler in appointing Joseph Goebbels to represent Germany at A Century of Progress.

Goebbels, said the rabbi, is the chief propagandist and the leading anti-Semite among the German Nazis.

"If he comes here," added the rabbi, "to receive the plaudits of the American people, I should not like to be responsible for what will happen. Hitler has a great deal of temerity to send such a man to represent his government here."

SUPER SHELL was originally made to give special performance to big cars. Priced at 3 cents extra per gallon, motorists cheerfully paid $8,513,783.88 above the price of ordinary gasoline for its super qualities—and got value received.

Today, the "3 cents extra" is gone. Super Shell is the price of ordinary gasoline. And it is even further improved.

Shell asked 112,327 of you motorists, in our service stations and in your homes, to name the qualities you wanted most in a gasoline. Super Shell has been made to fit your exact requirements.

Extra fast starting—hair-trigger pick-up—surging power in high—mileage—and an anti-knock rating that is higher than any gasoline to which Ethyl has not been added. These are the qualities you said you wanted in your gasoline—they're there in Super Shell.

Mileage is its outstanding quality! By a special process of refining Super Shell, Shell has eliminated all the waste parts from a gasoline, leaving, in concentrated form, only those parts your engine needs.

Change to Super Shell. It is colored golden for your protection. Results will prove its economy for you.

● If you prefer an ethylized fuel, it is obtainable under the name of Super-Shell Ethyl—an improved gasoline with ethyl added. A double premium gasoline at a single premium price.

W. J. Henderson
Kansas City, Mo.

"Super Shell more than lives up to its advertising claims. It certainly has wonderful power and quick pick-up. I am going to save money because my car gets more miles to the gallon on this new gasoline."

Guide Children with Reason— Mrs. Bevans Points the Way

Two Marriages Hold Society Interest on First Saturday in May

Anne Schuttler to Be Bride in Wheaton; Ruth Hunter Ceremony at Fortnightly.

BY JUDITH CASS.

EVEN if the weather is as bad today as it was yesterday—and the weather man didn't predict a lovely spring day for this first Saturday in May—it won't interfere with the wedding plans of Miss Anne Schuttler and Norris Love, but it will make it unpleasant for those who are planning to drive to Wheaton for the ceremony this afternoon.

And it might interfere with plans for the decoration of the living room of the Schuttler residence, where the service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church, for yesterday the bride's mother, Mrs. Walter Schuttler, was worrying for fear the wind and rain would ruin the wild cherry blossoms that were to be used as a background for the improvised altar.

About 100 relatives and friends will witness the ceremony and attend the reception that will follow. Miss Jane Schuttler is to be her sister's only attendant and George Beach of Montclair, N. J., is to serve as best man for Mr. Love, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Love of Riverside.

Among the out of town guests here for the wedding are Mr. Schuttler's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Myron A. Wick of Cleveland, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Horace Keeler, also of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Love will go to Bermuda on their wedding trip and upon their return they will be at home in the Schuttlers' town apartment on Commonwealth avenue, probably spending every week-end in Wheaton with Mr. and Mrs. Schuttler.

Hunter Wedding at Fortnightly.

A town wedding to which informal invitations were issued by the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Hunter, that will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, will be that of Miss Ruth Hunter to Harding Wilbur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Wilbur. The service is to be read by the Rev. Alfred Lee Wilson of the Kenwood church at the Fortnightly club with only the relatives and intimate friends present.

The bride will be given in marriage by her uncle, Thomas E. Wilson, and attending her will be Mrs. William Berryman Jr. of Pittsburgh as matron of honor and Miss Olive Morse of Beverly Hills, Cal., as maid of honor.

Richard Knight of New York will serve as Mr. Wilbur's best man and ushering will be the bride's cousin, Edward F. Wilson, Lorne Smith, and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Justin Webster, and William P. Budd.

Mr. Wilbur and his bride also have chosen Bermuda as the ideal place in which to spend their honeymoon and upon their return they will be with Mrs. Hunter at 1500 Lake Shore drive until autumn when they will move to Evanston.

Mary Dawes Is Engaged.

The rose point lace veil that was worn recently by Miss Margaret Dawes when she became Mrs. Beverly Jefferson, and several years before by her sister, Jean, when she was married to Robert Sherman, will be taken out of its tissue paper wrappings for another Dawes bride in the near future, undoubtedly. Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, mother of Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. Sherman, told us at the time of Margaret's marriage that she intended to lend the lovely lace to all the brides in the family.

And yesterday at a luncheon at their residence on Greenleaf avenue, in Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dawes announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to George Henry Schulz, son of Mrs. Otto Schulz of 6106 Kenmore avenue. Miss Dawes attended Mount Vernon seminary in Washington and then Pine Manor at Wellesley, where she was graduated. She never made a formal debut. Mr. Schulz "prepped" at Lawrenceville for Princeton, and after graduating from college he went to the Harvard business school.

No plans for the wedding have been made. Miss Dawes is the only daughter of the Henry M. Dawesses and a niece of Charles G. Dawes and Rufus C. Dawes. She has one brother, Curtis, who is unmarried and living in Syracuse, N. Y.

Deweys to Give Dinner for Poles.

The Charles S. Deweys are giving another of their delightful dinner parties for two distinguished Polish visitors tonight—there never is a well-known Pole who comes here who does not carry away a pleasant memory of hospitality enjoyed in the Dewey's home on State parkway. Tonight's particular guests are Stanislaw Patek, Polish ambassador to the United States, and Gen. Roman Gorecki, Polish banker and president of Fidac, international organization of war veterans.

Gen. Gorecki arrived last night for a two day visit and the ambassador will arrive this evening, also for a visit of two days. Among the other affairs to be given for them is a luncheon the Polish consul general, Titus Zbyszewski, will give at his apartment, 999 Lake Shore drive, tomorrow at noon. A dinner for the ambassador ahd been planned by the Polish societies of the city for tomorrow night at the Drake hotel, but the ambassador asked that it be changed to a reception because he felt that many of the Polish people might find it embarrassing to pay for a dinner. So at 9 o'clock tomorrow night he will meet members of the Polish organizations at a formal reception.

The large green swimming pool of the Women's Athletic club will be reverberating with cries and squeals, and mothers and nurses on the sidelines will be getting soaked through from splashing at 11 o'clock this morning, for that is the time the club is having its children's swimming meet.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the Hobart Youngs, the Ernest Ballards, the Frank W. Ketchams, the Donald F. McPhersons, and the Howard W. Fentons will mount their horses at the Indian Hill Riding club for a canter across the country to the north and west. Upon their return there is to be tea at the clubhouse. Children of the club members are to have a group ride at 10 o'clock this morning.

After four or five false starts Winnetkans believe that spring is really on the way so they are planning to hold the first of their Sunday baseball games tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock on a triangular bit of land on Sheridan road not far from the George B. Masseys' house.

Some of the players are Dr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Butler, Mr. and Mrs. William Magie II., Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Norem, Mr. and Mrs. J. Houstoun M. Clinch, Mr. and Mrs. Ayres Boal Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Brownell Bradstreet, Loren J. and George B. Massey Jr., Daniel Leonard, and two young sisters, Deborah Leonard and Phoebe Massey. After the game the participants take turns in offering tea and coffee at their various homes.

Offer Century Club for President's Use.

George Dickson telephoned yesterday to tell us that Arthur Meeker, president of the Century club, had telephoned from California to offer to the trustees of A Century of Progress the facilities of the club for any private entertaining that may be done for President Roosevelt during the time he is here to open the exposition on May 27.

If the trustees decide to accept the offer—it is doubtful if the President will be here long enough for any entertaining to be done for him—it will not be the official opening of the club, for that will be a housewarming for members only near the opening date of the fair.

It was decided definitely yesterday to change the date of the Bal des Quat'z Arts to be given in "Paris" at the fair from May 29 to the 27th, and it is hoped by the directors that the President will be able to attend it, perhaps after the reception the trus-

Trouser Vogue Starts French Skirt Division

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Everybody is wondering, with more or less wild curiosity, what women are going to do about this rumor of trousers for females as a big fashion. The Paris dressmakers know what they're going to do about it for the moment. They declare a moratorium, and refuse to hand out trousered styles, except for beach wear or active sports.

They are, however, granting a skirt division in moderated comfortable quanties. Schiaparelli, who likes always to see her clients comfortable, shows some divided skirts, but this is nothing new for that girl.

The pictured ensemble reveals Worth's divided skirt, which is for sports wear. Miss Dulin has drawn this so you can notice the division, but in any ordinary movement this Worth model looks like a one-piece dress with a nondivided skirt. It is made of striped black and white cotton goods. The skirt-trousers are cut circular, with a seam at the front and back.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

An audience of a size that any impresario would respect assembled in the Grand Opera house last night to see a play, unknown to fame, called "Return to Folly." A philosophic St. Bernard dog with a contribution box on his shoulders did sentry duty in the lobby as a symbol of the auspices of the occasion, for this was a benefit for Orphans of the Storm, a refuge for canine tramps.

The cast was composed of amateurs—with a single exception, who undoubtedly was a more potent box office lure than any sense of the need for relief work among masterless dogs. This exception was Irene Castle McLaughlin, whose career as a dancer is a bright legend of the pre-armistice period.

It happens that this famous entertainer, who served as a model for the first generation of bob-haired flappers, did not emerge from her retirement in her old specialty. This was probably a "first time on any stage" for Irene in the comedy of manners, without a one-step, a Charleston, or a Castle walk to break the flow of dialogue. She acted a sympathetic and yearning young widow who is ready to console a harassed husband as soon as he makes up his mind to break away from his unsatisfactory wife. But he disappoints her in the end, and she remains merely nice "Aunt" Gertrude, the lady who lives next door.

One does not apply professional standards to these casual specimens of little theater work, and therefore Mrs. McLaughlin's performance of the pretty widow who didn't get her wish need not be described in detail. She was a striking picture in several clever costumes; she was poised, except in her first scene, when a touch of first-night nerves suggested a temptation to go into a dance; and she was competent.

So were most of the others, especially the six juniors of the company, playing schoolboy and collegian types according to the current formula for adolescents. A lad named Rankin Roberts IV. displayed distinct professional quality—and I hope that this remark does not ruin the career of a promising young La Salle street man.

The play itself deals with the horror of having in the home a wife and mother who becomes a novelist and wins the overestimated Pulitzer prize. Its material is that of light comedy, but it develops a curious emotional and "problem play" tone in its last act. The program states that "Return to Folly" will reach Broadway next fall, probably under another title. Before that happens, however, it should receive three more rewritings and be purged of a somewhat "dated" quality. If Harlan Ware could persuade Rachel Crothers to collaborate with him something might come of it.

Studio Provides Special College for Aspirants

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 5.—[Special.]—A program for recruiting and developing young film talent is being launched by Universal studio through arrangement with the Los Angeles Junior college. Dean Harold M. Turner of the college, which is a municipal institution, will handle the course of instruction, which will start on the Junior college campus toward the end of next month and continue throughout the summer. Classes will be recruited by giving Saturday auditions to youthful aspirants and permitting the best of those taking the tests to register in the school.

Universal will pay the boys and girls for their three months of instruction. Bona fide students, either from high school or college, will be allowed to apply for auditions. At the end of three months forty or fifty of the best pupils are to be rewarded with contracts to Universal. In return for sponsoring the classes and paying the students through their three months of instruction the Universal company reserves to itself the right to use any one or all of the pupils for extra work, bits, or even juvenile or leading rôles in pictures during the three months of the course.

Carl Laemmle Jr., now in charge at Universal, says he expects to introduce thirty or forty new faces to the screen in Universal films next year and thinks the summer coaching school will qualify most of them.

Joan Crawford is to dance an extravaganza sequence in "Hollywood Revue of 1933" which MGM is making.

Bridge Tourney for Duration of Fair Opens

Two thousand eyes glared grimly. Two thousand hands trembled nervously. There was muttering and mumbling and a great tapping of feet. Then, the signal was given and 13,000 pasteboards went flickering across hundreds of tables. The annual contract bridge tournament of the Western Bridge association was on.

No ordinary bridge tournament, this meeting which opened last night in the Palmer house. It started an orgy of bridge playing which will last through A Century of Progress with a daily duplicate bridge contest in the Hall of Science.

An ordinary bridge player wandered among the tables. There was no laughter. There was no conversation. There was no kibitzing. There was no friendliness. There was a savage intensity. There was a stony courtesy. There was a frightful concentration. The ordinary bridge player sneaked out shivering.

There were contract bridge players present at this opening tourney who will play in public every day for months. They could be marked by the happy, feverish gleam in their eyes. From Pittsburgh and from Los Angeles they had come to participate in this wild debauch of card playing.

Here and there were players who could be expected to rank high when the final scores were jotted down. There were E. M. Lagron, Mrs. C. K. Wellman, Hortense Evans, Edward C. Rolfe of Cleveland, Madeleine Kerwin of New York, Dr. Sidney H. Easton of Peoria, Mrs. Florence Wright of Davenport, Ia., and E. Hall Downs of Pittsburgh.

An announcement during the evening heightened the enthusiasm. There will be a four day cruise on the great lakes in June, during which there will be nothing but bridge played on deck.

There was immense solemnity when the list of prizes was revealed. It was stated that the winners of the contract pair championship will be awarded cups of imitation gold, sixteen inches in height, with the crest of the Western Bridge association emblazoned thereon. According to the circulars distributed, "the winners may truly feel that they possess cups which outrank any similar trophies in the bridge playing world."

The qualifying rounds for the contract pair championship were held last night. The semi-finals will be held this afternoon. At 8 o'clock tonight the finals will start.

Mirrors Trap Two Women in Swift Movie

Good Morning!

That's the surface moral of this movie. The deeper, more potent one is, of course, that she'd better not stoop to folly.

"The Kiss Before the Mirror" is sensational and somewhat unusual of plot. It discusses the affairs of two women and their lovers and the effect of these unfortunate alliances on their own lives and those of their husbands.

The revolver of Prof. Bernstoff, who has gazed in a mirror over his wife's shoulder, speaks briefly and effectually—and Mrs. Bernstoff is no more. This husband goes on trial for murder. His attorney, a brilliant chap of high standing who is also an old college chum of the defendant, has a difficult time getting his client's story; but at last the professor breaks down and tells all . . .

Events throughout the film are dramatic and swift moving. I couldn't say honestly that the story is consistently credible. It isn't. But it IS interesting.

Frank Morgan, that able actor, who can convey so much by a lift of the eyebrow, a slight hesitation, a move of the hand, gives an outstanding portrayal as Held, and Paul Lukas is very fine in a couple of emotional scenes.

Nancy Carroll and Gloria Stuart are alluring as the philandering ladies. Jean Dixon overplays as Held's terse spinster assistant.

Mrs. Chalmers Gives Historic Needlepoint Chair to College

Work of Isabella Pinkerton Will Go Back to School Where She Made It.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A NEEDLEPOINT chair is being crated this morning at 1100 Lake Shore drive. It is going back to the little town where it was made three-quarters of a century ago.

It is a precious piece exquisitely worked in blended colors and handsomely framed in solid rosewood. But, more than this, it is a historic piece, telling the story of one little cripple who through her gentle fortitude has made life active and happy again for hundreds of crippled boys and girls.

Yesterday Mrs. William J. Chalmers sat down in the comfortable library of her town apartment and repeated the story with all the sentiment it has held for her these many years. The chair is hers. And the little cripple who is the reason for other handicapped children bearing their cross more lightly was Isabelle Pinkerton, the first of Allan Pinkerton's ten children, Mrs. Chalmers' oldest sister.

For years the gracefully turned chair has had a prominent position in the Chalmers' Lake Shore drive drawing room. Before this it decorated the living room of the Pinkerton house at Monroe street and Ashland boulevard. The Historical society asked for it long ago, but Mrs. Chalmers has now decided that it should go back to St. Mary's college at South Bend, where little Isabelle stitched the cushions as a student.

"She was 15 years old then," Mrs. Chalmers recalled yesterday. "Born in 1844 in Dundee, mother and father brought her to Chicago as a baby and here she was entered in the old Dearborn school that stood at Madison and State streets. During the frolic and romp of a recess period a day in 1850 she lost her footing and fell down a stairway, suffering irreparable spinal injury that stayed with her until the end of her short life."

For 13 years after the crippling accident Isabelle lived but never again did she know a well day. All of her family's money and prestige . . . Allan Pinkerton was soon to give his memorable services to the government to help uncover war conspiracies . . . could bring no relief. The medical profession as then practiced was unable to do anything for her.

"She was sent to St. Mary's because it was in the country," continued Mrs. Chalmers. "And there it seemed all of her energy and ability went into her needlework. The chair is only one of many lovely things she did. The chair was made between 1859 and 1862.

"But even country life was not a cure. Gradually her frail body gave way. At 19 she died in the old Briggs house at 5th avenue and Randolph street."

All of the pain she bore only endeared her to her younger brothers and sisters. She became their ideal of gentleness and courage.

Twenty-two years ago this ideal took form in the Country Home for Convalescent Children. Jumping a span of 40 odd years, Mrs. Chalmers went on yesterday to tell this sequel to her story.

"The courage, the fortitude of my sister had always been close to me," she related. "But it was James H. Eckels, the father of Mrs. James A. Stevenson, who brought it back to me so vividly one day a quarter of a century ago. I determined to do all in my power for other crippled boys and girls. 'You do so much charity, Joan,' Mr. Eckels said to me. 'Why don't you help little children?'"

And then and there Mrs. Chalmers,

ISABELLA PINKERTON.

Its growth has been amazing these 22 years.

The generosity of individuals has kept pace with the advances of science. From fresh air refuge for 19 tubercular boned children it has grown into a model for institutions of its kind throughout the world. Just as a young girl, an artist, was given a new limb last week, boys and girls are going back, healed and instructed, to a world that sent them afflicted and untutored.

The World's Fair summer visitors from far and near will come to see the home. They will also stop to see the handicrafts of these children, that are to be shown in a very special corner of the exhibit room on the Enchanted island. Then, on June 21, they will gather in the island's theater for children to see a cast of boys and girls from the convalescent home present the play "The Nativity."

These are also Mrs. Chalmers' plans. For, with the same incentive, the same amazing generosity and energy that she showed in founding the home, she is ever ready to carry it to new and greater goals.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah and resents Jane's being ever present. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for the two of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Jane takes Dinah for a drink before going home. Fiske meets them entering the house and thinks Dinah intoxicated and blames Jane.

INSTALLMENT VI.

THE TERROR OF THE HUNTED.

"I want to talk to you about Dinah," Jane said.

"Yes," Fiske said. "Yes—thanks. Where shall I meet you?"

She mentioned a restaurant near his office.

"Half past twelve?" she said.

"Yes—thanks," he answered, with the same undisguised, chill hostility. Jane looked after him as he went down the hall, and she sighed, a long, a very weary sigh.

Dinah had come out after her now.

"What makes you bother so with that Fiske boy?" she demanded. "I saw you trying to talk to him—with him standing there with that hateful, high and mighty expression. . . . Please don't make up to him on my account—because I just detest him. And if he saw me . . . let him think what he likes!"

Jane glanced at her, and looked away.

"Come on! We'll be late, Dinah!"

"I don't seem to care," said Dinah. "I never was so miserable, all my days."

And standing there, in her light summer dress, and the wide brimmed

"Young Clubman Found Murdered in Home! Mystery Woman Involved." Jane paid for the paper and they stood aside.

straw hat that gave a soft shadow to her charming young face, she looked so forlorn, so utterly dispirited, that Jane's heart ached for her.

"Life has to go on, Dinah . . ."

They walked over to the subway together, and there on the news stand Jane's quick eye caught sight of a tabloid with a caption that made her catch her breath. Dinah turned. Dinah saw it too.

Jane paid for the paper and they stood aside from the hurrying crowd.

"At midnight the Filipino servant of Philip Divine, well known young clubman and Broadway playboy, found the body of his master lying dead in the hall of his home in the aristocratic Gramercy Park section. There were two bullet wounds in the body, one in the head, and the second in the left breast, which, the police surgeon asserts, was the cause of the death.

"A pink crêpe de chine handkerchief bearing traces of some expensive perfume and found near the scene of the crime has set the police on the trail of certain women known to have been closely associated with the murdered man's life.

Dinah read no more.

She went down the subway stairs with Jane, like an automaton.

She remembered that, after her own shot, when she had sunk half fainting to the floor, she had fancied she had heard that shot reverberate, re-echo, as if it were to have no end in her memory.

It was no echo she had heard. There had been another shot.

And where had Jane been then?

The time had come for Dinah to learn that bitter lesson Jane had pointed out to her. Life has to go on. You can enjoy its progress, you can be debonair and laughing—or you can go with leaden feet and aching heart, in misery. But whichever way it is, the clock does not stop, the sun rises. Life has to go on.

And Dinah had to go on. She went to her office, cold with a fear and dread she would not analyze. It seemed to her that she could not finish this day. Yet the moment she entered the office, the moment she was once again involved in the familiar routine, she grew steadier. She could do her work and when any one spoke to her she could answer, even smile. That fear that stood shrouded in her heart could be ignored.

She was aware, though, every minute of the day, that the hour of reckoning must come, when she would have to think. While she ate her lunch at a cafeteria with another girl, thoughts that were more like premonitions flitted through her head. Two bullet wounds—and one of them fatal. A pink crêpe de chine handkerchief . . . Jane had one—or had had one . . . Jane, who had been so strangely at home in that house . . .

Then, when she was in the subway going home, the very presence of the crowd about her gave her an illusion of solitude. There was no one here she knew, no familiar face; this was the outside world, that read newspapers, that formed opinions, that made up juries, that judged and condemned. What would the verdict of this world be?

She could look back now, over every step of that evening, and she could see what she had not been able to see before.

It had surprised her, at the time, that the reserved and fastidious Jane had so readily accepted the advances of that stranger. Now she thought:

"Suppose that man wasn't a stranger? Suppose Jane knew him . . . ?"

It had been Jane who had suggested going to the drug store; suppose Jane had known he would come there, had arranged that meeting?

"No!" thought Dinah. "Jane's not like that. She's not—underhand . . ."

She recalled, deliberately, all Jane's kindnesses to her, all the course of their friendship, that had never been marred by one sharp word. She remembered how Jane had taken her out of that horrible house, all her sisterly patience and consideration.

Was it the shot she herself had fired which had killed the man, or that second shot, that she had thought an echo in a nightmare? And if it had been the second one . . . ?

She had seen, she had heard no one else in that house except herself, and Jane, and the man.

"Then if I didn't do it . . ." she thought, and would not continue the thought.

She tried to divert her mind from the horror that was growing upon her. She read the advertisements on the walls; she glanced about her, idly, casually.

And encountered the eyes of a man looking at her. That was in no way an unusual thing for such a pretty little creature as Dinah. She would ordinarily, have looked past him with calm unconcern. But it seemed to her that there was something familiar about that dark, narrow face, with the little black mustache. She was forced to glance at him again and again. He was looking at her. This time something in the fine modeling of his cheek and jaw brought back the full recollection, with the force of a blow.

It was the man who had passed them in the street, when they left that house.

Now for the first time, Dinah knew an overwhelming personal fear. She had, before this, felt a dreadful regret and horror for what she believed she had done. Now she was to experience the panic terror of the hunted.

That man recognized her. Perhaps he had followed her . . . Perhaps when she came out of the subway, she would feel a hand on her shoulder, be taken away, locked up, made to answer question after question, until, exhausted, confused, she most fatally betrayed herself or her friend.

The handkerchief was Jane's. But had she herself let it drop when she had opened Jane's bag by mistake? Was it she who had left that filmy wisp of a thing that might ruin them both?

And whose shot had killed the man?

BY MARY MEADE.

More foods failing this morning—not cakes or popovers this time, but cream puffs. The first request in today's question clinic comes from Miss E. M. C., who is able to make lovely big puffs—in the oven. But when they come out to cool they collapse! This was the recipe she used:

CREAM PUFFS.

4 eggs.

That recipe is a good one. I won't give you Miss C.'s method since it was wrong. But this is the correct way to put the above ingredients together. Heat the water, salt, and butter in the top pan of a double boiler placed directly over the burner. Have ready the lowest part of the boiler with hot water in it. When the water, salt, and butter have come to a boil, place the pan over the water and add the flour, beating thoroughly.

Now cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture forms a ball which just leaves the sides of the pan clean. Remove the pan from the heat immediately and cool. If it is cooked even a half minute beyond this stage, the butter may separate out and the puffs will not puff. When the mixture is cooled, beat in the eggs one at a time, mixing each in thoroughly before adding another.

Drop by spoonfuls or from a pastry tube onto a greased baking sheet. Leave space between for spreading—about 1½ inches. There should be about 2 tablespoons in each puff. As you drop them, shape them up a little higher in the center than at the sides. Now bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 15 minutes. Turn down the heat and bake at least 30 minutes longer at 325 degrees F. This is important— and the place that most cooks make their mistakes—for if the puffs are taken out of the oven before they are entirely dried out, they are likely to fall. Finally cut off the top of each puff or make an incision on the side and put the filling in with a pastry tube.

Next comes a question very much out of the ordinary—but one which I'm answering here because at one time or another we all seem to have use for the facts of the case. So why not clip it, tuck it away with the picnic recipes and try it out next time you have the yen for camp life.

OLD FASHIONED BEAN HOLE BEANS.

1 teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons molasses.
1 cup tomato sauce [optional].

Simply wash the beans well and put to soak overnight. In the morning cook in the same water until the skins split. Next heat a good sized earthenware pot in the oven and when hot, place in it half the tomato sauce as a bottom layer. Pour in half the beans, which have been mixed with salt. Add the rest of the tomato sauce, half the molasses and the pork cut in slices. Add the rest of the beans, then the remainder of the molasses. Finally pour ½ cup of water over the top and cover closely. And now comes the fun.

HOW TO PREPARE THE BEAN HOLE.

Dig a hole in the ground about 1½ feet in diameter and 1½ feet deep. Line this pit with stones and build a fire. This fire should be kept going several hours before the beans are to be started baking in order to heat the stones thoroughly. Now, when the beans are ready and the stones are hot, scoop out the coals and ashes, lower the pot into the hole and dump the hot ashes in around it. Cover over with the hot cinders. Top with earth and if there's a threat of rain in the clouds, cover the earth with large pieces of bark. Let the beans bake for 6 to 8 hours.

Sunday Suppers Solve Many a Social Problem

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"What can we do on Sunday evenings? We are a group of girls who would like to have dinner parties and invite the boys, but the truth is that we can't afford fancy dinners. We can't afford amusements if they cost money."

Sunday evening is just wide open with opportunity for a group of girls who live at home to do their social stuff in a charming, albeit economical way. There is always that blessed Sunday night supper to fall back upon—and we do not know any act of hostessing by young women by which you can provide so much fun for your money.

Where there is a group of girls, the supper expense is further simplified, each donating some item. But even for one girl in her home the Sunday evening supper is the answer to her social prayer. Good taste calls for simple food serving at these affairs. One hot dish, biscuits, coffee are enough. Or, sandwiches, cakes, and coffee. A buffet table is arranged and helping themselves puts people in an informal, good time frame of mind.

We would like to see young women do more of this kind of entertainment, first, for practice in becoming a charming hostess. This is no mean virtue for a future wife to have. Then, it interests her in food preparation. It is nice to know how to prepare savory dishes, make up nice little sandwiches, serve coffee gracefully, and all that.

Following the supper, the evening can be given over to games.

It isn't an old fashioned practice, this. So, you young people need not be alarmed that we're trying to make old fashioned girls of you. It's even smart today to turn the kitchen into a scene of fudge making.

tees of the fair will give for him in the Hall of Science.

Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey has returned from a winter in Florida and is staying at the Seneca until June, when she will open the MacCaughey apartment for the summer. Miss Mary MacCaughey, who has been south with her mother, is at present in Kentucky with the Frontier Nursing association and will join her parents in Chicago in June.

As a rule it is the mother and daughter in a family who go traveling while the father and son remain at home, but in the David F. Bremner family this order is reversed, for today when the Vulcania steams out of New York for a Mediterranean cruise Mr. Bremner and James V. Bremner will be aboard, and Mrs. Bremner and Miss Alice are remaining at home. Miss Bremner is expecting a visitor later this month who will remain to be here for the opening of A Century of Progress. The visitor is Miss Evelyn Hastrup whose father is Danish consul in Porto Rico, where Miss Bremner has visited several times.

Sidney Heaps Take Penthouse.

Their Lake Forest and Winnetka friends will be disappointed to learn that after two months of diligent search for a house in the country Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Heap [Virginia Skinkle] have taken the penthouse atop 33 Bellevue place. Mrs. Heap says that it has loads of room and a great open space on the roof on which she is going to put trees and hedges, hammocks, and awnings, and have all the country she wants right in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gratiot Washburne, who have been in town for two months, have gone west to their ranch in Montana, where they will remain until next Christmas.

Mrs. Moisant Griffiths and Miss Gloria Griffiths have sailed to spend the summer abroad.

Mrs. Henry P. Shaw has left to join Mr. Shaw and their sons, Henry and George, in Pasadena, where the family will live.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hume will arrive in Chicago this morning from a European wedding trip, and will be at home in Mrs. Hume's mother's apartment, Mrs. Parmalee J. McFadden of 219 Lake Shore drive.

Men to Model Clothes Tonight

Twelve masculine mannequins will rescue the hitherto forgotten man from sartorial oblivion when they don the latest in bathing apparel, pajamas, formal summer wear, and the new mess jackets at the fashion show dinner dance the Evanston auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity Center is to have this evening at the Evanston Golf club.

For days members of the auxiliary have been busy transforming the ballroom into a southern beach and tap-room. Proceeds from the party are to be used to purchase a much needed automobile for the physicians called from the dispensary to all parts of the city on maternity cases.

A committee of prominent women is interested in the marionette show to be given at 2 o'clock this afternoon in St. Luke's parish house, Evanston, for the benefit of the Chase House auxiliary. Miss Ernestine Sidway is general chairman.

The woman's division of the Salvation Army is busy collecting white elephants for its rummage sale on May 12 and 13, location to be announced later. Mrs. Norval Pierce, treasurer of the division, says that any and every thing will be accepted gratefully and that contributions will be called for if the donor will telephone Harrison 7959, or the white elephants may be delivered to room 1114 at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Charles K. Corsant is president of the division and Mrs. Edward R. Fifield is chairman of the sale, the proceeds of which will go to the Woman's Home and Hospital and the Woman's Emergency lodge, which are supported by the woman's division.

The Kenwood-Loring school will welcome graduates at a tea this afternoon and a reception this evening in the school building at 4600 Ellis avenue. Members of this year's graduating class are to be the hostesses.

For Fashionable Ride

New Costumes Add to Joy of Bicycle Rides

Split Skirt Style Wins Followers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

After a winter spent indoors struggling fashionably with anagrams, jigsaw puzzles, and such amusements it isn't any shock to see the family speeding about on bicycles.

And so the ever knowing designers have sent some 1933 bicycling clothes that will simply stop traffic . . . breezy, different, snappy looking stuff that will make even grandma take to pedals. The newest things in town are the seersucker combines . . . clean, clear looking striped affairs, tailored like a wool suit. They are made in two pieces, a detachable plaited skirt and a blouse and shorts made in one piece. If you're young and slim and a likely prospect for a Ziegfeld chorus you wear the shorts and blouse and keep the skirt for state occasions when you ride through town.

However, the best thing about these outfits besides the unbelievably low price tag is the fashion fact that they can be used for golfing, tennis or, as some insurgent housebound female has discovered, as a kitchen frock for hot weather duties either with or without the separate skirt.

Next in popularity is the new divided skirt, made of wide wale cotton piqué . . . so cleverly and expertly designed that it hardly looks like the bifurcated affair that it really is . . . top this with a soft wool turtle neck sweater and the spring cycling costume is complete.

While you are shopping for socks you may be interested to know about some new lisle socks that you can buy for a pittance . . . they come in five colors, old blue, yellow, white, sun tan, and a pale green. They are meshed in the proper patterns to provide ventilation and chic. Worn with the newest gayly striped footwear for cycling feet, they are perfect.

Other footnotes for this outdoor sport are the foot huggers. . . . They have wild striped fabric toe sections and the side sections that meet at the back are of white rubber . . . They are quite the smoothest and most successful outdoor sports shoes you can find. Crêpe rubber soles make them ideal for sailing, motor boating, tennis, bicycle riding, and every other sport, including beach wear.

BOOKS

Quick Selects Mystery Tales from Big Heap

Hopes to Save Time for Crime Fans.

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

THERE has descended a plague of mystery stories to devour idle hours and eat inexcusably into the hours that might be better employed. Far be it from me to maintain that a good detective story is less important than any other good novel, but writers and publishers alike seem to take them less seriously than the common run of fiction, and the result is a high percentage of flops. To save you from these the following list is compiled:

PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

"The Opera Murders" [Scribner's], by Kirby Williams, should touch the heart of all good Chicagoans, for it is a story of our defunct opera in rather an original vein. The murderer has devised a way of ridding the stage of overripe prime donne that might be sold to any burdened opera company for publicity and practical purposes. If only one of our ex-directors had beaten Mr. Kirby to the idea we might still be packing the Civic Opera house.

In "Outrageous Fortune" [Lippincott] Patricia Wentworth stretches the long arm of coincidence to the point where it snaps back and jolts you, but a pleasant little love story breaks the force of the blow. You'll like it if it's the kind of mystery story you like. Everybody, good and bad alike, gets what's coming to them and lives forever afterward as happy as they deserve.

"The Saltmarsh Murders" [Macrae-Smith], by Gladys Mitchell, presents to the American public one of those lady seers who mystifies by knowing so much and telling so little. All sorts of bewildering things occur which are more or less justified in the latter end. It's nicely written in the smart British manner, but its pathology is more convincing than its psychology.

"The Westbrook Mystery" [H. C. Kinsey & Co.] is another of A. Fielding's satisfactory accounts of a good all-round murder. Inspector Pointer is on the job, and each clew is treated with the respect it deserves. For this very reason Mr. Fielding gets less respect than he deserves. In my opinion he is a writer of distinction who ennobles his chosen field.

"Death Is a Stowaway" [William Godwin, Inc.], by Wesley Price, is a little out of the ordinary run in plot and setting. Dastardly deeds are done on a luxurious yacht. Very probably you will like it.

"The Fate of Jane McKenzie" [Crime club], by Nancy Barr Mavity, is another of those stories of an eccentric family whose tangled affairs leave you a little cold, but Peter Piper, whom you have met before, is a nice young newspaper man who wisecracks to a reasonable solution of a more or les justifiable crime. Pretty good in its way.

Two English stories are "Hag's Nook" [Harper's], by John Dickson Carr, and "Murder at Cambridge" [Farrar & Rinehart], by Q. Patrick. They deal pleasantly with unpleasant subjects and present neat and logical solutions.

And now for an even better one, "After the Deacon Was Murdered" [Putman], by Cornelia Penfield. The ladies seem to be growing bloodthirsty from the numbers of them who write murder stories and, by and large, they seem to be a little better at it than the men. This is a story of a peaceful Connecticut town that has its crowded hour of inglorious death. Again it's a good novel as well as a good mystery story and rather touching in the scene that is set and the hidden sorrows that creep out from under the quiet surface of a little dying town. From every point of view it is a skillful story and commendable.

Two more of those muscle-builders have just been published, a Fletcher "Omnibus" and the "Celebrated Cases of Charlie Chan," Earl Derr Bigger's little Chinaman. Each contains five long stories and each weighs a ton, but who minds that when hot on the scent of so much good mystery?

And if you want to have all the romance extracted from crime and punishment read "Man Hunters of Scotland Yard" [Doubleday-Doran], by Arthur Fowler Neil, ex-superintendent C. I. D., New Scotland Yard. It will fill you with sorrow to learn how unbated is the breath of the successful sleuth and how jaunty he is in his conclusions. Also, it may interest you—and it may not.

Van Dine Writing Again as "Securities Lose Gilt"

S. S. Van Dine, who once said he would write six mystery stories and call a halt, has decided to write some more. He adds that the gilt on his gilt edged securities wore off unexpectedly, so he took to composing more fascinating mysteries on the backs of his worthless certificates.

Sees Other Author.

Meyer Levin says that when he was completing his "The New Bridge" [Covici-Friede] he noticed "another gent" across the way, opposite his window, who was typing energetically. The other man turned out to be E. E. Cummings and both men finished their books at the same time.

Primitive Life Subject of Two London Books

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Two new books which are going to be much talked of are, first, the new novel of John Collier, the author of "His Monkey Wife," and, second, a curious piece of autobiography entitled "Twenty Years a-Growing."

Mr. Collier's book, "Tom's a-Cold," will be published this month. It is a plain tale of sixty years hence, based upon the assumption that the world as we know it is upon the point of self-destruction and a return to primitive ways. It describes the adventures of a band of men living a rough life in the fields and woods of southern England. They have fragments of culture left among them, but for the most part are reduced to the lowest needs of man.

Rather a disconcerting book, perhaps, for those who formed their notions of Mr. Collier's talent from "His Monkey Wife." It is plain almost to baldness, and if it had not a preface and a long quotation from "Lear" at the beginning of it many readers might be puzzled to account for the attention which it will undoubtedly receive. My first impression of the book is that it is not quite a success, but there is an idea in it, the writing is good and unaffected, and the author's unquestionable gifts may carry it to many a hopeful reader.

The second book, "Twenty Years a-Growing," is the May choice of the Book society. It has the advantage of a preface by E. M. Forster. And it is a translation, not from one of the better known European languages, but from the original Irish. The book is the work of an Irish peasant, one of the Blasket islanders; and it describes the author's childhood and early years in the islands, together with his experiences in Dublin as a member of the civic guard. The book is absolutely authentic.

The Blasket islanders live by catching lobsters in the summer and mackerel in the winter. Their pastimes are singing, dancing, and story telling. The life they live is as actively primitive as the life which Mr. Collier has invented for his men of the immediate future [but it is not quite the same kind of life]. And "Twenty Years a-Growing" is a picture of it from within and without, painted by one who has the wit and vigor of his race.

Miss Storm Jameson's autobiography is to be published at the end of the month, and at the same time is to appear a new novel by Miss Cynthia Stockley, called "Kraal Baby."

Chatto & Windus are running a competition for a new humorous work—preferably a novel, but not necessarily so. Entrants have twelve months in which to prepare for the fray, and the judge is to be Compton Mackenzie, one of the few English novelists in whom humor is abundant. It is just possible that this competition may produce some good work, but the publishers have wisely decided that if no book is submitted for the competition which is adjudged worthy of the £250 prize there will be no award.

Editor's note—This book has just been published in this country under the title of "Full Circle" [Appleton]

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

To those buying books as presents or to parents just buying books as an everyday matter, fairy tales may seem to be a stock favorite. But the fairy tale is not for the very little child.

"What is, then?" you ask.

As a clue to what sort of book to buy for a small boy or girl, sum up what you have noticed they are very much interested in. Let us make 5 our age limit, for convenience.

What do little children under 5 have an intense interest in? Quick as a flash your answer should be animals. Dogs, cats, ducks, horses, rabbits, squirrels, lions—domestic and farm animals, wild animals such as live in our own country or in zoos.

So then, books about animals they adore. These are legion.

When children are small, simple rhymes and jingles—short ones, remember—they love. Of course, the first example that comes to mind of a book that fits that taste is good old "Mother Goose." There are many others the children love, on the book counters.

The third thing which you will notice holds the interest of the small ones is the story of everyday doings of little boys and girls just their own age.

[Suggestions containing the names of books for children under 5 will be sent on receipt of a stamped self-addressed envelope.]

BRIEF REVIEWS
BY M. D.

G. K. Chesterton once more takes a bow before the public with "All I Survey" [Dodd Mead]. He is considered one of the most prolific and versatile of modern English writers. A glance at the long shelf of his works would provide sufficient conviction as to the restlessness and questing of his mind. Even if they do not believe that he is always right in his conclusions, most people think him stimulating, but even if he is neither right nor stimulating it is almost necessary to have read him. "All I Survey" is as good a book as any to begin, continue or end a study of Chesterton as an essayist. In other words it is Chestertonian in its best and worst sense.

G. K. CHESTERTON.

Propaganda of a very subtle sort—you must step warily lest you be deceived by tight and exact logic—finds expression here. So sincere and yet in many cases so devious and concealed is his ardent idolization of the past that Cosmo Hamilton writes of him as "standing knee deep in medieval mud."

Among the many subjects his nimble and charming wit illuminates in the latest volume are Sir Walter Scott, bad poetry, communism, romanticism, the solar system, creative and critical writing, suicide, paganism, and eyebrows. G. K. Chesterton writes simply and interestingly and is stimulating enough to make this reader want to disprove his contentious contentions.

The effects of the world war and Freud are apparent on the generation described in "Marriage in Heaven," by Ronald Fraser [Scribners]. Adrian, fearful of contact, self-revelation, and possessiveness, loves the curious, disillusioned Linet, broken and cynical from one unhappy marriage. They live together many months before they decide to risk marriage. When they finally do marry the expected problems and crises rise up in the anticipated manner. They struggle through the flames of hatred and disgust, indifference and love until toward the end they think they have found a solution. The reader, however, is not convinced with the author that these young people will ever do any different from what they have done.

RONALD FRASER.

Charteris Declares He Once Made Plans for Career in Crime

Leslie Charteris, a young and successful mystery story writer, says he narrowly escaped a career of crime. He says that before he left Cambridge he was so sure he could be a prosperous criminal that he had seriously decided on a professional career in various lawless pursuits.

However, after reading omniverously in mystery and detective literature, he felt that he himself, at nineteen, could write a better story than he had read. He tried it out and his book was immediately accepted and a contract proffered. His stories of Simon Templar the Saint are known to most avid detective story fans. The latest among these is "Getaway" [Doubleday Doran].

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CLASS DAY.

"I've had a most pleasant surprise," remarked Prof. Fordney as he entered the lecture room. "Just met an old classmate of mine whom I hadn't seen or heard of for fifteen years. With my friend was a beautiful little girl about 10 years of age who, incidentally, reminded me that the years are slipping by faster than I realize.

"We talked over our college days and the good times we used to have and the old crowd that always pulled around together—that's why I'm late for class.

"By coincidence an incident of our youth popped into both our minds at the same time—that of catching a thief late one night on our way home from a fraternity party. My friend laughingly remarked that that was the beginning of my career. By the way, we did get a reward of $25 from the woman whose jewels had been stolen.

"The little girl seemed to be thoroughly enjoying our conversation and asked if she could come to class some day. I had been so absorbed in our reminiscing that I had completely forgotten to ask the youngster her name. In reply to my question she said, 'Marion—and I'm almost eleven years old!'"

"Marion? The same as your mother's, eh," I replied, patting her pretty blonde head.

"Now I want to ask you chaps if you don't think it was rather smart of me to figure that out when I hadn't the faintest idea of whom my classmate had married!"

"Smart?" grinned George Benson. "Gee, even I'd know that!"

HOW DID THE PROFESSOR KNOW THE MOTHER'S NAME?

New Arrangement of the Hair Subtracts Years from the Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's startling, really, what the becoming coiffure does to a person. Women are getting around to studying their own head lines for coiffure inspiration. They could still indulge their personal need more. They could do for the head unhatted what they do for their appearance with a very becoming, chic hat.

Perhaps it would be well for women to think more of their coiffure as they think of a hat about to be purchased. They study the line of hat, front view, side, and back. They ask of a hat that it make them look young, that it flatter, that it expose the best line or angle of face or neck.

We never in the world's history had so many, many coiffure styles to draw on. At style shows attended the last season I've seen literally hundreds of styles. You see more of them pictured in fashion illustrations. But I find with all this inspiration to draw from there is still the old tendency to "follow the leader" in hair fashions. The leader may be a movie star, who looks no more like you than does Jimmy Cagney.

You have a skull outline, a profile, a throat line, and a back hair line that is your own. The trick, then, is to study the best line of coiffure for you—not for your pal or neighbor.

There's an old axiom, well known to women, about changing one's outlook on life with the purchase of a new chapeau. The same new challege of the world may be accomplished with a coiffure that sets you up smartly. I've seen just this recently illustrated. The simple innovation in this coiffure style was to draw it back on the sides, leaving both ears exposed, the back of the former loose lying hair brushed down neatly to the scalp, showing a beautiful skull outline not hitherto suspected. It made its wearer look younger, prettier, smarter.

Now, I can't tell you what to do with your particular head of hair. But if you can't tell, some one else probably can. You can't always rely on the hairdresser, who is anxious to make way for the next customer.

It may be that a couple of curls placed teasingly before the lower ear tip would do something for you, or a wider wave, or hair placed higher on the neck, or cut higher. Anyway, give it a little study, just for the fun of it.

"West Point Exercises," an illustrated booklet outlining the series of exercises recently presented in these columns through the courtesy of the United States Military academy, may be obtained by sending five cents in coin or stamps to Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. THREE SINGLES DEFEAT CUBS IN ELEVENTH, 2 TO 1

BETTS STARTS BOSTON RALLY TO BEAT ROOT

Braves Get Only 5 Hits in 10 Innings.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 5.—The Cubs this afternoon went 11 innings to get their third licking in two days, succumbing to the Boston Braves in a well played, 2 to 1, pitchers' battle between Charley Root and Wally Betts. The contest was completed in one hour and 35 minutes, remarkable time for an 11 inning battle.

The runs which effected the 1 to 1 tie in nine innings were manufactured with pairs of doubles, the Cubs making theirs on two base hits by Grimm and Hartnett in the second inning and the Braves knotting it on doubles by Moore and Berger in the fourth. The game might easily have ended in an hour and 10 minutes—the time required for nine innings—but for the fact that a squeeze play was gummed up in the fifth to deprive the Braves of a potential second run.

Each pitcher yielded eight hits and neither walked a batsman. Three hits off Root came in the eleventh from rather unexpected sources and decided the issue.

Poor Hitters Fool Cubs.

After Maranville had fanned to start the 11th, Betts, who previously hadn't been able to get the ball out of the infield, singled to left. Urbanski, who also had failed to get the ball out of the infield in four earlier attempts, singled to right center, putting Betts on third. Jordan, who hadn't made a hit in 15 times at bat, was next up, and the Cubs elected to pitch to him. Buck socked a single to right, scoring Betts with the winning run.

The outcome kept the Cubs shackled in seventh place and furnished a dangerous parallel to the team's first road trip, in which it won the first game in brilliant style, then lost four straight.

The defeat was the third of the year for Root, as contrasted with his lone victory, accomplished last Sunday. It was the second win for Betts. Root was in fine form, as he has been in every one of his starts this year, but as on previous occasions, excepting last Sunday, his associates were unable to supply him with any comfort in the form of runs.

Cubs Open Well.

The Cub offensive opened satisfactorily for Demaree pushed off with a single. But Bill Herman flied out, Babe Herman forced Demaree and Stephenson flied to Berger.

Schulmerich led off the fifth with a double to left center and went to third on Maranville's infield out. Schulmerich and Betts tried to put on the squeeze play, but Betts couldn't reach the ball in his attempt to bunt and Schulmerich was an easy victim at the plate. English then made a nice play to get Betts' grounder and throw him out.

Three Clean Singles.

Demaree led off the sixth with a double to right and took third on Bill Herman's sacrifice. Babe Herman then rolled to Urbanski and Demaree was held on third, where he perished when Stephenson popped to Urbanski.

Except for a single by Root with one out in the eighth inning a single by Babe Herman with two out in the eleventh, the Cubs were easy victims the rest of the way. In the eleventh Urbanski threw out Demaree and Bill Herman for his 14th and 15th chances.

Only three men faced Root in the sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth innings. In the tenth Hogan executed a harmless single, but in the eleventh the Braves broke through with the three deciding singles, all of which were clean.

CARDINALS WHIP PHILLIES, 5 TO 3, ON MARTIN'S HITS

Pepper Gets 4 Safeties, Including Homer.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 5.—(AP)—Once again Pepper Martin was a thorn in the side of a Philadelphia baseball team as he scored four runs and hit safely four consecutive times in the St. Louis Cardinals' 5 to 3 victory over the Phillies today.

Just as he proved troublesome to the Athletics in the 1931 world series, the flashy third baseman went on a one man batting party, getting two doubles, a triple and a home run off Pitcher Ed Pearce in as many trips to the plate. Afield, he accepted seven chances without an error.

Brooklyn, May 5.—(AP)—The pace setting Pittsburgh Pirates continued their triumphant progress along the eastern front of the National league by defeating Brooklyn today for the second time, 4 to 2.

Bill Swift's steady pitching was the big factor in the Pirates' victory, but the clouting of Freddy Lindstrom, Paul Waner and Pie Traynor also helped considerably. Swift was in trouble only in the second inning, when the Dodgers made four of their seven hits in succession. Score:

(This is the third of a series of articles on golf by Tommy Armour, who recently came to Chicago to become professional at the Medinah Country club. He has been ranked as one of the world's leading players for nearly a decade.)

BY TOMMY ARMOUR.

Alexa Stirling [now Mrs. Fraser], is undoubtedly one of the greatest stylists that women's golf has ever produced, ranking in form ahead of any of the present champion women golfers, with the possible exception of the present champion, Miss Virginia Van Wie. Form is a fetish with Mrs. Fraser, and to any one watching her play, it is readily understood how her name has become synonomous with orthodox grace.

Of Scotch heritage, her father, Dr. Stirling, was an enthusiastic disciple of the old Scotch game. From her earliest childhood, Mrs. Fraser had the benefit of first class instruction, so that she never acquired any of the stiffness that goes with learning the game in later years. Her childhood contemporary was the one and only Bobby Jones. They were taught together, played together, and grew up together, with the natural result that they acquired very similar form, even to their stance, grip and address, to say nothing of their mannerisms.

She Uses a Niblick and It Makes Simple Shot a Hard One.

Mrs. Fraser has long been recognized as one of the greatest iron players among the women. Peculiarly enough, however, it was one of her pet iron clubs that once cost her the ladies' championship. About ten years ago, playing at the Westchester-Biltmore club, a situation arose where

INDEED I DID— AND WHAT'S MORE I FILLED IT AGAIN WITH NICE FRESH WATER—

THE DERBY FAVORITE AND THE DERBY SCENE—WILL HE RULE IT?

Ladysman, the favorite to win today's 59th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., and the scene over which his backers hope he will rule supreme along about 6 o'clock this evening. The crowd in the background is part of the 40,000 that saw Burgoo King race to victory in last year's Derby. The finish of the 1932 race is shown here.

ALLISON, SUTTER WIN SINGLES IN MEXICO MATCHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, May 5.—Wilmer Allison and Cliff Sutter today carried the United States to two singles victories over Mexico in the North American zone competition of the Davis cup tennis matches. Allison, after a slow start, defeated Dr. Rocardo Tapia, Mexico's No. 1 player, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. Sutter won from Esteban Reyes, 6-1, 6-0, 6-1.

The United States will clinch victory if the team of George M. Lott Jr. and John Van Ryn wins the doubles competition tomorrow.

Dr. Tapia played excellently in the first set against Allison, but he weakened while Allison corrected the faults in his game to go on to an easy victory. Despite the high altitude, which was expected to aid the Mexicans, both Allison and Sutter were fresher than their opponents at the conclusion.

POLAND, HOLLAND DIVIDE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, May 5.—Poland and Holland divided their two singles matches today in the Davis cup tennis competition. Hendrick Timmer, Holland's champion, defeated L. Hebda of Poland, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, but I. Tlocyncki of Poland evened the series by winning from T. Hughan of Holland, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

GERMANY WINS TWO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIESBADEN, Germany, May 5.—Playing without Dr. Daniel Prenn, who had been barred from the Davis cup team because he is a Jew, Germany today won two singles matches from Egypt. Gottfried von Cramm, taking Prenn's place as captain, defeated Wahid, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. E. Nourney, of Germany, the new member of the team, defeated Bogdadiy, 8-6, 6-1, 6-1.

'BARRIER ROGUES' FACE STARTER IN KENTUCKY DERBY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—"Barrier rogues," horses that display ugly dispositions at the starting post, will be most conspicuous in the field which strives for the 59th Kentucky Derby tomorrow afternoon.

Five possible starters are notorious for their bad deportment in the starting gate. They are Head Play, Inlander, Sarada, Mr. Khayyam, and Fair Rochester. There are others which display plenty of temper now and then.

Yet the persons who have been wagering for weeks on the favorite, Ladysman, should not worry over the situation. In Jockey Sonny Workman the Derby choice will have one of the most skillful riders in America and regardless of what happens at the barrier Ladysman should get away well, free from trouble by the time the field reaches the clubhouse turn.

Jockeys Count Much.

Sarada—one of the rogues—should also be away winging, for his pilot, Johnny Gilbert, is ranked second only to Workman in horsemanship. Some horsemen rate him an even more alert boy at the post. Inlander also should be well taken care of by the veteran rider, Mack Garner. Yet Garner was not able to get him away well in the Chesapeake stakes a week ago. Pete Walls will be up on Mr. Khayyam. He beat the gate with this colt in the Chesapeake stakes, but he is not likely to get such an advantage twice in a row. Some horsemen say Mr. Khayyam must be in front early if he is to win.

Head Play, the favorite of nearly everybody in Kentucky, was purchased by Mrs. Silas Mason, wife of a New York contractor, this afternoon. She is said to have paid Mrs. William Crump $30,000 for the colt

[PAST PERFORMANCES ON NEXT PAGE.]

Louisville, Ky., May 5.—It's Ladysman, coupled with Pomponius and Pompoleon as the Coe entry, against the field in the fifty-ninth running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs tomorrow. If these three sons of Pompey, among which Ladysman was the outstanding 2 year old of 1932, are beaten, it might be any one of six or eight others listed in the overnight entries. It's that kind of a race.

Ladysman is the choice, a pronounced choice, among those to whom past performances are a hallowed criterion, even though turf tradition has proved that many ordinary 2 year olds reach greatness the following year. In recent Derbies, however, form has been such a factor that weight of such opinion and money from the east, whence come most of the big betters, are likely to send the Coe entry to the post at 2 to 1 or even 8 to 5 in a field where the possible twenty-two starters should not dwindle to less than eighteen actual candidates at post time.

Can He Last?

Against this weight of expert opinion, however, is asked one big question concerning Ladysman. Seldom has a single question been asked so persistently about a Derby favorite. Can Ladysman carry his speed the full distance of 1¼ miles against several entrants notable for their route going qualities and their ability to close with final rushes against a tiring field?

True, Ladysman never has been asked for a test beyond the mile limit. What then causes this question by many and the expressed doubt by others? It dates back to 1926. Those present at that race, including the writer, and those familiar with turf annals, know that Pompey, sire of the Coe trio, stopped in that race when 3 furlongs from home. He chucked it, as the turf expression goes, when called upon to stay with Bubbling Over as the latter made his challenge and moved to the front for a lead which he never relinquished. So the sins of the father descend to Ladysman and his stable companions.

If Not Coe, Then Who?

With this theory to be decided only by the actual result of the sixth race on tomorrow's program, to be run at 6:15 o'clock Chicago daylight saving time, there is wide variance of opinion as to which one will win if the Coe candidates are beaten.

Perhaps because he is Kentucky's choice and because every one in Kentucky knows and talks horses, Head Play, a son of My Play, has more numerous and more vehement partisans than any of the others. He is expected to be second choice in the mutuel betting. Both in his races this year, including the Derby Preparation purse, and more especially in his trials, Head Play has shown qualities which attract bettors. He likes a route and can come from behind. He likes a fast track, which is promised, but would not be handicapped by a slow track on which many of his best preliminary workouts have been made. He was a better than good although not phenomenal 2 year old.

They Still Back Bradley.

Then from the Blue Grass country is Broker's Tip and his companion either Fingal or Boilermaker, from the always dangerous E. R. Bradley stable, which holds the Derby record of three winners for one owner in Behave Yourself, Bubbling Over, and Burgoo King.

Brokers Tip, at first little considered, has risen in the estimation of his own stable by his training efforts and a creditable workout over the full route with weight up. Idle Hour colts are always ready. That and the axiom that "Bradley wins Derbies" will sway many bettors to the white and green of the Bradley entry.

Thomas P. Hayes, trainer of the Warm stable of which Mrs. Mason's husband is part owner, represented Mrs. Mason. It had not been decided tonight whether Willie Crump, Mrs. Crump's husband and trainer of Head Play, or Hayes would saddle the colt tomorrow. Head Play was purchased by Crump as a yearling for $550. He later gave the colt to Mrs. Crump as a Christmas present.

Crump had not sought a jockey of national fame to ride Head Play. Instead he planned to rely on Herbert Fisher, a Canadian lad, who has confined his activity to Kentucky and Chicago tracks during the last few years. Crump is satisfied Fisher will do as well with Head Play as any other rider.

"Fisher knows our colt better than any other jockey," he said.

There was great activity in the camp of Silent Shot this morning when the prospect for muddy going appeared bright. S. Renick was engaged to ride the colt, which is owned by John E. Hughes, Chicago attorney.

"Silent Shot is the best mud horse I've ever seen," Trainer Frank Garrett declared today. "If the going is muddy, he can win the Derby."

Mr. Hughes, according to reports here, has wagered $200 against $40,000 —odds of 200 to 1—on Silent Shot to win the Derby. Until the colt arrived from Maryland early in the week very few Derby followers realized he was even eligible for the race.

Best Horse to Win.

The draw for post positions caused many crap shooters to rehearse the old varsity yell, "Come seven, come eleven." Ladysman, the favorite, drew No. 7 and Head Play No. 11.

"Play both and you can't miss," the wags advised.

Jockeys Workman and Bejshak, who will be upon Pomponius, will not be burdened down with instructions from Trainer Bud Stotler.

"What'll you tell 'em to do?" Stotler was asked tonight.

"'Ride the best race you can for you are on two very fit horses,' is all the instructions I'll give them," he replied.

This indicated that if Pomponius is good enough to trim Ladysman, no effort will be made to let Ladysman, the "reputation" horse, win.

Betters Await Weather.

While there is much eastern money here to be wagered on Ladysman, the betting activities were at a standstill today due to uncertain track conditions. The running strip was deep in mud this morning. A warm sun beat down on it throughout the afternoon and it improved rapidly. It was no worse than slow for the final race today.

If there is no rain the track will be lightning fast. The weather man's prediction is "probably clear and no change in temperature."

Col. M. J. Winn received a cablegram today from Lord Derby, who visited Churchill Downs on Derby day in 1930 (Gallant Fox's year), reading: "Having pleasant recollections of my visit to you and to the Kentucky Derby, permit me to offer you sincerest good wishes for a successful race this year.—Derby."

W-G-N TO PRESENT KENTUCKY DERBY ON AIR TODAY

If you haven't been able to make the trip to Churchill Downs for the Kentucky Derby today you can sit down near your radio and get a complete story of the race and the scenes at the track through W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station.

For the ninth successive year W-G-N, with Quin Ryan at the microphone, will present the running of the historic stake race. Quin broadcast the Derby over W-G-N first in 1925, the station presenting the first air show of the famous race ever to be broadcast.

With Ryan at Churchill Downs this afternoon will be the two racing experts of THE TRIBUNE sports staff, Harvey T. Woodruff and French Lane, and Albert Sabath, veteran Chicago horseman, who has assisted Ryan in past years.

The W-G-N broadcast will start about 5 p. m. with a description of the running of the fifth race, the race before the Derby, and a word picture of the track and spectators. The Derby will be run at 6:15 o'clock, Chicago time.

RAIN SPOILS SOX, BOSTON OPENER; TRY AGAIN TODAY

Gaston Is Chicago Choice; 2 Games Tomorrow.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

For the third time in a week the weather man proved yesterday that he is no respecter of baseball schedules. Rain descended in such quantities on Comiskey park that the club officials didn't have to think twice before abandoning the opener of the White Sox-Red Sox series, just as they abandoned last Tuesday's and Wednesday's affairs with the Athletics.

Business will be conducted as usual this afternoon, weather being favorable, and tomorrow the boys will pay for the vacation shoved onto them yesterday. A Sabbath double header has been booked, starting at 1:30 p. m. The long standing league rule which prohibited doubling up on the first series of the year between any two teams was dropped from the code book last winter, so the Sox officials took advantage of it.

Boston Has Hurlers Galore.

Not having played for two days, Marty McManus, pilot of the Boston Sox, has all sorts of pitchers available for this afternoon. He might pick Bob Kline, who always has been tough for the south siders. And he might decide on Johnny Welch, the ex-Cub, who gave the Hose some tough moments last summer, or the choice might be Henry Johnson, the ex-Yank. The south siders don't care particularly which one draws the job. All they hope for is that they get some good pitching from their own operative, Milton Gaston. They'll do the rest.

Manager Fonseca, who twisted his right ankle out of shape when diving to get a pop foul in the game of April 21, will visit the doctor today to have the cast removed. Then the ankle will be taped up and he'll try walking without the aid of crutches. If a couple of days of this experiment proves he's able to get around he will start immediately to get himself back into playing trim. By the middle of next week he may be able to resume his first base duties.

Fans Satisfied—Thus Far.

The Sox so far have done a good job of creating the impression that they may be hard to beat this summer on their home lot, provided their pitching is fair. They've played nine games at Comiskey park and lost only two of them. That's easy to understand. The hitters are mostly of the line drive type and don't have to depend on short fences over which fly balls can be dropped for homers. Simmons hits a lot of long aerials that will be caught in the Comiskey's spacious lot, but he also hits many through and over the infield.

STANFORD AND U. S. C. TEAMS IN DUALMEET TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., May 5.—(AP)—Stanford and University of Southern California meet tomorrow in a resumption of track and field hostilities begun two weeks ago at Palo Alto when Stanford won, 67 to 64.

Coach Dean Cromwell of Southern California said the decision probably rested upon whether Ben Eastman, Stanford's star half miler, would be entered in the half mile and relay. Eastman, nursing an injured leg, saw the Palo Alto contest from the sidelines.

Evko Throws Karadimios in Marigold Gardens Show

John Evko threw Karadimios in 26 minutes and 50 seconds of a wrestling contest last night at the Marigold Gardens. Preliminary bouts were classed as exhibitions. Results: Joe Rojacki threw Jim Tully in 11:11; Zack Malkov and Fred Kohler drew in 15:00; Gus Klem and Tom Rolewicz drew in 15:00; Hassen Ambed and Ray Willer drew in 15:00.

Cubs and Braves Arrange Double Bill Tomorrow

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 5.—The Cubs and the Braves on Sunday will play a double header, the origin of which is synthetic, but justifiable, inasmuch as a double header between the Giants and the Braves last Sunday drew 32,000 paid. In order to arrange the double header the management moved up a game scheduled for next August.

Sunday's bargain bill will be the third played by the Cubs in eight days. Last year the first home double header was played on May 29 and the first road double header was on June 18. Until last year double bills rarely were arranged on a team's first trip.

Last Sunday in Chicago the Cubs and Cards drew 21,505 paid, in the rain; yesterday, in New York, the two games attracted 15,000, as compared to 6,000 in the one ply opener. And if the weather stays all right the boys in the counting room will make arrangements to receive 30,000 here Sunday.

The Cubs continue to anticipate Ed Fallenstin. The 1933 sensation cost the Braves a postage stamp, so the legend goes. Malone is due for the Cubs in tomorrow's contest.

Tomorrow's game will be started at 2:15 o'clock and it will be ladies' day. The early starting time is an experiment, and if there is a good turnout early starting on Saturday will become the vogue here.

Today's game was the second extra inning event in which the Cubs have participated this year. On April 15, against the Pirates, the Cubs lost in ten innings, 6 to 4. Root started that game, but Grimes was the losing pitcher.

After he had accepted his fifteenth chance Shortstop Bill Urbanski had to pause to get a cracked nail repaired. But he came right back to work in a couple of minutes and took a big part in the eleventh inning blowup.

Motor Sports Show Open on Navy Pier

Many a stormy wind was blowing, also a deal of rain, but more than 2,000 boat fans proved themselves hardy enough to attend the official opening of the fourth annual Boat and Sports show at the Motor Boat mart on Navy pier last night.

There were approximately 1,500 sailors and potential sailors on hand at 7 o'clock, when the show was formally opened by Ald. Frank Corr, acting for Mayor Kelly, and Capt. F. F. Roberts, naval attaché to A Century of Progress, with the musical assistance of the Illinois Naval Reserve band.

Title Races Scheduled.

The show, under the general direction of Hubbard Erickson, took on an added interest in view of the fact that Chicago mariners, whether they be interested in sail or power craft, are going to have their fill of events in connection with the World's Fair program. A majority of sailing events will be contested on the Century of Progress course, and 12 outboard regattas, including the United States championships, will be decided, according to James W. Mulroy, secretary of the National Outboard association.

The boat-minded Chicagoan who visited the show last night found not only marine equipment of every description, but also an additional number of displays of sports equipment for those sailors who care to tie up during a cruise. A casting pool designed for boaters who plan a bit of angling on a trip is one of the attractions of the show, and carries with it exhibits of rods and reels, not to mention hunting equipment.

Last All Month.

In spite of these other displays, presented for the first time this year, it's still a boat show. There is every manner of craft a seagoing fan could look for—comfortable cruisers for long trips, rakish outboards, runabouts, and even a scattering of small sailboats, ranging in length from 30 to seven feet. In the midst of these is a regiment of motors for the sailors who already have the craft to which to attach to them. There are also canoes for those who prefer elbow bending outdoors and a number of surf boards.

The show will continue through May, with lectures by boating leaders and manufacturers scheduled daily. All of the Chicago sail and power yacht organizations are represented in the show.

MAROON TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS MICHIGAN, 6 TO 0

The University of Chicago tennis team scored its ninth dual meet victory of the season yesterday at the Midway fieldhouse defeating Michigan, 6 to 0. The meet was held on the four indoor courts because of the rain, and was the first Big Ten tennis competition indoors. The Wolverine net men won only one set in the six matches. Ell Patterson, guard on Chicago's football team, playing at No. 4 for the Maroons, won his singles match with only seven errors in two sets.

Summary:

Singles—Davidson, Chicago, defeated Seigel, Michigan, 6-1, 8-6; Trevor Weiss, Chicago, defeated Nisen, Michigan, 6-2, 6-4; H. Ries, Chicago, defeated Sandusky, Michigan, 6-4, 6-1; Patterson, Chicago, defeated Buildenin, Michigan, 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles—Davidson and T. Weiss, Chicago, defeated Seigel and Apelt, Michigan, 6-3, 6-0; Patterson and Ries, Chicago, defeated Baldwin and Sandusky, Michigan.

RACING SCHOONER BLUENOSE SAILS FOR WORLD'S FAIR

HALIFAX, N. S., May 5.—(AP)—Bound for Quebec on the way to the Chicago Century of Progress exposition the racing schooner Bluenose left Halifax harbor today. A 20 knot wind was blowing from the northwest as Capt. Angus Walters headed the international fishing champion out past Chebucto head and he expected a fast trip along the southern coast of Nova Scotia. Bluenose will proceed through the Strait of Canso and up the Gulf of St. Lawrence, arriving at Quebec possibly late next week.

Vandals Take Joy Out of Springtime for Land Owners

BY BOB BECKER.

The arrival of spring with warm days ideal for getting into the country to enjoy the wild flowers, bird study, a fishing trip or a picnic means a great deal to thousands of motorists, judging by the week-end crowds on highways close to Chicago. But to hundreds of landowners along main highways these beautiful spring days represent nothing but trouble from trespassers, flower pickers, and others in that small but troublesome minority known as vandals, who think nothing of uprooting and carrying away trees, shrubs, and plants.

The wail of the landowners who own property along well traveled highways in Chicagoland and haven't high fences erected to keep out the flower pickers is well summed up in the following prayer for help from a landowner on a heavily traveled concrete highway west of the loop. He writes:

"When you are advocating the country to thousands of city dwellers won't you also caution them that property in the country is owned by the people who pay taxes? That the trees and shrubs are not to be dug up and carried off, blossoms not to be stripped and wild flowers not picked? Such depredation is not allowed in parks or forests. But the farmers are victims of the mobs on the roads who stop to pull up or dig up something.

"Every year we find on our farm [about an hour's ride from Chicago] evidence of marauders who do not regard things fenced in as belonging to any one. Our trilliums, started a number of years ago so that they might become native flowers, have been cut to the ground twice although boxed in and protected by wire. Pussy willows have been pulled and slashed to the ground.

"One Saturday a truck came into the farm and took out nearly a load of violet plants we had been working on for a number of years—just skinned them to the ground. When we did remonstrate one day with a nicely dressed man who had driven up and crossed over the fence with baskets to visit our apple trees, uninvited, he said, "And how do I know you own the place?'

"So please ask people to let things alone. The same people would object seriously to our going into their yards and taking out flowers or onto their porches and taking their chairs."

Considering the behavior of a certain class of nature lovers [?] it is not surprising that much of the land around large cities is posted against trespassing and that farmers cry for help when they see a car from the city drive into their woods.

World Fair Softball League to Meet Monday

Golf Needs Future Book! Like Derby, the Open Is Wide Open

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

They're running a horse race called the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs along about sundown today, and when it's over the second guessers who have been doubting the two Thomases, Mr. Shaw and Mr. Kearney, will know whether they were right or wrong in the Derby future book. The Messrs. Shaw and Kearney make a very handsome business of laying odds on this event for the curious and the willing.

Unfortunately, there is neither a Tom Shaw nor a Tom Kearney to conduct an official winter book on the national open golf championship, so that most golf fans have had to do their own hoping and forecasting. This is especially regrettable this year, for the Derby presents a curious parallel to golf's biggest show in that it is regarded as one of the most wide open battles in years.

How does the open field size up at this time on the basis of winter performances and of those players who are perennially among the first to bow to the judges?

150 Will Enter Finals.

First of all, there's the whole field itself, which numbers 912 according to an official announcement made yesterday by the United States Golf association. This is an encouraging figure, for early indications were that it would fall far below last year's, but it is only 100 short of the 1932 total. All of that 912, of course, will not go to the post in the big race at the North Shore Golf club on June 8, 9 and 10. All except 150 of them, including the 33 high finishers of last year at Fresh Meadow who are exempt from the trials, will be eliminated on May 15, when qualifying races will be held on 21 tracks throughout the country. Medinah is the scene of the Chicago district trial.

If Ladysman runs as the favorite at the Downs today, then Gene Sarazen, the holder of the American and British open titles, probably will be the choice at the first tee at North Shore. The swarthy little man who accomplished last year what only Bobby Jones had been able to do before him, was pocketed by influenza in the early part of the winter campaign, but came back to defeat Olin Dutra in a 72 hole match billed for the world's championship. Gene is a veteran of open races of the last dozen years, and already has won two of them, so that he can be depended upon to have his running legs when the bugle sounds at North Shore.

Dutra a Short Priced Entry.

Mention of Olin Dutra brings up the thought that he will also be among the short priced entrants in the Kentucky Derby of golf. The big boy from California was one of the sensations of the game last year, winning the National P. G. A. and Metropolitan championships.

Then there are T. Philip Perkins and Bobby Cruickshank, who shared the open championship of 1933 in the locker room at Fresh Meadow for half an hour, or at least until Sarazen came down the stretch with that final round of 66 and pushed them back into a tie for the place money.

The open would not be the open without Walter Hagen running in it, and it will surprise no one, including himself, if the old master comes home first. That goes for such other veterans as Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, Horton Smith, Mac Smith, Willie Macfarlane, Leo Diegel, Wiffy Cox, Joe Kirkwood, Jock Hutchison, Johnny Farrell, Frank Walsh, and Ed Dudley. There's many a fairway railbird who wouldn't mind holding a ticket on any one of the same.

Burke Wants Ryder Cup Place.

Billy Burke, who won the championship in the longest race in the game's history two years ago, has more than the $1,000 winner's purse as an incentive to him. It will be the extra place on the Ryder cup team supposed to be waiting for the victor in the open. Billy was omitted in the official makeup of the team recently, and although he said nary a word about the action, several of his colleagues, notably Sarazen and Armour, said a lot about his omission.

Next, there are those in the open field who are causing a deal of handicapping among the smart money people. There are four leaders in this department, all of them winners of big stake races during the winter tour. First, there's big Craig Wood, who won himself more than $5,800 during the winter. Next, comes Denny Shute, who romped home with the biggest purse of the campaign when he won first prize of $2,500 in the Miami-Biltmore open. Then there's Paul Runyan, the former Arkansas caddy who has been running with the best of them for the last few years, and the boy from Menominee, Mich., Johnny Revolta, who introduced himself all over the south on the winter circuit.

They'll Watch Fischer.

The open, of course, is not restricted to professionals, and there are those who still have hopes of another Bobby Jones. Among those who will receive plenty of attention at the open is Johnny Fischer, the University of Michigan junior who won the medal in the national amateur last year and holds the Big Ten and national intercollegiate titles. Johnny was clocked in 71 and 75 in a pair of workouts at Kildeer the other day while playing against Northwestern. There's another Johnny in the Goodman boy from Omaha. Not content to rest upon his fame as the golfer who eliminated Bobby Jones in the first round of the 1929 amateur, Johnny was runner-up in the national amateur last year and also took away the amateur prize in the national open. Add to this pair George Dunlap, Jack Westland, Francis Ouimet, George Voigt, John Lehman, and others, and you begin to wonder if the professionals still hold the option on the title they took up when Jones retired.

The opening of the Lincoln park golf courses, which was to have taken place yesterday, has been postponed until the weather improves and the greens and fairways have dried enough to prevent damage, it was announced by Harry O'Hare, director of recreations. It is hoped that the Diversey avenue course can be opened early next week, but the new course at Waveland avenue, which is said to be one of the best nine hole courses in this part of the country, will not be opened until it has had ample time to dry.

The annual dinner and meeting of the caddy committee of the Chicago District Golf association will be held Monday night at 6:30 o'clock at the Chicago Athletic association. Dr. E. P. Swatek of Ridgemoor is chairman of the committee.

The Cherry Hill Golf club, which has been open for several weeks, will hold the eighteen hole qualifying round for the Percy Wagner trophy on May 21.

An article in THE TRIBUNE recently stated that Mrs. O. C. Horn was a former champion at Casa Del Mar. Ben Hagge, manager of the club, writes that Mrs. Horn never held the title at Casa Del Mar.

Park Ridge Tennis Club to Hold Open House Day

The Park Ridge Tennis club will celebrate the annual open house day tomorrow. All players in the Chicago district are invited to attend and play on the club courts. Two exhibitions have been scheduled with Jay Cohn, former national boys' champion, playing Frank O'Connell of Park Ridge, former Big Ten champion, in the singles, and Lee Smith and Roland Bloomstrand, professionals at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, meeting O'Connell and Eddie Shoaffin in the doubles.

At the 14th hole, which is a long par 5, she lay in front of the green with three beautiful shots. Her opponent was on the green in five, and as Mrs. Fraser's ball was only about 30 yards from the hole, she appeared certain of winning—thus making her 2 up and four to go. The shot she had to play was the simplest kind of approach, with nothing but that fairway between her ball and the hole.

Mrs. Fraser for some reason elected to play a pitch shot with a niblick, which is the most difficult of any she could have picked. She played a cut-shot approach and "flubbed" it completely, knocking the ball only a few feet. Then she lay four to her opponent's five, and, unfortunately, her next effort with the niblick only moved the ball another few feet. There they lay alike, five strokes each.

Mrs. Fraser hideously dubbed the next shot also, but made the edge of the green and finally got down in two putts. Her opponent got down in two putts, with a total of seven to Mrs. Fraser's eight, winning that hole and squaring the match. Obviously upset at the turn of events, Mrs. Fraser lost two of the next three holes, the match and the championship.

Reverting to the approach shot at the 14th green, many have been the arguments and discussions as to the reason for Mrs. Fraser's selection of a niblick to play the shot. I think the reason was Mrs. Fraser's fetish for form. A niblick approach, executed correctly, is a beautiful shot to watch. The ball goes high into the air, hits the green, stops within a few feet, and Mrs. Fraser was an addict of that type of approach shot.

It is hard to see why, because she was an experienced player, as well as a very fine one. I believe that her main reason for playing the club was because it was a beautiful shot to her. It is obvious to the most mediocre golfer that any straight faced club [including her driver] would have given her a better chance to win this very important hole.

I go further, and say that I believe Mrs. Fraser is the only first class golfer who would have elected to use a niblick to play that shot under the existing conditions. The reason I think she did so is that she had been taught to place even more importance on form than on results.

Learn a lesson, readers, and if you are a short distance from the green, with no hazard intervening, always play the approach with a straight faced club. All good golfers do.

Purple Teams Face Three Foes Today

Three Northwestern athletic teams compete at Evanston today. The track team opens its home season against Chicago at Dyche stadium at 3 o'clock; the baseball team faces Notre Dame at Roycemore field at 2:15 and the tennis squad opposes Michigan on the university courts. Admission to all events is free.

Chicago's superiority in the sprints and shorter distances gives it a slight edge. John Brooks, the Maroon's all around star, is a favorite to win the sprints and broad jump. Capt. Ted Haydon, hurdler, and Eugene Owsen, shot putter, are favorites in their specialties.

Northwestern is expected to pile up points in the high jump, in which Ollie Olson, football star, and Mal Read have been doing 6 feet 1 inch consistently.

Ed Horne, Northwestern sophomore, is expected to win the javelin throw. He placed third at the Drake relays last Saturday with a toss of 183 feet. Olson and Goers also will compete in this event for the Wildcats.

The baseball team will be out after its fourth straight victory. Illinois, Chicago and Armour have succumbed in that order.

EDDIE COLLINS SCOUTS SAINTS AND MINNEAPOLIS

St. Paul, Minn., May 5.—(AP)—Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Sox, visited St. Paul and Minneapolis today, but left for Chicago without completing any baseball deals. While here, Collins conferred briefly with R. J. Connery, owner of the St. Paul club of the American association.

It was reported he was interested in Marty Hopkins, St. Paul third baseman, but he made no offer for the infielder. Collins recently sought to get a price on Joe Mowry, outfielder with Minneapolis.

ANGLO-CATHOLIC DEBATE CLOSES CHURCH SESSION

Harvard Clergyman Hits the Movement.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The National Church congress of the Episcopalians closed its four day session yesterday afternoon at St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston, with a debate on the Anglo-Catholic claims of the church.

The speakers were Prof. Frank Gavin of General seminary, New York, a representative of the Anglo-Catholic party, and the Rev. T. L. Harris, liberal churchman, of Harvard university. Their arguments disclosed that not only is the church divided as to the Catholic heritage it claims, but also that the Anglo-Catholic wing is due for a revision of its outlook.

Mr. Harris' attack on the Anglo-Catholic movement was bitter. The Harvard scholar held that the traditions of the church, which are based on antiquity, present dangerous standards for the conduct of church affairs today.

"Useless Court of Appeal."

"Antiquity is a useless court of appeal to establish the authority of opinionated parish priests. The alleged authority of our priests all too often means the untutored private judgment of a parish priest."

Mr. Harris also criticized Evangelical, or low church, partisans. He asserted that this school tends to "foster humbug."

"Any ideal which underestimates suggestive feeling will produce a crop of humbug and any which emphasizes externals and conformation to law will produce pharisees and prigs," the speaker said. The historic episcopate or the "apostolic succession," the authority on which the Anglo-Catholic party rests its claims, Mr. Harris dismissed as "historically false and ecclesiastically derisive." At its worst, Anglo-Catholicism produces fanaticism and hypocrisy," he concluded.

Takes Own Party to Task.

"The convictions of the Oxford movement—(out of which the Anglo-Catholic group grew)—we hold to be as true as they are asserted to be," Dr. Gavin continued, "the exclusiveness of outlook and intolerance of mood would evaporate. I deplore such evidence of bigotry as would reduce to the level of cheap argument the sacredness of deeply held convictions.

REPORT MURDER BILL IN KILLING AT ROADHOUSE

A true bill charging murder was reported voted yesterday by the grand jury against James Ryan, allegedly a member of the notorious Touhy gang. The indictment, which will be returned next week before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court, will hold Ryan without bail for trial in the killing of John Rinella, owner of a roadhouse four miles south of Des Plaines.

Lieut. James Meyering of the county highway police said that the state's witnesses will be under constant guard until after the trial. Wesley Maitland, a former porter in Rinella's roadhouse, was the chief witness before the grand jury yesterday.

Rinella was shot and killed by two machine gunners who invaded his roadhouse on Dec. 16 and terrorized him, the porter, and Miss Marie Flack, 24, Rinella's sweetheart.

Miss Flack, the only other witness, was not taken before the grand jury. The police have her under guard, but refuse to say whether she also will identify Ryan in court as one of the killers of Rinella.

RELIEF AGITATOR FOUND WITH $1,080 PAYS FINE OF $200

John Mortinchich, 49 years old, 441 South Halsted street, who was arrested Thursday while picketing in front of a relief shelter, was fined $200 and costs on a disorderly conduct charge by Judge George V. McIntyre in the Des Plaines street court yesterday. After attempting to bargain with the judge to reduce the fine, Mortinchich paid it out of the $1,080 in cash the police had found pinned to his underwear when he was arrested.

Mortinchich, who was carrying a banner demanding "cash relief" in front of the shelter at 758 West Harrison street, is an Austrian immigrant who was naturalized in 1931.

"Any one walking around with that much money and complaining about relief in this city ought to go back where he came from," Judge McIntyre said. Besides the money, Mortinchich also had two bank books showing $3,500 on deposit in Denver.

PRESBYTERIANS TO CELEBRATE 100 YEARS OF WORK

A century of Presbyterianism in Chicago was celebrated last night at the closing dinner of the year held by the Presbyterian union. More than 300 were present. Plans were presented for a celebration June 25 to July 2, during A Century of Progress exposition, to mark a century of work by the denomination here.

A tablet will be dedicated in the replica of old Fort Dearborn on which will be inscribed the names of 26 charter members of Chicago's first Presbyterian church. Rufus Dawes will make the principal speech at the unveiling.

Dr. William Chalmers Covert of Philadelphia, general secretary of the Presbyterian board of Christian education, was the principal speaker last night. He told of the founding of the first church at the corner of Clark and Lake streets on June 26, 1833.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

Wife Forgiving, but Husband's Angry.

Mrs. Minnie Hoehamer, 2714 North 75th avenue, Elmwood Park, is awaiting the return of her husband, Charles P. Hoehamer, who was president of Elmwood Park until April 18, and is willing to "forgive and forget." But quite another attitude was displayed yesterday by George Hofmann, whose wife, Edna, former president of the village school board, has been missing since March 21, the time of Hoehamer's disappearance.

Hofmann said yesterday that he had caught his wife and Hoehamer making a date in the schoolhouse 9 months ago.

Pleaded with Husband.

"I went to Hoehamer's office after that and pleaded with him not to bring disgrace on our families," Hofmann said. "Other times the children have seen him driving around the house and picking up my wife. Just two days before she left home, I tapped a telephone conversation between them and heard him say, 'Can you get out this afternoon, sweetheart?'

"She answered that she would try but that she had to be careful. I don't want her back. I can never live with her again. She left here knowing that the mortgage on the house had to be renewed, and can't be renewed without her signature, in order to keep a roof over the heads of our children."

But Mrs Hoehamer said: "I just can't live without Charles, and I won't give him up. I trusted him so. For 25 years we have been happy and contented together. Why, it was just like a cloudburst on a sunshiny day." Mrs. Hoehamer has three sons. The Hofmanns have five children.

Toilet Sanitation MADE SIMPLE

BEWARE of toilets that are streaked and stained. Germs breed there. The bowl is unsightly. It takes no end of ordinary scrubbing to insure sanitation. But a little Sani-Flush does this work for you.

Just sprinkle a bit of Sani-Flush in the bowl (follow directions on the can)—flush—and the job is done! Stains, odors and germs are swept away. The hidden trap no brush can reach is sanitary.

At grocery, drug and hardware stores, 25c. (Another use for Sani-Flush—cleaning automobile radiators. See directions on can.)

LINE UP 6,000 OFFICIAL SOURCES FOR RELIEF FOOD

Contracts were mailed yesterday to approximately 6,000 Cook county grocers and butchers by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to be signed and returned for a central registry of accredited grocers and butchers.

Upon the return of the contracts, it was explained, dealers will be given temporary permit cards authorizing the acceptance of grocery orders from relief stations.

No grocery and meat orders will be issued by the commission's agents in Cook county after June 1 on food dealers who are not on the approved list, the commission said.

The contracts provide that dealers must agree to supply pure, wholesome food at prices no higher than those to be established by the commission and to give relief clients the benefit of any lower prices available to the general public. Only items of merchandise listed by the commission are to be supplied. The official current price list must be displayed in the stores.

ARTHUR FARWELL WANTS EX-WIFE'S $350 ALIMONY CUT

J. Arthur Farwell, member of a pioneer Chicago family, yesterday filed an absentee petition in the Circuit court seeking a reduction of the $350 a month alimony awarded Mrs. Loretta B. Farwell of Evanston under her separate maintenance decree. Farwell, now a resident of Beverly Hills, Cal., inherited the $1,000,000 estate of his mother, Mrs. Ava Farwell, who died in 1930. Farwell asserts that the income from the estate will not be greater than $1,000 in 1933.

Mrs. Lorette Farwell won her separate maintenance decree in 1920. At that time she was given alimony of $120 a month. After her husband inherited the fortune she filed a petition asking that her alimony payments be increased. During the hearing on this petition, which ultimately was granted, it was learned that the Farwell fortune is to go to charity if Farwell dies childless. Mrs. Loretta Farwell has no children. Farwell now is 58 years old.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Public buying again dominated the grain markets yesterday and swept aside all opposition, with the nearby futures of wheat, all deliveries of corn and rye, and the distant positions in oats selling at a new high for the crop year to date.

There was a steady flow of large and small buying orders for grain into the pits from start to finish. Heavy profit taking in wheat was readily absorbed and the July delivery forged ahead until it sold at 75 cents.

Farmers have profited immensely as the result of the spectacular advance in grains in the last 60 days. Wheat at the top yesterday was 30⅝ to 31⅝ cents above the recent low, while corn has advanced 17⅞ to 18⅞ cents; oats, 9¼ to 9⅞ cents, and rye, 20⅝ to 25¼ cents. The gains on the nearby futures suggest that on the basis of the total amount of wheat, corn and oats in farmers' hands on April 1, as reported by the government, the profit that has accrued to the producer is in excess of $300,000,000.

Inflation Talk Excites Public.

General trade in all grains yesterday was regarded as having been the broadest so far on the current upturn. Inflation talk, with the bullish construction placed on President Roosevelt's speech before the Chamber of Commerce om the United States on Thursday night; continued wet weather and consequent delay in plowing for corn and planting, and a sharp advance in sterling exchange above $4 in London were the factors that brought the public into the market as big buyers.

Final Prices Near Top.

There was too much wheat for sale around 75 cents for the July to be readily absorbed, and the bulge was checked at that figure. The close, however, was within a fraction of the top, with net gains of 1 to 1¼ cents. May wheat closed at 73¾ to 73⅞ cents; July, 74¾ to 74⅞ cents, and September at 75½ to 75⅝ cents.

Exporters were reported to have bought between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels of wheat futures at Winnipeg during the day, and this swept the Canadian market up faster than Chicago. General public speculation was also reported there.

Big Trade in Corn.

Operators, both big and small, were aggressive buyers of corn, and the names of several of the leading speculators in the country were mentioned as having been large buyers during the day. Resting orders to sell and profit taking were able to check the upturn only momentarily.

All deliveries moved ahead rapidly and closed at the top to a fraction under. There were net gains of 2½ to 3⅛ cents for the day, with May at 47¼ cents at the last, while July was 44 to 44⅝ cents, September 45⅛ to 45½ cents, and December 46¾ to 47 cents.

Oats gained ½ to ⅞ cent for the day, with May closing at 25½ cents; July, 25⅜ to 25⅞ cents, and September, 26 to 26⅛ cents. Rye was decidedly more active and closed 2½ to 4⅛ cents higher. May and July finished at 54½ cents and September was 54⅜ cents. Barley was ⅞ to 1⅛ cents higher, with July 38½ cents and September 41⅛ cents.

Each Country Holds Others Juggle Money

BY HOWARD WOOD.

According to the American point of view, this was a big rise for British money. Only a few weeks ago it was quoted around $3.50.

But across the Atlantic, Britishers looking at a similar set of quotations were talking not about a rise in the pound sterling but about a fall in the United States dollar.

"The dollar," mused the Londoner, "has lost some of its premium over our pound sterling. It's now only about 17 per cent above par and only a few weeks ago it was around 30 per cent above par. And shortly after we went off the gold standard in September, 1931, it was higher even than that. No wonder prices in American markets are rising. The dollar is becoming less dear."

In France, Holland, and Switzerland, whose currencies are still rigidly anchored to gold, citizens were looking at the exchange quotations in still another way.

How Frenchman Sees It.

"Now the dollar is worth only 80 cents on a gold basis," says the Frenchman. "With money thus cheapened it's easy to understand why prices in the United States are advancing. Seventy-five cent wheat at Chicago in terms of 80 cent dollars isn't 75 cent wheat at all. It's 60 cent wheat."

Each individual thinks his own currency is a fixed quantity and that the others are not. He's like a mouse in a baggage car. He isn't moving. It's the rest of the world.

For several years the principal nations of the world kept their currencies from fluctuating by pegging the price of gold. The United States many years ago decreed that gold should be worth $20.67 per ounce. Great Britain placed the official price for gold at 3 pounds 17 shillings and 10½ pence per ounce.

That made 3 pounds 17 shillings and 10½ pence in sterling worth $20.67 in American money. By simple arithemetic this made the pound worth $4.86. The French after the war set the price of gold at about 500 francs. One franc was worth slightly less than 4 cents.

Fluctuation Formerly Limited.

With the dollar, the pound and the franc all definitely fixed in their relation to each other by reason of their fixed relation to gold, fluctuation was limited to minor fractions and there was a free flow of currency from one country to another. Business men did not hesitate to enter into long term contracts with foreign firms because the relationships between currencies were regarded as permanent.

With the great majority of the nations of the world now off gold and on a "managed" currency basis, the currency of each is so much wampum to the other. It may be good wampum and it may be bad wampum. The job is to try to place a value on it. In the past it was valued automatically as worth a certain quantity of gold. But now the dollar and the pound and every other nongold currency unit contains not gold but wishes, hopes, political aspirations, fears, and traditions.

Money Now a Commodity.

Money has become merely another commodity, amenable to the laws of supply and demand like any other commodity. If the supply of it is increased without commensurate demand the value of it will decrease. If the demand grows but not the supply the value goes up.

The British want to keep the pound cheap in relation to other currencies because by paying cheap pounds for factory expenses at home they can go out into the world's markets and undersell factories located in nations whose currency is comparatively dear.

So anxious have they been to keep the pound cheap that they have set up an "equalization fund" of 350 million pounds—close to a billion and a half dollars—to manipulate exchange.

When the dollar gets too low the fund begins to prop up the price of dollars by buying them and selling pounds. The pound is similarly kept down by like operations against the money of other nations.

How British Use Fund.

Every transaction of the equalization fund must, of course, eventually be completed. If the fund buys dollars when they become cheap and later sells them when they become dearer, it makes a neat profit and still carries out its chief purpose, which is to keep the dollar high. If, however, it buys dollars and, due to inflation of United States currency, they become cheaper still, then the fund not only would fail to keep the dollar high but it would lose money.

Our own farm board's Grain Stabilization corporation followed much the same scheme of operation. It brought its own ruin by stimulating production of wheat to such an extent that the price of wheat broke in spite of the corporation's manipulations.

Practically every foreign exchange transaction is now on a spot basis. Nobody wants to speculate on futures. If the pound sterling can sell for $3.95 one hour and $4 the next, the business man and his banker want to take no chance on what it might be in 30 or 60 days.

Distrust in Currencies.

Furthermore, each resents the other's failure to keep the gold pledge because each holds certain securities issued by the other.

The United States treasury, having decided that it was against public policy to honor its pledge to redeem in gold the bonds sold to Americans, the other day decided not to discriminate in favor of foreign holders.

This aroused the editorial wrath of London's financial writers. Some half dozen of them began their columns next day with "Repudiation is an ugly word," etc., etc. When Great Britain went off the gold standard, she like wise paid her debtors in cheaper money, but the "repudiation" in that case was less obvious because there had been no "gold clause" in the case of British bonds.

U. S. Ruling on Monkey Movie Is a Little Late

The federal trade commission at Washington has taken time out from its investigations of the nation's gas and power utilities to impose a stop order on a monkey movie. The commission has just ordered producers of the film called "Ingagi" to "cease representation of a motion picture film as a true and authentic record of an expedition to Africa, or any other country, unless all the scenes of such film were actually made in Africa or such other country."

Pictures were shown of "gorillas" which actually were humans dressed in animal skins. An animal "new to science" was shown, whereas investigation disclosed that said animal, called in the film a "tortadillo," actually was a turtle to which had been glued wings, scales and a long tail. So-called pygmies in the pictures actually were colored children, aged from 5 to 10 years, living in Los Angeles.

A "native woman" represented as being sacrificed by her tribe to gorillas was a Los Angeles colored woman. "Strange creatures apparently half human and half ape" shown in the film were actually Los Angeles colored people made up for the picture. But possibly worst of all, it was found that the word "Ingagi," which was represented as meaning gorilla in the African language, apparently is a word without a country. The commission's master philologists were unable to track down "Ingagi" in any "written dictionary or any African language."

In connection with the order, the commission admitted that the film is not now being exhibited nor has it been for months.

There are 200,000 bushels of farm board wheat that will soon know its own way from Cartaraqui Bay to Duluth unless the new administration is able to find a buyer. Last year the wheat was shipped to Cartaraqui Bay, near Kingston, Ont., and stored in the Canada Steamship, Ltd., elevator. Because of the inability of the farm board to find a foreign market, it was shipped back again to Duluth this spring. Like the king's horses, the wheat marched up to Canada and marched back again. In the interval considerable storage charges accumulated.

Further signs of improvement in general business as indicated by 6,000,000 share days on the New York Stock exchange and 100,000,000 bushels of grain on the Chicago Board of Trade are seen in the opening of two new "match your coat" pants shops on South Clark street.

BILL TO LET ILLINOIS BANKS REOPEN WITH WAIVERS HELD VOID

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner today advised Gov. Horner that a bill to permit downstate banks to reopen on waivers of 75 per cent of unsecured deposits is unconstitutional. Sponsored by the house banking committee, the bill was rushed through the legislature in an effort to aid in the resumption of business by unopened state banks.

The attorney general held that the bill gave an unwarranted delegation of legislative power in authorizing downstate Circuit judges to order banks reopened if waivers are obtained on 75 per cent of the deposits, the waivers to be binding on all other unsecured claims.

The bill, Gov. Horner was told, vests in the judges an arbitrary power to determine questions of public policy in that minority creditors would be forced to agree to a change in their contractural relationship with the banks.

LOEBER TO OPEN BONDHOLDERS' LISTS TO OWNERS

Paul C. Loeber, trustee for the Leight Trust, successor to Leight & Co., mortgage bond house, yesterday notified Attorney General Kerner that he had decided to allow any original bondholder of a Leight bond issue to have the list of other bondholders of that particular issue. He calls attention to the reorganization without foreclosure of twenty-three bond issues by the First of Englewood Bond and Mortgage corporation (affiliate of the First National bank of Englewood) and its policy of making the lists available to bondholders. He cites their success as a reason for his adopting the open door policy as regards lists.

"The list of bondholders no longer has any value to the Leight Trust except a nuisance value, because its value lies in the good-will of the bond house, and Leight & Co., being out of business, no longer have any goodwill," Lieber states in his letter to Kerner. "The Trust is in the unenviable position of withholding this list of names, which is of no value to itself, from others who are helpless to protect themselves without this information."

Chicago Trade Leaders Laud Roosevelt Plan

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The three point request to business men made by President Roosevelt Thursday night in his speech before the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday won the approval of several representative Chicago industrial leaders.

J. C. BELDEN.

A majority of those canvassed voiced their support of the President's proposals. Many of the business leaders who attended the meeting in Washington were not in the city yesterday, but others gave their views on the speech as reported by the newspapers.

A note of caution was sounded by some that attempts to fix minimum wage levels and price agreements within an industry might fail because of the inability of the consuming class to pay the prices agreed upon.

Roosevelt's Three Points.

Briefly the President's proposals were:

1. That industry increase wages in conformance with rising prices.

2. That steps be taken within industries to do away with ruinous competition by the elimination of cut throat price cutting and unfair trade practices.

3. That individual business men put aside selfish interests and coöperate in promoting a well rounded national economy.

"The three proposals appear sound to me," said Thomas S. Hammond, president of the Illinois Manufacturers association and president of the Whiting corporation. "I think that every business man will do his best to comply with the President's requests. I believe that most business men have been trying to do what President Roosevelt is asking. We all realize that the country is faced with an emergency and that the President needs emergency power to deal with the situation."

Calls Speech Constructive.

"The speech is the most constructive contribution that has been made so far," Edward N. Hurley declared. Mr. Hurley is a leading figure in the electrical utility field and is a director of the Hurley Machine company and the Electrical Household Utilities corporation. He is also coreceiver for Middle West Utilities company.

"The President's address shows that he realizes the need of a sound business leadership. He is awakening the country to the realization that unless business gets down to facts and eliminates ruinous practices it cannot last. His is an appeal for business men to work together."

"President Roosevelt's accomplishments to date are highly constructive and fears of a radical program still remain only fears," J. C. Belden, president of the Belden Manufacturing company, said.

"Business men may well be heartened," he added, "by the program laid down for them and should give their wholehearted coöperation. At the same time it must be remembered that any general increase in prices, whether from higher profits or wages, must be paid by the farmers and other classes whose compensation is subject to the law of supply and demand and may effect rising employment unfavorably. I am a little afraid that attempts to fix minimum wages, which would necessarily be high, and establishing agreed prices may put products out of reach of the consumers."

STOCKS ATTAIN NEW HIGHS FOR YEAR, THEN SLIP

Profit Taking Stems Rise Late in Day.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Corporation share prices soared to the highest levels of the year on the New York Stock exchange today as the dollar went tumbling to a new low level in terms of foreign exchange.

Trading was on an enormous scale and, at their best, values were anywhere from $1 to $5 a share above their previous closing figures. The advance was dogged all day, however, by heavy realizing sales and in the final thirty minutes or so the selling volume overwhelmed the list and bore the leaders back to around their starting points. Various secondary issues emerged with net gains of from a fraction to a point or so.

Traders Bullish But Cautious.

Brokers analyzed the "demonstration" to mean that while the street is still preponderatingly bullish in sentiment, the disposition in trading circles is leaning more and more to caution pending further light on the effect of some of the numerous measures now being set in motion by the administration in its fight to revive prosperity.

Operations were not so broad as they have been on some other big days of the so-called inflation boom, however. Some fifteen of the most active stocks accounted for nearly 25 per cent of the total volume. General Motors was the most active single issue of the list. It swung within a range of a point, however, and finished ⅝ below yesterday's final quotation.

Another brilliant performer was United States Steel, which sold up to within a minute fraction of $50 a share, compared with its March low of 23⅜. The old bellwether closed at 48⅜, off ⅞.

Rails Advance, Then Subside.

Railroad shares came in for unusual attention in the earlier dealings. Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Union Pacific, and others rose to the best levels of the year on advances of 1 to 2 points or more. But this group receded with the rest of the list when the profit taking waves occurred in the late afternoon.

In the public utility division American Telephone and Public Service of New Jersey were strong features, rising about 2 or 3 points each before being overtaken by the realizing. Sugar shares had a big day, and new tops were the rule for the group leaders.

The advance played few favorites while it lasted, such widely diversified issues as Goodyear Rubber, International Harvester, and National Biscuit coming in for whirls at rising prices. Oils and coppers had their share of improvement, the latter getting a boost from higher prices on the metal.

THREE N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE SEATS SOLD; 2 AT $150,000

New York, May 5.—[Special.]—Arrangements were made today for the sale of three seats in the New York Stock exchange, one at $137,000, and the others at $150,000.

The sale at $137,000, which was effected in the morning, represented a decline of $13,000 from the preceding transaction. This decline was canceled, however, by the two deals at $150,000 later in the day. The previous sale at $150,000 was made on April 29.

Board of Trade Seat Sold at $8,000 Net; Up $100

Increased business is bringing more inquiry for Board of Trade memberships. One sold late yesterday at $8,000 net to the buyer, or $100 above the previous sale. The next membership for sale is held at $9,000.

Dollar Sinks to New Low; Sterling $4

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Pressed by European selling, the dollar fell to a new low in foreign exchange today. The pound sterling reached $4 for the first time since Sept. 23, 1931, and the French franc rose to a premium of 21.2 per cent over parity at 4.75 cents, the highest price on record for the present currency. The exchanges of Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland also reached record dollar prices.

In spite of the increase recently made in the size of Great Britain's exchange equalization fund, the official control appeared powerless yesterday to stem the rise in sterling. While Britain's trade advantage, secured through the depreciation of her currency in terms of the dollar, seeped away the authorities made only feeble guestures at control.

The renewed fall of the dollar was almost entirely a product of European markets. Sterling "came in" here at the opening at $4, up 8 cents from the previous close, after having been reported at $4.00¾ in London. The exchange held most of its gain throughout the day and closed at $3.98½, up 6½ cents net and 46½ cents above the price at which it sold just prior to the suspension of the gold standard here on April 19.

At the day's best price for the franc, 4.75 cents, the dollar had a valuation of 82.5 cents in terms of France's gold currency, the lowest level reached thus far. French exchange closed at 4.69½ cents, up 7¼ points net, compared with parity of 3.92 cents.

New York Market Quiet.

Locally the foreign exchange market was exceedingly quiet as far as actual business was concerned, and just about as thin as it has been for some time.

The weakness of dollars in London, in the opnion of local dealers today, was attributed to Europe's fear of the scope of the inflation program in the United States. The opinion also was expressed that there had been a well timed attack on the dollar by professional speculators, who seized upon the passage of the farm bill and its inflation rider as good ammunition for a bear raid.

Dutch guilders went to 48.75 cents, compared with parity of 40.20 cents and closed at 48.05 cents; belgas reached 16.70 cents, compared with par of 13.90 cents; Swiss francs advanced to 23.25 cents against a par of 19.30 cents, and finished at 23.05 cents. The German mark advanced to 28.33 cents, compared with parity of 23.82 cents, and the Italian lira was at 6.24 cents, against a par value of 5.26 cents.

RECEIVER DIMS HOPE OF INSULL UNIT RECOVERING

Hopes that the United States Public Service company, subsidiary of Middle West Utilities, might resume interest payments on bonds and dividends on preferred stocks with the return of better times were blasted yesterday by the report made to the federal court by Receiver Samuel W. White.

Mr. White told the court that earnings had fallen short of expenses, taxes and interest and dividend payments in each of the five years preceding receivership.

Dividends on the preferred shares were $1,104,191 in excess of available income in the period from 1927, the year of organization, to April 14, 1932, when he was made receiver.

Capital expenditures in the same period were $6,524,864 in excess of capital funds received. The company managed to keep going by loans received from Middle West.

The company's subsidiaries operate in 14 states. It controls Southern United Gas company, United Public Utilities company and Southern United Ice company. The book value of its assets at the end of 1931 was above 54 million dollars.

United Public Utilities, one of its principal subsidiaries of which Mr. White is also receiver, has made two interest payments on its bonds since taken over by the court.

"Offhand," Receiver White said, "one might think that upon the return of normal economic conditions the company might be expected to resume payment of interest on its bonds and of dividends on the preferred shares. An adequate basis for such expectation is not developed, however, by a study of the financial history of the company."

CUT IN RAILROAD FARE FORECAST IN SHORT TIME

2 and 3 Cents a Mile Rate Expected.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Passenger rates on western railroads will be reduced shortly to 2 cents a mile for coach travel and 3 cents a mile for Pullman accommodations, with elimination of the surcharges on Pullman tickets, according to reports current in railroad circles yesterday.

RALPH BUDD. [Blank & Stoller Photo.]

It is reported that a committee of railroad presidents which is studying the passenger fare question will recommend the adoption of these fares. Members of this committee are Ralph Budd of the Burlington, Carl Gray, Union Pacific; Fred Sargent, North Western; Paul Shoup, Southern Pacific; and L. W. Baldwin, Missouri Pacific.

Passenger Revenues Drop.

Faced with tobogganing revenues in their passenger departments in recent years, executives of the railroads have been seeking ways to check this loss. While the roads have lost much business to motor bus travel, the greater part of it has been due to the competition of the private automobile.

"Our problem has been to find a rate which would make railroad travel cheaper than automobile travel and at the same time permit us to make a profit," one passenger official said.

The present basic passenger rate of 3.6 cents a mile has been in effect since the federal government relinquished its control over the roads shortly after the end of the war. Just prior to and during the war the rate was 3 cents a mile. Earlier a 2 cent a mile rate was general.

Forced to Fight States.

When the interstate commerce commission ordered the 3.6 a mile rate it was necessary for the roads to get injunctions in the various United States District courts to prevent states from enforcing their local rates. Until these injunctions were obtained passengers traveling between states would buy tickets to state lines and repurchase transportation on to their destination.

One passenger official discussing the increase in coach and Pullman car fares said:

"Shippers complained that freight was bearing too heavy a part of the cost of maintaining railroad services. They convinced the interstate commerce commission that passenger travel should bear a greater part of the burden. It was believed that even with higher rates the roads would be able to hold their passenger business. This has not worked out. Both coach and Pullman travel has declined."

Recent experiments by railroads in the south with low rates are reported to have been very successful.

Only Two Oppose Cut.

A recent survey conducted among the western roads disclosed that only two—the Santa Fe and the Illinois Central—were definitely opposed to passenger fare reductions. The others favored reductions varying from 3 to 1 cent a mile for coach travel and from 3 to 1½ cents a mile for sleeper and parlor car travel.

Reports from New York yesterday stated that the New York Central is considering a plan to cut fares between Cincinnati and Louisville and St. Louis. The Louisville and Nashville some time ago obtained permission from the interstate commerce commission to reduce a 3.6 mile a rate to 2 cents a mile for coach travel and 3 cents a mile for Pullman travel without surcharge. The Baltimore and Ohio also put these rates into effect between the three cities.

Business Gains on Broad Front, Trade Reviews Report

New York, May 5.—A further broadening of the industrial revival is noted by trade reviews this week: Retail distribution holding its gains and wholesale buying continuing beyond usual seasonal periods.

The belief that price advantages will follow the passage of the inflation measure contained in the farm bill has resulted in precautionary buying, which in some lines has amounted almost to speculation.

Improvement Nationwide.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., says in part: "The reports of unmistakable revival in commercial and industrial activity do not emanate from the few isolated districts, but are nationwide in their scope.

"The duration of the buying movement, however, is difficult to gauge, as in some quarters, at least, it is attributed to the desire to shift money from banks to raw materials and fabricated products, with the strength of consumer buying yet to be tested.

"Not all of the advances of the commodities can be traced to inflationary moves, as the rise of many of the staples has been supported by a strong statistical base and the continued broadening of general business improvement which has provided a sound foundation for a firmer price structure. Obviously, the absence of increased purchasing power, as yet among the vast majority, is tempering enthusiasm regarding consumption prospects in the immediate future."

Heavy Industries Gain.

"The heavy industries are having a surprising expansion with favorable effects on employment and trade, retail price boosts are partly seasonal, but a little inflation goes a long way to stop price cutting. The stock market settled down to second thoughts, bonds held to unorthodox high levels.

"Washington awaits the public works program. Construction men hope that its promised emphasis on ready-to-go projects means support for deferred state and municipal improvements."

Lima Locomotive.

P. S. A.

Operations of Lima Locomotive Works, third largest locomotive manufacturer, have been affected by the same conditions that were responsible for unsatisfactory results of its two larger competitors. Railroad buying has been cut only to bare necessities. No locomotives were ordered in 1932 by any American railroad.

The company controls Ohio Power Shovel corporation, manufacturer of power shovels and cranes. This field is highly competitive and business in it has not been active.

By reducing output in 1932, and as a result of holdover of Pennsylvania's order for 30 electric locomotives from 1931, unfilled orders at the close of 1932 totaled $1,238,000, compared with $1,215,000 the year before. Sales billed, however, dropped to the lowest figure in the history of the company.

Drastic economies in 1932 enabled the company to finish the year with a loss of $891,000, against loss of $1,414,000 for 1931. Net income in 1930 was $1,382,000, or $7.13 per share, against net income of $502,000 for 1929 and loss of $112,000 in 1928.

Although losses have eaten into working capital, current position is still strong. Current assets at the close of 1932 totaled $5,786,000. Cash assets of about $2,400,000 were substantially in excess of current liabilities of $143,000. Working capital was $5,643,000, against $6,772,000 the year before.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 211,057 shares of no par stock [including 40,800 shares held by the company]. Nothing has been paid on the shares since Feb. 17, 1931.

The absence of purchases in the locomotive market has resulted in building up a large potential demand. Realization of such demand, however, must await not only increased traffic of railroads, but also general improvement in railroad credit.

Insurance Companies.

As a reader of your paper I would appreciate it if you would kindly send me a list of all the reliable life insurance companies and their addresses.

P. G.

We cannot take the position of suggesting insurance companies. There are many companies with excellent records and reputations and to suggest just a few would not be fair to the others.

As we do not try to favor any individual company, we feel it would be more advisable for you to send us the names of insurance companies in which you are interested. We shall then be glad to report on them.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 5.—Sharp advances, ranging from 1 to 5 points, were recorded by speculative railroad bonds today, with other second grade issues improving on a more moderate scale.

Treasury issues made further small upward progress and the bulk of high grade corporate liens were firm in tone. The rise was uniform in short and long term government obligations, reflecting growing investment demand. A premium of ½ point was bid on the 2¾ per cent three year notes sold May 2.

Rail Secondary Liens Spurt.

Speculation in secondary carrier bonds reached the highest pitch since the advent of the recovery movement with the reporting to congress of President Roosevelt's railroad relief program. At the same time steadily improving traffic reports goaded traders to increase their commitments.

The percentage gain was greatest in the case of the most highly speculative issues, such as Central of Georgia 5½s, Canada Steamship 6s, Rock Island Convertible 4½s, International Great Northern 5s, Florida East Coast 5s, Nickel Plate 6s of 1935 and the refunding 4½s. The Missouri Pacific bonds, McCrory 5½s, Postal Telegraph 5s, and Wisconsin Central 4s.

First Grades Also Strong.

Less speculative bonds were in strong demand at prices either going through or approaching closely to the previous highs for the year. These included the bonds of some of the most prominent railroads — Great Northern, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Chicago and North Western, Louisville and Nashville, New Haven, Pere Marquette, Wabash, Southern railway, Republic Steel, Pure Oil, North American debenture 5s, New York Railways 6s, Erie, Goodrich 6s, Colorado and Southern 4½s, and American Water Works 6s.

While there was little trading in high grade corporate issues their tone was firm with fractional gains scattered throughout the market.

BLEDSOE TAKES OFFICE AS HEAD OF ATCHISON

Samuel T. Bledsoe, who was born in a rural community in Kentucky 65 years ago, walked into a flower filled room in the Railway Exchange building yesterday afternoon to assume the presidency of one of the country's principal railroads—the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe.

Mr. Bledsoe, an attorney, succeeds William B. Storey, an engineer, who retired from the office at the annual meeting of the board of directors held in New York on Tuesday. Mr. Bledsoe arrived here yesterday afternoon and began conferring with officials of the road at once.

Rains Like New York.

"Well, it's just like New York," Mr. Bledsoe remarked. "All we have had this spring in New York has been rain, and it's at it here. But it's like getting back home. I've lived in Chicago longer than in any other place."

Mr. Bledsoe came to Chicago in 1914 and left it in 1931, when he was elected chairman of the executive committee of the Santa Fe. He also was general counsel of the road.

Mr. Bledsoe, who is around 6 feet tall and of husky build, discussing the general railroad situation, said he was hopeful that the Roosevelt plan might produce some good results provided a man well acquainted with railroad problems was appointed coördinator. Adoption of the plan, he said, might result in economies.

Wants Rate Elasticity.

Discussing the freight rate structure he expressed the opinion that there should be more elasticity to allow the roads to meet competition. One difficulty under the present system, he said, is that if the roads put into effect rates which would enable them to meet the competition of the Panama canal in transcontinental shipments they have to reduce intermediate rates proportionately.

He commented favorably on recent suggestions that the roads be given the power to make attractive rates on companies shipping in trainload lots. "Why shouldn't a shipper who transports merchandise in trainload lots be given rate consideration?" he asked.

COTTON AT NEW HIGH; CLOSE TO 9 CENT LEVEL

Heavy general trading with a strong bullish feeling yesterday carried prices to a new high and $14 a bale above the low of last December. Sharp advance in sterling exchange combined with higher prices for grains made all markets active with offerings well absorbed on every break and all liquidating sales readily taken.

At the close futures in Chicago were 11 to 15 points net higher and other markets 22 to 27 points higher. Liverpool closed 11 points net higher. Spots in New York advanced 25 points to 8.55c; New Orleans gained 20 points to 8.35c, the same as Houston, while Galveston was at 8.25c. Appreciation on spot cotton was mostly $1 a bale.

BUTTER AT NEW HIGH FOR YEAR

Bullish enthusiasm swept butter futures to new highs for the year on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, closing prices showing gains of ½@5c, or up to $1.44 per car lot. Egg futures gained 5@12c. November butter opened higher but trading was quiet. At midsession many new buying orders came into the market and pushed the price to the new high. Eggs were steady early, but the gains in other commodities prompted a sudden buying wave and the price advanced quickly from early reaction. Statistics in both butter and eggs were of no moment, proving bearish. Sales: Butter, 109 cars; eggs, 111 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 2 cars; eggs, 6 cars. Prices follow:

HOG PRICES RALLY AFTER EARLY DIP; CATTLE ADVANCE

Packers Have No Fear of Farm Strike.

All live stock tilted upward at the close yesterday on a belated buying wave. The slight early losses in hogs were not quite recovered at the finish but competition was brisk and tendency ruled higher on the closing rounds. Cattle wound up at the highest point since March, with average costs within 10 cents of the high point of the year.

Owing to the early reductions in hogs the top and average prices in this division of the yards were off 5 cents more at $4.00 and $3.90 respectively. Late shipping orders for hogs were largest of the week. Droves are costing within a few cents per cwt of the highest levels since last October.

No Fear of Farm Strike.

While some attribute part of the upturn in live stock to the threatened strike of Iowa farmers, packers are not in the least concerned regarding the available supply of meat animals at the markets. They recall that last year's strike did not affect the aggregate movement of receipts, although it did cause some uneveness in the distribution. Receipts were stopped almost completely at Sioux City for a few days and the movement was curbed at Omaha, but Chicago supplies were swelled by the shutting off of the runs at these two western markets. The trade also recalls that hog prices sagged while the strike was on.

Despite the plain quality of the Friday run of cattle, buyers were aggressive in the commoner grades at the week's full upturn of 25 to 50 cents.

Hide Market Advances.

Hide markets continue their skyrocket advance. Heavy native steer hides soared to 9 cents, one big packer selling 11,000 hides at this figure, a full cent over the last transaction of that selection. Similar kinds sold at 4 cents in February and at 5 cents a year ago. Light native cow hides advanced to 9¼ cents, against 3¾ cents a year ago yesterday.

No strictly prime cattle were in the run yesterday. Some medium grades topped the market at $6.25. The bulk was of the class to sell at $4.60 to $5.25.

Lambs went up 10 to 15 cents more yesterday, closing at the highest levels since March and within 15 cents of the top since January. Prime wooled lambs brought $6.25 to packers. City butchers paid $5.85 for lambs without fleece, while packers bought in this branch at $5.75 and below. Current lamb quotations are fully 75 cents above the low spot of two weeks ago.

LARD SELLS AT 6 CENTS FOR SEPTEMBER DELIVERY

Buyers paid 6 cents for lard for September delivery yesterday, the highest of the season. A broad commission house and general buying movement developed with small packers well represented on that side. Larger packers were hedging the output of their factories on the advance. The strength in grains, cotton and stocks stimulated new buying and there were net gains of 10 to 12½ cents on most futures.

Cash lard advanced 10 cents to $5.75, loose and leaf advanced 12½ cents to $5.12½, respectively. Liverpool lard was 6d lower, and export clearances of 1,586,755 pounds, and of bacon only 7,500 pounds. Cash meat trade was fair with higher prices asked by packers and distributors. Pork loins were firmer at 6½ to 8½ cents.

There was no trading in bellies for future delivery and the cash market was $6.50 at the close. Prices follow:
